Gen. Johnson Strikes at Critics of NRA

DECLARES U. S. NEED NOT FEAR DICTATORSHIP

Press Will Not Be Licensed, He Says.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

In an address bristling with picturesque phrases, yet toned to conciliation rather than defiance, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, chief administrator of the NRA, brought his views of that social and political experiment to Chicago business men yesterday.

There is no dictatorship in sight in this country, he told them, except that of the people through congress, which, he said, may pass a stiffer act than the NRA "if all this bullabaloo continues." By this he referred to the chief objections which have been raised against the NRA, that it threatens freedom of the press, that it is unconstitutional, that it coerces industry, and that it interferes with individual initiative.

Calls Objections "Hobgoblins."

All these objections, and particularly the freedom of the press, he dismissed as "synthetic dead cats" and "hobgoblins." He likened the furore that has been raised to the antics of ancient witch doctors and priests of Moloch, who sacrificed children of a deluded people in the mouth of a false and fiery god.

"This country, under the incitation of witch doctors, has the jitters," he said.

Gen. Johnson spoke in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel before what was pronounced one of the largest and most deeply interested audiences that has ever attended the luncheon functions of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Illinois Manufacturers' association, his hosts on this occasion. He was applauded vigorously when he arose and was interrupted at times by milder applause.

Slight Chance for Questions.

At the close he submitted himself to questions, but in a manner that hardly gave his hearers an opportunity to formulate them.

"I came out here to answer questions," he said, and invited any one who wished to do so to write out a question and send it up to the chairman. George W. Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce. As no pencils and paper or collectors appeared there was a minute or so of silence, and wondering, and then Mr. Rossetter said there were no questions and the meeting was adjourned.

Gen. Johnson read a prepared address. After he had read a page or so he said that he had a sore knee and would like to sit down. The rest of his address was read from this position.

Gov. Horner sat on one side of him and Mayor Kelly on the other, but the meeting on the whole was a distinctly nonpartisan gathering, with most of Chicago's business and professional leaders in attendance.

In Defense of NRA.

In general defense of the NRA, which he admitted had made many mistakes and predicted would make many more, Gen. Johnson declared that through this and his other courses President Roosevelt "has pulled us one-fourth of the way out of the March depths in a little more than six months." NRA has ushered in, he said, an era of profit in industry and decent conditions in labor, which is the real aim and meaning of the new day and the new deal.

"The great fundamental principle is working and working as intended," he said. "The benefits of the great public works program are beginning to pour forth. The agricultural adjustment act has brought a new day to the south and will progressively increase its effect throughout this region. The home and farm loan acts are moving at an accelerating speed. The move to liquidate frozen bank credits is on its way. All these forces are about to center with the increased purchasing power of 4,000,000 reemployed people.

"It is no time for calamity howling. It is time to get ready to take care of increased business and to carry on the excellent progress thus far gained."

Discusses Freedom of Press.

The address was devoted chiefly to the subject of the freedom of the press, which Gen. Johnson called "the biggest imitation dead cat" in the lot.

He committed himself on this question as he has never done before.

"Any system for licensing the press

DAUGHTER OF DOCTOR HEROINE IN SUICIDE CASE

Miss Madi Bacon, University of Chicago graduate, music teacher and swimming instructress, dived into the cold waters of the Lincoln Park lagoon yesterday in a futile effort to rescue a drowning man. Before diving, Miss Bacon stripped off all her outer clothing.

The man whom she sought to save was Theodore Petropoulos, 40 years old, owner of a vegetable store at 1156 Webster avenue. His home was at 2222 North Clifton avenue.

Petropoulos had jumped into the lagoon from the Fullerton avenue bridge. His act was seen by Miss Bacon and another young woman who were approaching the scene in a car. Both alighted from the car, and Miss Bacon, without hesitating, removed her excess clothing and dived into the water. She reached him but could not put him ashore because of a high slippery bank. Meanwhile, her companion summoned police who finally dragged Petropoulos ashore, but too late to revive him.

Miss Bacon is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bacon, 2333 Cleveland avenue. Dr. Bacon is a well known physician. Miss Bacon is considered an expert swimmer, teaching the sport at Camp Ketchuwa, Mich, a girls' camp, every summer. She is also an accomplished musician.

MALLORCA ARMY AUDITOR BALKS FREEING 5 YANKS

PALMA, Mallorca, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The case of five Americans charged with assaulting a civil guard rested tonight in the jurisdiction of the sixth section of the Supreme court following the refusal by Military Auditor Morales to approve a verdict of acquittal rendered on Oct. 27 by a military court.

Ordinarily the auditor's approval of a court verdict is merely a formality, but it was recalled that the Americans were refused bail many weeks on Morales' insistence.

The Americans are Mr. and Mrs. Clinton B. Lockwood of West Springfield, Mass.; Rutherford Fullerton of Columbus, O.; Roderick F. Mead of New York, and Edmund W. Blodgett of Stamford, Conn. They were arrested on June 4 following a dispute with a civil guard and held in a dungeon for several weeks without bail.

Fur Sammons Captured in Indiana Town

James [Fur] Sammons, public enemy and gang machine gunner who has been a will-o'-the-wisp to Illinois law for the last nine years, is in the Lake county jail at Crown Point, Ind. Efforts to bring him back to Chicago for trial on an old charge of robbery will be made today.

Sammons was arrested yesterday at Cedar Lake, Ind., for intoxication. He was carrying a pistol and had $3,200 in his pockets. To the Indiana authorities he declared that he was William Linduska, 43 years old, of Vandalia, Mich. But a suspicion that he was a Chicago hoodlum caused the sheriff of Lake county to send his finger prints here and the identification was made.

Gilbert Sends Jail Guards.

Learning of Sammons' imprisonment, Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, last night ordered three squads armed with machine guns to proceed at once to Crown Point and guard the jail, to make sure that no raid is made to release the prisoner.

It was disclosed that Sammons has been living comfortably in the Lydore hotel in Hammond. He had a young woman companion, who was arrested with him. He has been sought since he forfeited bonds of $20,000 by failing to appear two months ago for trial in the Cook County Criminal court on a charge of participating in the $85,000 pay roll robbery at the International Harvester company plant in 1926.

Has Long Criminal Record.

Sammons, who is a little past 50 years old, has a criminal record that dates back to 1899. In 1903 he committed murder during a robbery and was sentenced in 1904 to be hanged. His sentence was commuted in June of that year to life imprisonment at Joliet. In 1923 the life term was commuted by Gov. Small to 50 years and Sammons became eligible to parole. He was paroled in June, 1924.

The next few years were busy ones for Sammons. He was indicted for the Harvester pay roll robbery. He was indicted for another robbery in Baltimore, Md. On April 12, 1927, he was sent to Leavenworth federal penitentiary for a whisky theft and served 18 months.

He speedily became involved in other crimes and in 1930, after Attorney General Carlstrom had held that his parole of 1924 was illegal, he was sent back to Joliet. But in July 1932, Judge Edward D. Shurtleff at Woodstock ruled in his favor on a writ of habeas corpus and he was released.

Meanwhile the Baltimore authorities tried to get him extradited for trial, but were unsuccessful. Last July he was arrested in Kansas City and both Chicago and Baltimore fought for his custody. Sammons settled the matter by surrendering to Chicago policemen. Eight of them carefully guarded him on his return here. He furnished the $20,000 bonds, walked out of court free on July 18 and disappeared, until yesterday.

EXTORTION THREATS SENT IOWA CO-ED; GUARD FRAT HOUSE

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A police guard was placed in the Delta Delta Delta sorority house at the University of Iowa tonight as officials investigated an extortion attempt upon Margaret Hise of West Liberty, a member.

Authorities revealed that Miss Hise, who is the daughter of the publisher of the West Liberty Index, had received three threatening letters and several mysterious telephone calls.

The last letter, which police said she received this afternoon, demanded she have her father "dig up $10,000 and have it ready." The note ended, "You will hear from us again." It was not signed.

Another note was found in the screen outside the window of Miss Hise's room on the second floor of the sorority house Saturday night. It read, "We are watching you."

Miss Hise said she had turned over two notes to the police. She asserted that after she received the first note Oct. 26 she "thought it was a joke and tore it up."

Oldest Yale Law Grad Feared Dead in Storm

Pine Orchard, Conn., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Missing for two days from his country estate here, Charles Pomeroy Ives, one of the oldest alumni of the Yale law school, is being sought by a large posse of Boy Scouts, citizens, and police.

No reason for his disappearance was found. It is feared the 87 year old retired lawyer may have perished in last night's snowstorm and cold. He is the only survivor of the law-school class of 1872.

LITVINOV IS DUE IN U. S. TODAY; SEEKS NEW DEAL

Talks with Roosevelt Tomorrow.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, Nov. 6.—The liner Berengaria, bearing Maxim Litvinov, foreign commissar of soviet Russia, and his associates, is due to arrive at quarantine at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Instructions as to the reception of the mission to the United States to seek recognition of Russia were received today.

The liner will be met at quarantine by the tug Macom, with James C. Dunn, chief of protocol of the state department, on board. Dunn will welcome the Russian delegation on behalf of President Roosevelt. The visitors will be transferred to another tug and taken directly to Jersey City. There they will board a special train for Washington.

Talks Begin Tomorrow.

At the capital there will be a formal meeting, lasting only a few minutes, with the President. Litvinov will be a luncheon guest at the White House on Wednesday. The formal conversations on recognition will begin at that time, and, as far as the Russians can see, also will be ended, for they are concerned solely with the simple question of political recognition and the exchange of diplomatic missions.

The man the Russians have in mind as their first ambassador to the United States, it was learned today, is Alexander Trojanovski, formerly ambassador to Japan. He is now in one of the soviet trading departments. This choice is significant, for there is not the slightest doubt that one of the things the Russians are hoping for from political recognition is the opportunity to adopt a common Russo-American policy toward Japan.

Litvinov has received long dispatches from Moscow every day. These messages deal with foreign affairs and invariably have been concerned chiefly with developments in the far east. The most recent dispatches have dealt with the Japanese aerial activities on the eastern frontier, specifically the report that Japanese war planes have been flying over Russian territory.

Will Not Recognize Debts.

When the recognition of the United States is received the Russians expect to discuss various other outstanding problems. These questions will be considered by experts, it is pointed out, and not by political officials such as Litvinov.

On the matter of debts the Russian position is quite clear. I am in a position to state that they will not under any condition consider recognition of the debts contracted by the czarist régime. Neither will they recognize in principle the liability for confiscation of American property in Russia.

Americans were treated on exactly the same basis as other foreigners and as Russian nationals, the soviet spokesmen point out. The soviets nationalized everything, and foreigners who went to Russia with capital took the same chance as the Russian capitalists and property owners, according to this view.

Ready to Discuss Claims.

The Russians are quite willing to discuss the claims on a quid pro quo basis. They see no reason why some mutually satisfactory arrangement might not be worked out without a sacrifice of principle by either side. They are relying somewhat on the growth of what they term "etatism" in the United States for the possibility of some settlement by which the mutual state payments might be made, leaving the governments to settle with their own nationals.

Americans who are relying on Russia's need of credits to influence an unduly favorable debts settlement are likely to be disappointed, according to the Russians, at any rate. They claim they are not worried about credit. Their present policy is to reduce commercial debts as fast as possible until the obligations are wiped out and the Russians are able to trade for cash or barter, which amounts to the same thing.

Two years ago commercial credits of Russia abroad totaled more than 3 billion gold rubles. [A gold ruble is worth 50 cents.] Today I am assured that Russian commercial debts abroad are less than one billion gold

6 States Act; Wets Need 3 Only to Win

Six states—Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, North and South Carolina, and Utah—vote today on the repeal issue. Thirty-three states previously have voted wet. If three or more of these states vote wet today repeal of prohibition will become effective when the 36th state ratifies the repeal amendment.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP)—While dry forces claim they will poll a large vote, Pennsylvania in tomorrow's election is expected to favor repeal of the eighteenth amendment by at least two to one.

The cities are arrayed against the rural sections in the contest for the election of fifteen delegates at large to a convention to be held Dec. 5.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, long an ardent leader of Pennsylvania drys, has taken no part in the fight against repeal, but in line with a recent statement that "nothing is more obvious than that the American people have decided against the eighteenth amendment," he has been making plans for liquor control.

Headed by John A. McSparran, state secretary of agriculture, the committee of nine on prohibition emergencies in a statement tonight said that "last minute reports from chairmen in sixty counties where the drys have active county committees indicate that an enormous dry vote will be polled."

The liquor question will share attention of some 4,000,000 voters with modification of the 1794 blue laws to license Sunday football and baseball.

Ohio Repealists Confident.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Ohio repealists were confident tonight that voters of the Buckeye state, two million strong, will cast a large majority of their ballots tomorrow in favor of prohibition repeal. Dry leaders, declining to predict the probable outcome, insisted, however, there was a chance for a prohibition victory if the dry voters turn out in full strength.

The Ohio repeal council predicted a vote of 3 to 1 for repeal, and Dr. Carl Watson, state Democratic chieftain, asserted the state will vote for repeal "by at least 600,000 majority."

Meanwhile, S. P. McNaught, superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon league, made a last minute appeal to "hold to prohibition at least until something better is offered."

Gov. George White, known for years as an ardent dry, definitely aligned himself with the repealists today when he announced he would vote against both national and state prohibition.

In addition to state and national prohibition, Ohio will ballot on proposals to reduce by a third the real estate tax limitation, establish an old age pension system, and a county "home-rule" amendment.

Both Sides Claim Utah.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Utah's two largest cities, Salt Lake City and Ogden, were conceded tonight by both wets and drys as certain for repeal in tomorrow's election by heavy majorities. Opinions differed as to state-wide results.

In addition to Salt Lake and Weber counties, in which are situated the two largest cities, Franklin Riter, head of the Utah League for Prohibition Repeal, predicted the city of Provo and Utah county would show a repeal majority, and that three other counties, comprising the state's mining districts, would vote for repeal nearly 5 to 1.

Riter said he expects a total vote

N. Y. ELECTION TODAY MAY END TAMMANY RULE

All Three Candidates Claim Victory.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—New York's mayoralty campaign, most bitter city battle in a generation, swept to its close tonight with Tammany and its bosses apparently headed for the rocks and Fiorello La Guardia, fusionist, and Joseph V. McKee, Recovery party, wrestling for victory, with La Guardia apparently in the lead.

Never, perhaps, since the days of the Tweed ring has Gotham witnessed such a campaign as the one which is sequel to the Seabury investigations which led to the retirement of Playboy Mayor Jimmie Walker to the Riviera, nor one in which so much national politics seems involved.

More than 2,000,000 votes are expected to be cast tomorrow, and tonight, when a campaign is ordinarily tucked into its trundle bed, the battling instead reached its peak in frenzy.

Farley Pleads for McKee.

The great feature of the closing night was a radio speech by Postmaster General James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, who is supporting McKee, and a radio reply at once by La Guardia. It had been rumored that Col. Theodore Roosevelt might make the reply, but La Guardia took the microphone for himself.

Mr. Farley, who said he was speaking as Democratic state chairman, urged the election of a Democratic assembly. He said Gov. Al Smith, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Herbert Lehman had worked for reforms in local government, according to a formula prescribed by Smith when governor, but that they had been met with Republican refusal in the legislature.

"The real issue at stake tomorrow," he said, "is whether local government, inefficient, expensive, and irresponsible, can be brought up to date. Gov. Al Smith laid down the formula. I ask the election of Democratic assemblymen and Democratic local officers, candidates whose ideas of government are the same as those of Govs. Smith, Roosevelt, and Lehman. For that reason in my own city of New York I am voting for the Recovery party candidates under the leadership of Joseph V. McKee."

Brain Truster for La Guardia.

Two minutes later La Guardia made answer over the same radio chain. He was introduced by Prof. A. A. Berle of Columbia, who was introduced as "one of the Roosevelt brain trust." Prof. Raymond Moley, ex-brain truster and ex-assistant secretary of state, has been backing McKee editorially, and choice of Berle as master of ceremonies was construed as a move to indicate administration men at Washington spoke merely for themselves on the mayoralty fight.

"Jim Farley," said Brain Truster Berle, "is a friend of mine, but off on the wrong foot. Most of those on the Recovery ticket fought us tooth and nail when we were trying to elect Roosevelt last year."

Mr. La Guardia in his remarks said the fight in the other camps was "a sordid squabble between two factions of Tammany, seeking to retain control of New York."

Calls Speech a Popgun.

"Mr. Farley's speech," he said, "was heralded as the 26 inch Big Bertha last shot in the campaign. But all we heard was a popgun. Mr. McKee has been saying a vote for him is a vote for President Roosevelt. Mr. Farley is conspicuously silent on that question. The McKee camp says federal funds and patronage might be withheld from other mayors. Mr. Farley's silence on that is emphatic. It repudiates the claims of the McKee followers.

"Mr. Farley has the right to support the candidate of the Bronx branch of Tammany. But the Bronx branch is as bad as Tammany. The issue is:

"How can New York be saved?"

Midnight saw the rival camps in tery, the La Guardia and McKee leaders wondering whether Tammany, in the belief its candidate, Mayor John Patrick O'Brien, is headed for the chute, might throw strength to one of the other candidates.

Tammany, what with its organization and the fact that it has controlled the distribution of $11,000,000 a month of public relief funds, is supposed to control more than 400,000 votes. The bosses are battling to elect at least

Odds quoted by betting commissioners in Wall street favored La Guardia. The commissioners were quoting 1 to 3 and 1 to 3½ in favor of La Guardia, 2½ to 1 against McKee, and 4 to 1 against Mayor O'Brien.

The McKee camp all day has had an air of gloominess, but its leaders say it is going to be a close run and their candidate has a good chance of winning if the taxpaying home owners turn out. The claims of the rival camps, for public consumption, are:

La Guardia, by 650,000 plurality; McKee, by 185,000; O'Brien, by 499,000. It's the traditional eve of election hooey.

Racial Issue Up Again.

The racial issue was fanned up again against McKee in the eleventh hour screechings over the voice amplifiers. McKee when a high school teacher 18 years ago wrote an article on education which was resurrected during the campaign with charges it was anti-Jewish in tone. Prominent Jews derided this line of attack, but underground McKee's opposition has been spreading it and trying to capitalize the revulsion against the Nazi anti-Semitic outrages of Hitler. Some McKee leaders say it will cost him at least 60,000 votes, and if he loses the racial issue will be chief factor.

Many implications are being read into tomorrow's results by the politicians. If McKee loses, they conjecture Gov. Lehman may be defeated next year. The governor, after denouncing the attacks on McKee on the race question, has been silent, and now is in a hospital. He was made governor by "Big Jim" Farley more than any one other person, but has not been in the McKee campaign which Farley is championing.

Taxpayers Greet McKee.

If McKee loses, too, they surmise it might prove a setback to Mr. Farley's supposed ambition to run for governor in 1936, as perhaps a stepping stone to something higher. McKee, who succeeded the wisecracking Walker as acting mayor until O'Brien was elected in a special election, is held to have been at a disadvantage in the campaigning. His speeches, his own people say, have sounded too cold and academic and he has been too gentlemanly to "throw the dirt" of which New York seems to have an abundant supply.

Despite his platform aggressiveness, his record as acting mayor in striving to trim down the budget, which won him the hostility of Tammany, caused 260,000 voters to write his name in on the ballot last year, although he was not a candidate, and he has been getting great receptions from business folk and small home owners and people with a stake in the matter of taxes.

In Wall street at noon more than 10,000 today stood in the cold rain listening to him speak, sucking at a stick of licorice between sentences on account of his throat, and later when a truckload of La Guardia orators drove up they were hooted and booed out of the street. He is getting active support of many Republican leaders, and the surmise in the McKee camp is that whether he wins will depend upon how many Republican votes he can swing.

Tammanys orators are whooping up the cry "Elect O'Brien on his record." They are shrieking that McKee has Farley and Edward J. Flynn, boss of the Bronx, as his bosses, and that LaGuardia is bossed by Samuel Seabury and Ogden Mills, who was Hoover's secretary of the treasury.

A Faculty of Blundering.

O'Brien today told his audiences, "I have fought the fight; I have kept the faith." It seemed to be received as another Broadway wisecrack. O'Brien has a delightful faculty of blundering—recently at an anti-Hitler outrage meeting, he drew a picture of the Nazis driving into exile "the great philosopher and discoverer of the relativity theory, Prof. Weinstein."

The city hall reporters asked him whom he would appoint police commissioner. "They haven't told me yet," blurted the mayor. When this was printed, O'Brien next day had a deadline chalked thirty feet from his office, beyond which the reporters were prohibited from passing. Prize story of all, O'Brien swearing in an appointee to an important job, after a highely eulogistic speech bent toward his secretary, with a hoarse whisper, "What's this guy's name?"

La Guardia, radical Republican once elected to congress as a Socialist, is the most belligerent and aggressive of the candidates on the platform. He was attacked by McKee as a "perrenial agitator, a communist and a demagogue," but from the kickoff he has been leading in the straw votes and other surface signs. Little has been said by the camps in the campaign about the Seabury expose itself and the driving out of Walker, but the attack has been directed against the bosses. Every side accuses the other of having bosses.

La Guardia's record of leaping from party to party has been smeared all over the campaign—as a Republican congressman he worked against Coolidge and Hoover, and he was a leader in "sock the rich" movement at Washington and lined up with the left wing of the radical Republicans.

Behind La Guardia is a bewildering assortment of political groups. There is Seabury, real head of the fusionist movement. Then there are such hard-shelled Hooverites as Ogden Mills and Chairman Macy of the Republican state committee. Radical Republicans are out for La Guardia, and today a sheaf of indorsements of La Guardia's capacity and ability in congress, from former and present members of congress was turned loose. It contained such radicals as Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, and conservatives such as Senator Arthur H. Vanderberg of Michigan, and Congressman Bertrand H. Snell of New York, minority house leader, and Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania, an authority on constitutional law.

Seek to Rule Convention.

Both conservative Republicans and radicals, appear to regard a victory by La Guardia as strengthening them in the contest to control the next Republican national convention and in reorganization of the G. O. P. Also they look at it as sowing seeds of discord among the Democrats.

The coming session of congress is one spot which they hazard may be affected. If Farley's favorite, McKee, and Tammany's choice, O'Brien, are beaten, they argue it might set the pins up for opposition in congress to some of the administration policies. So are the congressional elections next November, which, Republicans conjecture, might be affected to their advantage if New York elects La Guardia. Many of the seasoned ones proclaim, however, that if La Guardia is elected and runs true to form he will be for La Guardia, and may leap from group to group and from issue to issue as he listeth.

If O'Brien loses, John F. Curry, boss of Tammany, and John McCooey, boss of Brooklyn, are expected to be automatically out. The interesting question is who will control their successors. If McKee wins, Mr. Farley would, it is expected, be the natural higher up who would do the suggesting. If La Guardia wins it might be Al Smith. One handicap against Al Smith is that he seems to have lost some of his popularity in his home village—the stock comment one hears is "Al has got high hat." But if Smith did the picking of the successors to Bosses Curry and McCooey, both foes of Farley, Mr. Farley still would have some voice as a veto due to the federal patronage.

BEER AND WINE SALES HALTED IN NEW YORK TODAY FOR ELECTION

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The sale of beer will not be permitted from 3 o'clock tomorrow morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, as the result of an order promulgated today by the state alcoholic beverage control board. The order is based on a section of the state beer law. Dispensers of beer and wine were warned by the board not to sell these beverages during the hours the polls are open. Failure to comply with the order will result in revocation of the license and prosecution in court.

Chicago Prepares for Jubilee Over Dry Repeal Vote Tonight

Jubilation over the final vote to repeal the 18th amendment as the result of balloting in six states today is expected to take celebrators into the night haunts of the city for festivities tonight.

Since the hard liquors will not be available legally for another thirty days the revelry is not expected to be as extensive as that which greeted the return of beer, but hotels and other night life centers are preparing for observance of the occasion.

Celebration at the Congress.

One of the most enthusiastic programs will be staged by the Congress hotel in the Urban room. Fifteen years ago government agents sealed up the hotel's well stocked cellars, which still hold thousands of bottles of fine beverages. The prospect of receiving legal permission to dispense these is sufficient inspiration for the management to have provided special decorations and noisemakers and to have prepared the orchestra to play all the old drinking songs as vote returns are received by radio.

At the Edgewater Beach hotel the Marine dining room will be the center of merriment. Between orchestra selections Harry Sosnick will announce results of the voting in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Kentucky, Utah and North and South Carolina.

Manager Frank Bering of the Sherman has received an unusually large number of reservations, he reported, for the College inn, where Phil Harris will keep the guests informed on the balloting between dance numbers.

Other Radio Reports Planned.

Radio reports of the voting will be given at the Bismarck hotel in the Walnut room. At the Brevoort a stein of beer will be served free with each meal tomorrow.

Most of the hotels possessed large quantities of liquors before prohibition, but all except a few sold out their entire stocks when the dry era began. Before they can begin to dispense liquor again, especially as an adjunct to their menus, their cellars will have to be restocked. No sales will be legal before Dec. 5, so that tonight's celebrators legally will have only beer in which to toast the returns.

HUSBAND SHOT BY WIFE ON EVE OF DIVORCE HEARING

Suffering from a bullet wound behind the right ear Allan Ryley, 39 years old, an alleged bootlegger, was found by police last night in his room in the Dorian hotel, 4545 Woodlawn avenue. His estranged wife, Isabelle, 32, was sought early today for the shooting. Her sister, Florence, was taken into custody by the Hyde Park police for questioning. Police were told that Mrs. Ryley had recently sued for divorce and that the case is to come up in court today.

Police did not learn of the shooting until nearly midnight, although it occurred eight hours earlier. The first report was given by Mrs. V. E. Boylan, manager of the hotel. Sergt. Fred Webster of the Hyde Park station responded and found Ryley in his room, his condition serious.

It developed that a shot was heard about 4:30 in the afternoon and that Mrs. Boylan on investigating found Ryley wounded in his room with his estranged wife beside him. A pistol lay on the dresser. Ryley told Mrs. Boylan he had cut himself with a razor and asked her to call a doctor. She called Dr. William Schroeder, 1204 East 47th street. Neither he nor Mrs. Boylan reported the case to police at the time. Each had thought the other had done so, they explained later.

Dr. Schroeder told Sergt. Webster that Ryley had confided to him that Mrs. Ryley had shot him. On this information a squad began a search for her and took her sister into custody at Mrs. Ryleys' home at 8119 Merrill avenue. She refused to talk about the shooting without her lawyer being present. The Ryleys were married during the war. He is a brother of Lieut. Howard Ryley of the South Chicago station and of Policeman Harold Ryley of Chicago Lawn.

Bakery Driver Shot as He Resists Bandit Pair

Paul Erickson, 35 years old, 6044 South Fairfield avenue, a driver for the Schulze Baking company, 40 East Garfield boulevard, was shot in the abdomen when he resisted two Negro bandits this morning. The robbers stopped him a few moments after he had alighted from a street car at State and 55th streets, and one of them shot him at close range when he refused to put up his hands. Erickson was taken to the Englewood hospital.

FATE OF REPEAL WITH SIX STATES BALLOTING TODAY

Kentucky to Delay Count.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Repealists and prohibitionists, after desultory campaigns hampered by lack of funds, issued final appeals tonight at rallies throughout the state for a heavy vote tomorrow on the repeal amendment to the national constitution.

Repeal leaders said they were confident the Blue Grass state would vote wet by a large majority, while dry leaders predicted Kentucky would remain dry.

Because of Kentucky's unique election law, which delays tabulation of ballots until the day after the election, the result will not be known until Wednesday night at the earliest.

South Carolina Fight Hot.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The final sallies in South Carolina's prohibition campaign, opened months ago, found both wets and dry camps bustling today.

There were many statements, but a minimum of predictions. Claud N. Sapp, Democratic state chairman and repeal advocate, maintained, however, the state would go wet tomorrow by a majority of three to two with some 80,000 votes cast.

Dry leaders in a closing appeal urged South Carolina "to exercise its right to be right even if all other states are wrong."

A caution to workers to "fight for every vote as if that one meant victory, despite optimistic reports from all sections," was given by repeal headquarters.

Battle in North Carolina.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—North Carolina's bitter repeal referendum campaign comes to a "show down" tomorrow with the voters answering the claims of both wets and drys to victory.

Today a final round-up of voters was under way, to be climaxed tonight by wet and dry rallies in hundreds of communities.

Although both sides asserted they expected to win, neither made claims of an overwhelming victory. Voters will ballot both on the question of calling a convention to act on repeal and on delegates to the convention from the 100 counties, if one is called.

BUREAU TELLS HOW REPEAL WILL RETURN MARKETS TO FARMER

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics said today in its annual outlook that repeal would return to the American farmer markets for about 20,000,000 bushels of corn and 55,000,000 bushels of barley each year.

"The utilization of feed grains in industry next season," the report said, "will probably be considerably larger than in recent years because of the relegalization of beer and prospective repeal.

"Commercial utilization of corn from the 1934 crop will be stimulated by increased brewing and distilling and also by some improvement in other industries.

"The use of corn products in fermented liquors prior to prohibition was about 15,000,000 bushels. The production of corn products for use by breweries in both wet and dry process industries is expected to continue unusually heavy for some months, while supplies of beer and alcoholic liquors are being accumulated for aging.

"In recent years the use of corn by the distilling industry has been negligible, but before prohibition between 20,000,000 and 25,000,000 bushels were used annually.

"The industrial use of other feed grains, particularly barley, will also be increased materially by the expansion of brewing and distilling."

30 French Planes Prepare for Hop to Africa Today

ISTRES AIRPORT, France, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Three scout flyers, including the famous distance aviator, Capt. Georges Pelletier D'Oisy, flew to Perpignan today to check conditions preliminary to the departure of 30 French planes for Africa. The armada was ready for a takeoff today, but was delayed until tomorrow by a storm in Spain, on their route.

PETER ARNO AND ACTOR TELL OF CLUB FIST FIGHT

Hollywood Celebrities See Hostilities.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The New York cartoonist, Peter Arno, today told his version of how he was knocked "cold" in an Embassy club fist fight early today while celebrities looked on.

Somebody planted a "haymaker" on his chin and he was floored for the count. The knockout followed words between him and Drexel Biddle Steel, entertainer and actor from Philadelphia, who was giving a supper party for Claire Delmar, Swiss actress.

Steel denied he delivered the potent poke and Sally O'Neill, actress, companion of Arno at the club, denied reports that she belabored Steel with a chair.

Steel said Arno was struck by Gordon Butler, Steel's business manager.

Arno, who once had a sensational altercation with Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., said he was struck by Butler after he, Arno, had seized Steel and "popped him" for "annoying my women guests, Miss Sally O'Neill and another young woman."

Among those at the fight scene were Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Gable, and Doris Duke, heiress to the Duke tobacco fortune.

Steel Sends Statement East.

Miss O'Neill verified Steel's statement that it was another man who struck Arno. She said her impression was that the "other man" struck her companion on the chin from the rear, which the ringsiders agreed would have been quite a feat.

Steel wired to New York a statement indicating that he became incensed at something Arno said after Steel had introduced him to Miss Delmar—Arno having come from another table. Steel said Arno approached the Delmar party table and "accused me [Steel] of knowing him when his name was Curtis Peters, interior decorator for Gilda Gray."

"I arose and presented him to Miss Delmar, which she acknowledged," said Steel. "That was not enough for him and I explained at that moment there was just one thing that he lacked—besides being born a man he had failed being born a gentleman.

"Mr. Gordon Butler, when Mr. Arno made a pass at me, stepped in to defend not only Miss Delmar but me, and sent Mr. Arno sailing across the dance floor, much to Miss Delmar's amusement and to Mr. Arno's surprise."

Denies Wielding Chair.

Miss O'Neill said she supposed the way the report started that she hit Steel with a chair was that Steel stood near Arno with a chair in his hand after the knockout and that she rushed over in an attempt to prevent further trouble.

"But I never touched the chair and Mr. Steel put it down when I came between the two of them," she said.

"I suggested to Mr. Arno that he play a selection on the piano, which he did with the orchestra.

"While he was doing this, Mr. Steel passed by my table—I scarcely know him—and said something about it being very nice of me to act the way I did about their little spat.

"Mr. Arno saw him speak to me. He asked me what Mr. Steel had said and when I told him he went over to the other table and struck at Mr. Steel suddenly. Then a third man struck at him from behind and on the chin, knocking him to the floor."

Arno Tells His Side.

"Last night at the club," said Arno, "Steel came over to my table and told me to cut out that talk about his being an intimate friend of mine and that I was going in business with him.

"He went back to his table. A few minutes after that I went over to Hal Grayson, the orchestra leader, and agreed to play the piano for one number. While I was playing the piano I saw that Steel had returned to my table and was annoying my women guests, Sally O'Neill and another young woman.

"I walked back over to the table, grabbed him by the lapel of his coat, pushed him back over to his table, and then popped him. As I did so this man, Gordon Butler—Steel has a butler—smacked me on the side of the head and I went down."

REVEALS MARRIAGE IN MEXICO

END ARGUMENTS TODAY IN SUIT OF MRS. BUSBY

Judge Expected to Give Decision Later.

Final arguments began yesterday before Probate Judge O'Connell in the suit of Mrs. Esther Busby against the First National bank, in which she charges that the bank maladministered the estate of her husband, Leonard A. Busby, so that her equity in it was wiped out.

Attorney Edward R. Johnston, counsel for Mrs. Busby, summed up the facts in the case in his statement. At the time of Mr. Busby's death, on Sept. 9, 1930, the estate had a gross value of $1,593,000. Against this, however, were bank loans of $285,000 and brokers' loans of $661,000, leaving Mrs. Busby an equity of only $652,000.

Within two weeks the falling stock market reduced the gross value of the estate to $1,448,000 and Mrs. Busby's equity to $502,000. At present, according to Mrs. Busby's petition, the estate falls $200,000 short of paying the debts against it. She is suing the bank for $507,344, on the grounds that the institution is liable for her losses because of its failure to sell the securities left by her husband and pay the debts of the estate as soon as it took office as administrator.

Says Law Requires Quick Action.

Attorney Johnston argued that it is the duty of an administrator to liquidate an estate as quickly as possible. He set forth what he termed the fundamental principles binding an administrator of an estate.

"First," he said, "it is the duty of an administrator not to attempt to enhance an estate, but to conserve that which already exists. Second, it is his duty to liquidate promptly for the payment of debts and legacies, and to conserve the balance for the legatees. The administrator is there to accomplish the results the court directs.

"Third, it is required of the administrator that he not speculate with the assets or subject them to hazards. Fourth, it is his duty to adopt an intelligent plan of administration, taking into consideration the nature of the estate and general economic conditions."

Disclaims Blame for Shrinkage.

In his reply on behalf of the bank, Attorney John D. Black contended that no responsible person would consent to administer an estate if the courts hold administrators responsible for shrinkage of assets in their hands.

"The facts in this case," said Attorney Black, "show that the executor acted as it should have, as a prudent man or institution would. Bankers and business men should not be deterred from acting as executors, but if you put the condition on the executor or trustee that he must make good on losses, no responsible person will act in these capacities. It is not the duty of the executor to disburse the estate at once, but primarily to conserve it, and the facts show that the executor acted with this intention."

The arguments will be concluded today, at which time Judge O'Connell is expected to take the case under advisement for a later ruling.

STREET CAR ROBBERS ESCAPE.

Two armed bandits escaped from a street car at Ogden and Washtenaw avenues in revolver fire from the pistol of Robert Caunot, 5045 West 24th place, Cicero, a passenger, after taking $29.06 from the conductor, Thomas Smith, 4908 West 24th place, Cicero.

Plans Final Knot

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The marriage of Frances Williams, blonde musical comedy star and screen player, and Miguel De Sousa, Hollywood business man, in Ensenada, Mexico, a month ago, was disclosed today by Miss Williams, who said they would be married again here next Saturday.

The second ceremony, she said, will take place at the home of a friend, Mrs. Josephine Cooper Pritchard, with Superior Judge D. S. Valentine tying the final knot.

SERRITELLA'S CONVICTION IS UPSET BY COURT

Aid Also Wins Victory in Appellate Decision.

The Appellate court yesterday reversed and remanded for trial the conviction of Daniel A. Serritella, city sealer under a former Republican regime, and Harry Hochstein, his chief deputy in that office. They had been convicted of conspiracy by a jury and sentenced by Judge James J. Kelly to serve one year in the county jail and to pay fines of $2,000 each.

The prosecution charged that Serritella, alleged political henchman of Al Capone, used his office to "fix" short weight cases against Chicago merchants in return for contributions. The defense held that these contributions were for political campaigns, but the state contended that they were for Serritella's enrichment. Evidence showed that Serritella took foodstuffs from the merchants whose scales he was to supervise to feed constituents and ward heelers.

State May Seek Rehearing.

State's Attorney Courtney, informed of the Appellate court decision, ordered his first assistant, Grover C. Niemeyer, to study the record with a view to petitioning for a rehearing in the Appellate court. This move failing, the state's attorney said, evidence at the first trial will be studied as the preliminary step in seeking a second trial.

The Appellate court decision, delivered by Justice William H. McSurely and concurred in by Justices David F. Matchett and John M. O'Connor, said in part:

"It is a common occurrence in this community for persons of all sorts to promote, in the name of charity, balls, card parties, distributions of Christmas baskets, and like affairs, and to solicit, more or less pointedly, contributions from those who are thought to be vulnerable to such requests. The donors may feel subjected to a kind of immoral coercion, but neither such soliciting nor responding is yet a crime."

"Guilt Not Established.

The opinion declared that the state had failed to establish the guilt of the two defendants beyond a reasonable doubt. The prosecution depended almost entirely on the testimony of one man, L. M. Connor, an assistant branch manager of the Consumers Store company, the opinion pointed out, while the defense produced 13 deputy sealers and 12 merchants who said that no distinction was made between short-weighting merchants and others in soliciting funds.

"The evidence presented the well known custom of a political leader with mixed motives of distributing Christmas baskets of food to people of his ward or district and soliciting to this end contributions from persons with whom he may have official contact," the opinion said.

Arrest High School Pupil for Taking Gun to Class

William Sheets, 17 years old, 8044 Maryland avenue, a pupil at the Hirsch High school, was arrested yesterday for carrying a revolver to classes. Complaint was made to the Grand Crossing police by Principal Arthur M. Nichelson. Young Sheets told the police that he had bought the gun from another boy for $4 and was carrying it to school merely to show.

BRIDE OF MEEKER

Mrs. Katherine Carson Meeker.

Lawrence A. Meeker, who was recently divorced by his second wife, Mrs. Ruth Campbell Meeker, yesterday took as his bride Mrs. Katherine Hughart Carson of 25 East Walton place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George L. Robinson of the McCormick Theological seminary in the presence of a few friends and the bride's father, William Oden Hughart of Grand Rapids, Mich. After a few days the couple will be at home at 25 East Walton place.

Mr. Meeker, an investment banker widely known in Chicago and New York social circles, is a son of Mrs. George W. Meeker of 1411 North State parkway and a nephew of Arthur Meeker. He has been prominent in politics on the near north side, having been a candidate for Republican committeeman of the 42d ward in 1928. His first wife was Miss Lois Field of Philadelphia.

Gunmen and Girl Rob Hotel, Kidnap Manager

Two gunmen, accompanied by a blonde woman, went into the lobby of the Ridgeview hotel at 901 Maple avenue, Evanston, last night. Finding the manager, E. S. Braden alone, they compelled him to open a safe, from which they took $700. The robbers then took him with them in their car, releasing him at Addison and Herndon streets. He reported the robbery to the Town Hall police.

PARENTS VETO HEIRESS' TRIP TO WED COUNT

Fahrneys Refuse Money for Jaunt to Chile.

The hopes of Mrs. Merry Fahrney Parker-Pickering, 22 year old heiress, to join and marry her sweetheart, Count George di Georgio, in Chile, whither he is now bound, were somewhat deflated yesterday.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory H. Fahrney, 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, who are hostile to the match, announced that they would not finance her contemplated trip. This just about settles that problem, because, it was said, the young heiress has no independent income at present, although some day she will share in the $6,000,000 fortune left by her grandfather, Dr. Peter Fahrney, the late patent medicine king.

Count Hopes for Chilean Divorce.

Meanwhile the dejected count is on the high seas, bound for Chile, where he expects to get a final decree of divorce to enable him to marry the Oak Park girl. He sailed abruptly from New York on Saturday, the impetus being given by police and immigration authorities. Mrs. Parker-Pickering bade him good-by at the pier.

Since then Count di Georgio's antecedents have come in for a searching examination in various cities, and suspicion has been raised about his title. The investigation revealed several things, among them the fact that the count is an expert bridge player. In fact, he is reputed to be a very expert player.

Report He Wins $1,800 in Two Nights.

In Cincinnati, it is reported, he recently won $1,800 in two nights, and in New York he was admitted to exclusive bridge clubs.

All this, however, is immaterial to Mrs. Parker-Pickering, who since her return from New York on Sunday has been unsuccessfully trying to reconcile her parents to her marriage with Count di Georgio. Despite their objections the Oak Park girl insists she will marry him. She has known the count five years, she said. Following her divorce from Hugh Parker-Pickering she went to New York last month to marry Di Georgio.

GEN. JOHNSON HITS AT CRITICS IN SPEECH HERE

Declares NRA Will Not License Press.

is wholly repugnant to me," he said. "Even as a soldier in the war I did not believe in any suppression of news, except as such news helped the enemy, news of projected military movements or conditions of supply and transport.

"I do not believe in any restrictions whatever on the press today. I am now going to take an official step which I think will level this silly bugaboo forever. In my official opinion there is no authority in NRA to license a newspaper. I think that the licensing sections of the statute must be read with the free press clause of the constitution. I think that, together, they clearly preclude the idea of any intent of congress to create any right in NRA to license the press.

"Until that statement is overturned by the courts that administrative interpretation is the law. Since we shall not license, the question cannot get to the courts. Licensing has not been done. It will not be done because it cannot be done."

RECALLS HIS PREDICTION

"When I undertook this job," Gen. Johnson said at the beginning of his address, "I had an accurate vision of at least a small part of the future. I said publicly at the very outset that to take it was just like mounting the guillotine on a bet that the ax would not work, that the early applause would cease and soon the air would be full of dead cats.

"I had been through this thing before. I knew what it would do to a certain few and I knew their methods of fighting back because I know them intimately and well.

"I knew that it was a law that recognized the rights of the little fellow as well as the big fellow. I knew that it stepped on a few toes, and some of the biggest, kickingest toes in the country. I knew they had been used to trampling anybody who opposed them and I knew that as soon as they dared they would turn on the NRA. I was deliberately threatened with this attack some months ago and at least it is no surprise."

"Time to End Fetishes."

He then set up his simile of the Assyrian witch doctors and brought this down to the days of Bob Ingersoll, who, he said, deluded the farmers into voting for the tariff by waving the bloody shirt.

"It is time to wake up and get rid of savage fetishes," he said. "If ever a man went into office on the promise to take care of the average business man and the average man—whether in industry or in farming—that man was Franklin Roosevelt. His guiding principle is to try to rescue America for Americans and in my opinion, regardless of the mistakes his aids may make, your hope lies in a single man.

"In Washington I heard the President say the other day that he would not censor any department of government. He wants the truth told. He insists on getting every point of view. Standing back of a great turmoil of ideas is as cool and courageous a mind as we have in the country. In a crisis like this you have got to follow a leader."

Coming to the question of a free press he said:

"I am as devoted as any of these critics to the constitutional principle of a free press. Nothing will ever be done in or by NRA to impair it. When I undertook this job I said it was going to be done in a goldfish bowl. Every hearing on every point has been wide open. Every facility has been set up to receive complaints and every constructive suggestion has been adopted.

"Even in the formation of policies, responsible representatives of the press have been taken into confidence. Twice a week an open press conference is held and in these conferences journalists have always been urged not to temper their questions and not to soften their criticism."

Question of the Constitution.

On the alleged unconstitutionality of the NRA, which he called "another hobgoblin," Gen. Johnson said:

"All that NRA has done is to put no less than 4,000,000 hopeless, destitute people back to work and raise the wages of millions more to something more than a subsistence level. It has wiped out the sweatshop and child labor and nearly all the vicious practices that have beset American industry for a generation and it has done so without impairing constitutional limitations that have prevented these results for a generation.

"Does any one suppose that a revolting ancestry ever expected that in writing the constitution they intended to perpetuate these abominations?

"The constitution was no charter guaranteeing such Wall street freebooting as the senate investigations have disclosed. It intended a measure of freedom and control for everybody. It is a constitution for all the people, and as far as NRA is concerned, we welcome the first test in the courts. The talk of dictator is just another bugaboo set up by the witch doctors for screaming purposes."

Cites "Only Compulsion."

The only compulsion in the recovery act, Gen. Johnson said, is that industry cannot sweat its labor and that every industry which wants to organize for its own protection must deal with representatives chosen by its own labor.

"This does not mean any particular representative and it does not require employés to choose any representatives at all if they do not want to," he declared.

"The statement that any industry has been coerced into a code is simply not true.

"The whole trouble with our few opponents is that they are seeing things under the bed. My only request is that the gentlemen of the fourth estate give us a chance and not lend themselves to this primitive witch doctor dancing."

DOZEN NEW CODES APPROVED, LIFTING THE TOTAL TO 98

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—NRA today announced approval by President Roosevelt of a dozen new codes, lifting the total in force to 98.

A code for brokerage houses was first in the list, with piano manufacturing, business furniture, office equipment, and washing and ironing machinery among the larger ones in the list.

The other codes signed covered buffing and polishing wheel and buffing and polishing composition industries, toy and plaything manufacturing, men's garters and suspenders, floor and wall clay tile, and leather and wool knit gloves.

RETURNS TO THE PRESS

"The press has a responsibility to be fair. It owes that responsibility not to government but to the people who rely on government at a desperate time like this for their salvation.

"Is it fair to try to disturb that reliance by telling the public that it ought to fear NRA because it threatens a dictator or impairs the freedom of the press when the facts are as I have stated them?

"The newspapers know that NRA has nothing whatever to do with farm relief or public works or monetary policy or home or farm loans. Is branding NRA as a cause of every dissatisfaction setting up a hobgoblin and screaming at it? Is that a discharge of the public responsibility that goes with the great public power of the press?

Ready for the "Dead Cats."

"We are ready for the dead cats. But let's have some real ones. Let the few powerful men who have opposed parts of this law from the day it was introduced in congress step out and give their real reasons.

"They want the benefits of this act but none of its burdens. They want to organize and combine and escape the inhibitions of the Sherman act, but they don't want to give anything in return for these benefits. They don't want public safeguards against the exercise of these new rights of theirs.

"They have been asking for their benefits under this law ever since the war. At the depth of the depression they filled Washington with their clamor and acceded to most of the clauses to which they now object.

Insists on Safeguards.

"Well, it just can't be done. Congress will not permit what they want. No honest public official can give them what they want. There must be public safeguards.

"What is the real reason for these complaints? Is it that we have raised wages and reduced hours of work and thus increased costs in order to relieve the despair of four million breadwinners—with dependents, perhaps ten to twelve million people—and that this is contrary to the best interests of the nation?

"Is the real reason that in permitting the great industries to organize and coöperate for their own protection and welfare we have insisted on provisions for the protection of the public, and on the elimination of piratical and cut-throat trade practices and the unrestrained exploitation of the good old days?"

REPLY TO HIS CRITICS

There will be mistakes in the NRA, Gen. Johnson said, in the future as there have been in the past, but there will be a general upward pull. To his critics he said:

"What better have they to offer? We will be glad to take on any of these gentlemen, no matter how critical, and give them high responsibility for curing the very things they now complain about. We have done that more than once and we are developing a plan now to do it on a much wider scale by a system of rotation.

"Never in the history of our government was there so much opportunity for service and so little excuse for sterile sniping. NRA is neither a dictatorship nor a bureaucracy. It is a forum for national planning where every opposing interest has a voice.

"Who argues that a selfish minority in any group ought to be permitted to frustrate the action of the rest and destroy the forward movement of a great nation? There are always about ten per cent in any great movement who can be counted on not to play the game. We have our ten per centers, too. But they cannot stop the NRA. If it works unfairly anywhere we will correct it."

THE NEWSPAPER CODE

In an interview at the Drake hotel last evening Gen. Johnson was asked why his administration objected to the inclusion of the freedom of the press clause in the pending newspaper code. He replied:

"The NRA has objected to this proposal for the following reason: We consider it superfluous, and even more—improper—for the newspaper publishers to ask the President to obey the constitution. In effect, they want the President to contract with them and say: 'Now, boys, you don't need to worry; I won't violate the constitution.'

"The freedom of the press is explicitly provided in the constitution. If this administration tried to infringe upon it, it wouldn't be twelve hours before the papers would go into the courts and get an injunction against us. We are not going through any revolution in the program and we're not heading toward any dictatorship. I don't care what others say about it, we are administering this act according to law."

Refers to Licensing Idea.

The distaste of the publishers toward the idea of licensing newspapers arose in many cases from an honest misapprehension, Gen. Johnson said.

"In the President's blanket code," he explained, "there was reference to the possibility that business enterprizes might be licensed. But when we got down to consideration of a specific newspaper code the word 'licensing' was dispensed with. There never was any intention to license newspapers."

Gen. Johnson said that the rumors that he was going to resign are untrue.

"I have no political ambitions," he said. "If this program fails and the people don't want it, it just must be that way. If I pull so many boners that I believe I am embarrassing the President I will be willing to step out. My salary is only $6,000 a year."

Denies "Cracking Down."

He denied that he had ever mentioned "cracking down on Ford."

"So far as I know Ford has not violated any provisions of the automobile code," he said. "But on the matter of bids the law says the industry must 'agree' to the code, as well as observe it. When they called me up and asked whether Ford had agreed I said no. Ford was therefore deprived of the right to bid. In other words, Ford may be observing the code, but he hasn't agreed to it."

Gen. Johnson, who was accompanied from Washington by his secretary and by Edward F. O'Grady, assistant secretary of labor, left last night for Minneapolis, where he will speak today. After a swing through the central west he will return to Washington on Nov. 13.

SANITARY BOARD AND PWA CLASH OVER LOAN PACT

Project to Start in Two Weeks, Bowler Says.

Representatives of the public works administration and trustees of the sanitary district held an all day conference yesterday on the contract for the loan of $8,000,000 of federal funds for sewage plant construction in Chicago. At the conclusion Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, expressed an opinion that the differences would be ironed out and work would be started within two weeks.

A number of changes were made in the 32 page contract, which had been drafted by Lloyd H. Landau, solicitor for the PWA, to make the terms conform to Illinois statutes. When the contract is agreed upon in final form, it will be accepted formally at a meeting of the sanitary district trustee.

The debate over the contract was heated, judging from the shouting that reached the outer office of Frederick Z. Marks, counsel for the PWA in Illinois, at 120 South La Salle street. When the conferees emerged, they declared that "progress" had been made.

Battle Over Plea for $112,000,000.

A dispute developed, however, when Landau was queried on the chances of obtaining an additional $112,000,000, needed to complete the entire sewage disposal program made necessary by the United States Supreme court decree in the lengthy lake diversion litigation.

"This is the first time we have known what to do about obtaining any government funds," asserted Mr. Bowler.

"That isn't a fair statement," retorted Landeau.

"It is," said Bowler. "We have never received a postal card or telegram or anything official from Washington to show us what is required."

"You're the only one that doesn't know then," replied Landau. "Everybody else knows what's wanted."

"Yes, I have read all about it in the newspapers," said Bowler, "but we want it in black and white, certified and signed by government officials."

Woodhull Complains of Rush.

"It took the government a month to draft this contract for the $8,000,000 loan" said Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee of the district, "and our lawyers have had only two days in which to look it over."

Then Landau launched into a discussion of how a portion of the entire sewage disposal program might be completed through easy money.

"The only practical way, in the light of the financial condition of the district," said Landau, "would be to convey the properties of the district, probably a major portion of them, to the government. Thereupon the government would undertake such portion of the work as it found advisable, since the whole program would take six or seven years, and this is an emergency. We are creating work for the present.

"It will be impossible for the government to finance the whole program. It will take only two years of the work. After the construction is completed the plants will be leased to the district, with a rental charged over the period of the lease to amortize the cost."

Says Sewer Tax Is Necessary.

Landau also stated that it would be necessary for the district to obtain authority from the Illinois legislature to charge a sewer tax, which would be used to repay the government should other sources of revenue not produce enough. A new contract would have to be obtained for the sale of current by the Public Service company of Northern Illinois to the district, he declared.

"In addition, some new method of charging the packers for sewage disposal must be reached," said Landau. "Their waste amounts to the same as for 1,200,000 people."

The district obtained authority from the legislature in 1929 to measure the waste from the packing plants and the packers went into court for an injunction. The litigation is still pending in the United States District court. Landau declared that this delay was "inexcusable."

PLAN PROPOSED FOR NEW AIRPORT ON NEAR SO. SIDE

Frederick H. Bartlett, veteran Chicago real estate man, yesterday announced a plan to build an airport a mile long and a mile and a half wide on the near south side. The project would cost about $60,000,000 he said, and he suggested that the government finance it as a part of the $3,300,000,000 public works program.

Mr. Bartlett designated the area bounded by 26th street on the north, Indiana avenue on the west, 39th street on the south and the Illinois Central tracks on the east as the site for the airport. This area contains 574 acres, of which the city already owns 184 acres in streets, parks, and alleys. South Park avenue, 31st and 35th streets would be depressed into subways under this area, he said.

The area at present is Chicago's "blighted front yard," he said, and the airport construction would remove the city's largest slum area. Mr. Bartlett will present the plan to the Chicago Real Estate board, the aero commission, the city plan commission and other civic bodies for consideration.

Schlitz Enzyme Control Assures Pure Beer

Obviously the ingredients must be pure to start with. And they are. Commercial malt used by most brewers is not good enough for SCHLITZ. SCHLITZ makes its own malt from the finest barley—carefully selected by its own experts. It uses the choicest hops. It uses the purest yeast.

But even the spending of millions to insure purity is going only part of the way.

Good flour alone doesn't insure good bread. It requires a good baker also to turn out a digestible health-giving loaf.

By precise Enzyme Control in the brewing processes, SCHLITZ utilizes every atom of these fine ingredients and breaks them down into a solution—predigested and usable by the system for its nourishment and well-being.

Meriden, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—An Illinois Central railroad bridge was flaming tonight between here and Cleghorn, presumably fired by pickets, authorities said.

Officials at the dispatcher's office of the railroad at Cherokee said the bridge was destroyed and that a repair train already had been sent out with equipment and men.

They said the structure was one of the main line spans and that regular Illinois Central traffic would be tied up for several days.

Refuses to Send Troops.

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Gov. Herring tonight declined to order troops to Sioux City as a result of farm strike violence there.

The burning of a railway bridge and firing on a freight train were among the acts of violence that resulted in a request for troops.

The governor said he conferred this afternoon with four Sioux City business men and that he had talked by telephone earlier with the mayor and sheriff there. He felt they could cope with the situation. He would only send troops after written request, he said.

After a conference with legislators from the strike area, Gov. Herring decided leaders of the strike should be given the opportunity to restore order.

The legislators assured him, Gov. Herring continued, that 98 per cent of the farmers in the northwest Iowa territory are opposed to picketing. One legislator informed him that farmers who were picketing highways were urging truckers to turn back peaceably but that non-farm groups were the sponsors of violence.

The governor talked with three officers of the Woodbury County Holiday association, sponsors of the strike, and assured him they are opposed to violence, Gov. Herring added. They are Ed Ellison of Moville, president; William Daniels, secretary; and E. N. Ball, treasurer, both of Sergeant Bluffs.

Explains Word Weapons.

The governor urged peace officers in the strike area to build up resistance to violence among their own people.

John Chalmers, president of the Iowa Farmers' Holiday association, summoned by the governor this afternoon issued the following statement as he left the governor's office:

"I wish to make clear as to what I referred to when I used the word 'weapons': I was referring to hogs, cattle, grain of all kinds which the farmer had on his farm. I fully realized when I made that statement that a farmer has no other weapons.

"I want to deny the part of the article which appeared in the press, Sunday, Nov. 5, which read:

"'When I said weapons, I mean weapons.'"

"What I actually said was:

"'If this is all Henry Wallace and his brain trust have to offer the farmer I propose to send the call to the members of the Iowa Farmers' Holiday association to strike with every weapon at their command on Monday morning.'"

Mayor Asks for Troops.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Bellicose farmer strikers, the burning of a railway bridge, and the shooting at a freight train brought an urgent appeal from Mayor W. D. Hayes for National Guard troops tonight.

Only nineteen head of cattle, from farms just outside the city limits, reached the market by truck today, although there were other receipts by rail.

The mayor asked for troops after a conference with sheriffs Tice of Woodbury and Rippey of Plymouth counties, a federal department of justice agent, and a representative of the state bureau of criminal investigation. The officials also conferred with business leaders.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Picketing today was reported under control in the milk strike and highways generally were cleared for travel. Only occasional reports of milk dumping were received and those were from sharpshooters among the pickets who toured the roads in their cars and intercepted farmers before they had picked up their guards.

Despite the apparent easing of the tension, the directors of the Marshfield Milk Products Cooperative association and the distributors who pasteurize and retail their milk voted today to pay a checkoff tribute of 90 cents per hundred pounds to local farm organizations for all milk sold in the city for wholesale or retail purposes for the duration of the strike.

TAKEN ILL

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink.

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Stricken suddenly ill, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, famous singer, was in Mercy hospital today. Her physician, Dr. Charles M. Fox, said it is planned to keep her quiet for several days. It was indicated she is under observation for what may be appendicitis. The 72 year old contralto was near exhaustion from work in the NRA drive.

60 HOUR WEEK FOR TEMPORARY POSTAL CREWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Postmaster General James A. Farley will work the temporary employés of his department during the Christmas rush on the basis of a 60 hour week.

Despite the NRA move to spread work by lowering hours, Farley announced today that the temporary workers he expects to hire from the ranks of the idle will "be limited to 10 hours a day." He admitted that the work is "arduous and involves severe strain."

In employing part time workers for the Christmas rush Farley has instructed postmasters to coöperate with local relief administrations, war veterans' organizations, and local charities. Workers will be taken from the ranks of the idle only if they are capable of standing the rush of work and the 10 hour day, Farley stressed.

Farley also called to the attention of his postmasters that "these temporary employés will be given work without regard to the civil service rules and regulations," opening the door to patronage. Workers will be paid 55 cents an hour.

DISMISSES SUIT TO TIE UP EFTAX $100,000 ACCOUNT

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday dismissed the action seeking to tie up the $100,000 account of Constantine S. Eftax in the Harris Trust and Savings bank on the grounds that the sum was actually the property of Samuel Insull. The court held that Eftax, having been shown to be an actual person and not a fictitious character, must be a party to the suit. The bill of complaint was filed by Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson in behalf of Gus Lowry of Sullivan, Ind., an Insull creditor.

AAA INCLINED TO TRY WEATHERING CORN BELT STORM

Contented with Measures Already Undertaken.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The agricultural adjustment administration today appeared determined to weather the corn belt's storm of criticism with a final stand on the ultimate merit of the farm relief measures the government has already taken.

In spite of militant demands from farm strike leaders in the midwest for immediate drastic federal action to fix farm prices and insure higher farm income, it was stated definitely at the AAA that no new "program" was to be offered.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace declared he would carry this word personally to the farmers next Friday, when he speaks at Des Moines, Ia. Neither then nor before, he said, will any price fixing or other new farm relief scheme be advanced by the AAA. On the contrary, he will attempt to explain, to the strikers' satisfaction, the workings of the farm programs already in effect or about to begin.

Modifies Corn Loan Plan.

At the same time, however, it was learned that the farm adjustment administration is to broaden its corn loan program under which farmers are to receive federal advances of 50 cents a bushel on corn still held by them. Originally it had been planned to make the loans on Number 1 corn at Chicago, but this was later altered to include fourteen additional marketing points.

Now, it was reported, the AAA intends to announce shortly that loans are to be made on corn on the farm in "net-producing" corn states. The corn program is to conform as nearly as possible with the cotton loan plan under which producers receive a flat 10 cents a pound loan on cotton still held by them. The corn-loan plan will be altered, it was learned, to provide for flat 59 cents a bushel loans on corn held by farmers in definite areas. The change will mean that farmers will not have to finance the transportation of their corn to terminal markets.

To Stand Firm.

The attitude of AAA leaders today appeared to be one of last ditch insistence that the farm relief steps already inaugurated are the only feasible approach to the farm problem. Mr. Peek declared he was not "afraid of price fixing," but felt that proposals as drastic as those advanced last week by five midwestern governors are dangerous and ineffective. The AAA is already fixing prices in milk, tobacco and peach markets and indirectly establishing a "bottom" for corn and cotton prices through federal loans.

EMPLOYMENT ON INCREASE, JURY RECORDS SHOW

A further increase in employment in Chicago was indicated yesterday when 400 veniremen appeared before Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court in answer to jury summonses. Only 52 of them were jobless, while in September 76 of 300 veniremen were out of work; on Oct. 1 there were 85 without jobs out of 400, and on Oct. 15 there were 77 jobless out of 400.

Horner Plan Solves Illinois Farm Foreclosure Problems

BY PAUL POTTER.

Farm foreclosures and forcible eviction of delinquent families such as caused Iowa farmers to mob a judge and, more recently, led farmers in western states to defy the law and to picket highways, have been virtually stopped in Illinois.

So unusual and so successful have been the measures for peaceful settlements between debtors and creditors in Illinois that in recent weeks Gov. Horner, sponsor of the plan, has been requested by federal agencies to assist in setting up similar operations in every other central western state.

States Adopt Horner Plan.

The Horner plan of debt conciliation committees already has been adopted in several states since Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the federal farm credit adminstration, wired governors of all states two weeks ago advising them to create farm debt adjusting agencies. The plan has been indorsed by judges, insurance companies, banks, and farm organizations.

At Morgenthau's request, Walter W. McLaughlin, director of the Illinois department of agriculture, has just completed a tour in which debt conciliation machinery was created in Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Missouri, and Nebraska. Other states, including Iowa and Michigan, are considering such steps.

Farm foreclosures have been practically ended in Wisconsin, according to Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Wisconsin executive committee, also in charge of the farm credit administration for the St. Paul land bank district.

Inexpensive and Legal.

The Illinois plan is an inexpensive and legal means of arbitrating issues arising between debtors and creditors on farm loans.

Early this year, when laws were found unconstitutional as passed in Iowa and other states to prevent foreclosures, Gov Horner created a state agricultural conciliatory committee of nine men to work with Director McLaughlin. The nine were selected without regard to political ties or farm organization allegiance.

This state committee in turn selected county committees, members of which were appointed by Gov. Horner to serve without salaries. These committees are now functioning in 53 counties of Illinois and have aided in gaining peaceful settlements on hundreds of debts which were nearing the foreclosure stage.

Hailed by Mortgage Holders.

Large insurance companies, the federal land bank, private banks and other holders of farm mortgages "in distress" through inability of farmers to meet interest and taxes with the low prices of farm crops, are welcoming the impartial judgment of a committee of men selected for their knowledge of local conditions and for their experience in farm real estate or banking. Their recommendations on what the indebted farmer and his farm can offer in the future for the mortgage holder, according to Director McLaughlin, is usually considered final.

More than half of the cases presented never reach the point of official arbitration. Encumbered farmers are placed in touch with existing credit agencies in some instances, while in others the knowledge that all factors in the case will be aired before a tribunal brings voluntary concessions which result in a quick settlement.

Horner Wins Judges' Aid.

Gov. Horner wrote recently to all judges in the state before whom foreclosures cases were pending or to whom such cases would be brought, explaining the possibilities of conciliating under the state plan. He reports "wholehearted coöperation" from the judges without any one having to resort to illegal measures or to forceful evictions of worthy farm families.

All of the so-called distress loans of the federal government in Illinois, on which the St. Louis land bank holds the paper, are to be settled by county conciliation committees. Wood Netherland, regional federal farm credit administrator, has declared his willingness to abide by the committee recommendations, indicating he will pay any costs connected with such settlements and "save the land bank money and grief as well."

BUSINESS MAN MISSING; FEAR HE'S KIDNAPED

Arthur H. Higham, president of the Chicago Metal Specialties corporation, 320 Union Park court, has been missing since Oct. 30 and his wife fears that he may have been kidnaped for ransom.

She reported those fears yesterday to Albany Park police and Attorney John V. Clinhin. Higham's brother, George Higham, also notified police. He said his missing brother had been worried over business.

Higham is 43 years old. His home is at 4851 North Lawndale avenue. He left home early on Oct. 30, telling his wife he was going to call on some customers to make collections. He was driving an expensive car. He failed to return home that night or subsequently or to get in touch with his family.

DETECTIVE TALE WRITER LEAVES REAL MYSTERY

John Hoffman, writer of dime detective tales, may have concocted a real life plot by hiding a half million dollars' worth of stocks and bonds in his home at 210 Keystone avenue, River Forest, Probate Judge O'Connell was told yesterday.

Hoffman, who died Dec. 26, 1928, at the age of 63, lived alone in the big house. It has been locked up, its furnishings undisturbed, since his death. Yesterday Judge O'Connell granted Dr. Elmer Hoffman of Sharon, Wis., a brother, an order to search the house for the suspected treasure trove. The search will be made today, the judge was informed.

Dr. Hoffman told Judge O'Connell that shortly before his death, his brother told him that he was worth $500,000, which he had invested in stocks and bonds. Following his death and the probate of his will only $36,000 in assets was uncovered, of which $30,000 was the value of the house.

IDLE PERSONS IN WISCONSIN WILL GET JOBS

U. S. Outlines Project to End Relief.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The federal government is planning huge expenditures in Wisconsin to give work to all idle persons, Adjt. Gen. Ralph M. Immell announced tonight upon his return from the national capital.

The purpose of the plan, which proposes to give forest jobs to many of Wisconsin's idle, is to give persons now on relief an income with which they can buy and help make the NRA effective, it was said.

Wages would be paid from federal relief funds granted to the state periodically and an initial grant of $3,000,000 would be made for purchases of tools and materials.

Jobs at Minimum Wage.

"Instead of the federal government continuing to furnish part of relief costs, those able to work would be given jobs at minimum wages set now in each community by the NRA," Immell said.

Wisconsin is to be the experimental grounds for the project, which will provide 1,166,000 man hours of labor. It was estimated 17,000 persons would be given work immediately.

"This intermediate public works program would be built around projects not requiring extensive architectural or structural engineering and which could be put into operation without delay," said Immell.

Relief for Disabled.

"The relief activity of the state then would center on citizens unable to accept employment."

The particular projects discussed for the present were those set up by the conservation department for forest development in 36 counties. Immell said the plan was proposed by him and two other state officials. Federal officers told him they were confident the grant of money could be obtained.

SOLDIER IS HELD ON CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED RAPE

Alfred G. Ransel, soldier stationed at Fort Sheridan, was arrested in Highland Park early yesterday on a charge of attempted rape. The complainant was Miss Ruth Potonen, 19 years old, 708 South Sheridan road, Highland Park, whom Ransel was accompanying home from a dance. He struck her several times, the girl alleged, and attempted to overpower her. At a hearing before Police Magistrate Herman Schwery, Ransel denied the attempted rape, but admitted striking Miss Potonen because, he said, she was paying too much attention to another man at the dance. The soldier was sentenced to forty days in the Lake county jail when he was unable to pay a $200 fine for beating the girl.

RUSSIAN POLICY OF U. S. HAS ECHO IN THE FAR EAST

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—With Soviet Commissar Litvinov arriving tomorrow to dicker with the President for recognition of Russia, it became known today that the key to several recent moves of the Roosevelt administration is to be found in the far east.

It was, it appeared, with an eye chiefly to their effect upon Japan that the President took steps toward the recognition of Russia three weeks ago and also within the last few days announced that the United States fleet will be withdrawn from the Pacific temporarily for a visit to Atlantic waters next spring.

Farm Relief Theory Dropped.

Because of the coincidence in occurrence the Roosevelt move toward the recognition of Russia was widely connected with the farmers' strike in the corn belt. With administration officials stressing potential Russian purchases of American pork, cotton and other farm products in the event of the establishment of diplomatic relations there was room for interpreting the policy as a step to placate the rebellious farmers.

It turns out, however, that the negotiations were initiated privately by the President before the farm strike materialized and that they were really linked with the war scare in the far east. The tension between Japan and Russia was increasing daily in the Chinese railroad controversy and it began to look as if Japan might begin armed hostilities at any time.

Certain administration officials who have been maneuvering for months for the recognition of Russia made representations to the President that he could make an effective move for peace in the far east by a friendly gesture toward the soviet government.

Move Seems Effective.

The theory was that the reconciliation of the United States and Russia, implying that America might side with the Muscovites in a far eastern war and that the soviets might procure war munitions here, would give Japan pause. The President acted on the advice with results bearing out the theory to a remarkable degree.

In his reply to President Roosevelt, President Kalinin stressed the peace stabilization aspect of a restoration of diplomatic relations between America and Russia and the inspired Russian press interpretation was that he had the threatening situation in Manchuria chiefly in mind.

The Japanese took the same view of the Roosevelt move. They were completely upset by it and promptly called home Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador to the United States, for failure to give warning of so untoward an event. Also Japan calmed down in the row with Russia and nothing more has been heard of the war scare.

Arouses Resentment in Japan.

The Roosevelt move, however, aroused much resentment in Japan against the United States. It was widely proclaimed in the Japanese press to be another demonstration of American antagonism to Japan. The Hoover administration's attempted interference with Japanese absorption of Manchuria was recalled.

It was pointed out that the United States was continuing to maintain virtually its entire fleet in the Pacific to which it was sent in 1930 ostensibly for a temporary stay only. The Japanese jingoes denounced the President's invitation to the Russian government to discuss recognition as fresh proof that America is preparing for war with Japan.

Then last week he acted to placate Japan. He announced the withdrawal of the American fleet from the Pacific. It was to be only for a visit to the Atlantic, but the official statement did not definitely commit the administration to the return of the fleet to the Pacific. It was to enable the fleet to perfect itself in maneuvers on the Atlantic coast and to enable personnel from the east to visit their homes.

Such Purpose Denied.

That the move was intended to placate Japan was denied for publication, but it was whispered that this was exactly its purpose.

Japanese officials, with what appeared to many Americans as a good deal of effrontery, have been clamoring for years for the withdrawal of the American fleet from the Pacific. Only a few months ago, Yosuke Matsuoka, Japanese delegate at Geneva, said:

"I believe that a return of the United States scouting fleet to its normal base in the Atlantic would appeal to the Japanese people as one of the greatest gestures of good will and peaceful neighborliness that the United States could make. It would usher in a new era of relations between the two countries."

The Japanese also brought great pressure to bear on the United States to desist from its plans to build its navy up to treaty strength. Mr. Roosevelt refused to accede to these pleas.

New Naval Program.

The navy department is now evolving a program of construction in addition to that to be financed from the 238 million dollars of public works easy money. It comprises these three objectives:

1. A one year new construction project to cost 90 million to 100 million dollars for the building, principally, of cruisers and aircraft carriers.

2. A resolution, for which congressional approval will be sought, committing the nation to the principle of a steady, efficient process of replacement of the fleet over a long term of years as parts of it grow over age.

3. Provision for temporary quickening of the pace of replacement in order to take up the slack of recent years when no adequate steps to offset warship obsolescence were taken. Replacements on such an overnormal basis would cost 150 million dollars for next year, the department has estimated.

Complementary to the building program an increase in the naval personnel is being considered. Some officers are urging that 2,000 be added to the enlisted force.

JAPAN WARNS RUSSIA TO STOP MOBILIZING TROOPS IN FAR EAST

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Circumstantial accounts by the Rengo [Japanese] News agency and Japanese language newspapers said today that Foreign Minister Hirota had advised soviet Russia to decrease its military concentrations in far eastern Siberia.

This advice, according to the account, was given by Hirota to Ambassador Yurenev of the soviet in a three hour meeting late yesterday [Monday]. The suggested reductions, it was said, would follow the example of the American plan to end naval concentration in the Pacific ocean in 1934.

The Japanese foreign office instructed its consul at Vladivostok to deny categorically to soviet authorities reports that a squadron of Japanese military airplanes had flown over soviet territory. The instruction was issued after the war ministry learned soviet authorities had protested to the consul at Vladivostok following reports that eight Japanese scouting planes and one bomber had penetrated 20 miles into soviet territory Nov. 3.

Figures on British Idle Drop 448,253 in a Year

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The ministry of labor announced today that 2,298,753 unemployed persons were listed on the registers of the employment exchanges of Great Britain on Oct. 23. The figure was 448,253 less than on the same date one year previously and the reduction was 37,974 from Sept. 25 of this year.

KEEP HANDS OFF SIBERIA, RUSSIA WARNS JAPANESE

Nation Hails 16th Year of Bolshevik Rule.

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The soviet government's hope for a successful outcome of the Washington recognition negotiations and a sharp warning to Japan to keep hands off in the soviet far east were sounded tonight by V. M. Molotov, president of the council of commissars.

He spoke in the presence of Josef Stalin, President Kalinin, and other high officials of the government and the communist party at a solemn meeting in the Moscow Opera house hailing the 16th anniversary of the October revolution, which will be celebrated throughout the country tomorrow.

Earlier in the day, the revolutionary war council and the communist internationale joined in voicing hopes for a world revolution in two separate manifestos.

"Train Each Soldier!" Is Order.

The war council called on red army chiefs "to train each Red soldier to be devoted in heart and soul to the world proletarian revolution." Sure of its own power, the order said, "the Red army stands on the soviet border for the defense of the peaceful labor workers and peasants and the peaceful policy of the soviet union."

The executive committee of the communist internationale urged workers and laboring masses "to join the ranks with the proletariat U. S. S. R. to force a uniform revolutionary front against fascism and war, against Japan and against world imperialism, for the second socialist five year plan, for the Chinese soviets and for a soviet Germany."

Molotov, in his address, said President Roosevelt's action in initiating discussions looking to a resumption of diplomatic relations is "one of the proofs strengthening our international position, which was attained because peace has been the keystone of our foreign policy."

Points to Significance.

But, he went on, "the significance of the negotiations between Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov and President Roosevelt is not limited only to relations between the U. S. S. R. and the United States—but affect the relationships of the whole world.

"We cannot foretell the result of the Washington discussions, but we know our foreign policy has been successful elsewhere thus far and we hope to see new successes."

[Litvinov is due to arrive in the United States today.]

Turning to the Japanese question, Molotov maintained that "the carrying out of our policy of peace does not depend entirely on us. It rests also on the plans and intentions of other countries toward the soviet union. That is why the question of Japan interests our country."

Then, directing attention to a soviet proposal to sell the Chinese Eastern railway and its failure to obtain the signature of Japan to a nonaggression pact, the president of the council of people's commissars added:

"Events in Manchuria show that treaties and contracts between the U. S. S. R. and Manchuria and Japan have not been kept. Further, the Japanese press becomes increasingly more insolent in publishing plans for the annexation of Siberia.

"This causes us to be very attentive and compels us to prepare for unexpected events. The government in Manchuria is not responsible for this situation.

"Japan is the master there and is responsible for everything. So, while striving to keep friendly relations every where we shall continue as in the last year to strengthen the Red army in the far east. We expect when the moment comes that it will be victorious.

Prolonged applause and cheering greeted this last remark. The audience comprised 3,000 especially selected workers and officials.

Soviet Russia will greet another red October tomorrow, its populace greatly cheered by an excellent harvest which assures next year's food supply after two years of crop failures.

Stalin, secretary-general of the communist party, and real head of the soviet union; President Kalinin, Molotov, and other officials tomorrow will review a big parade in Red square.

The October revolution is so called because it occurred on Oct. 25, 1917, under the old Russian calendar, which corresponds to Nov. 7 in the calendar now used in common with most of the rest of the world.

LEGION COMMANDER URGES STRONG NAVY, ARMY FOR AMERICA

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—National defense policies, to place the army and navy of this country on a par with those of other nations, will be urged by the American Legion in 1934.

That was announced by National Commander Edward A. Hayes of Decatur at the armory here tonight. He was the principal speaker at a pre-Armistice day banquet attended by more than 1,000 men and women from the Fifteenth district.

"The Legion insists that congress adopt the program recommended by recognized authorities representing the army and navy," he said. "Legionnaires are the best advocates of peace. Yet there isn't a man who would say that he would have any one else subjected to the experiences of some of the raw recruits who were called into service. They were made to do down the line, not knowing what to do; boys who didn't know how to adjust a gas mask dying because they didn't know how to defend themselves."

The army of this country stands seventeenth today in personnel and the navy third in point of strength, although this nation is first in wealth, Hayes asserted.

LITVINOV IS DUE IN U. S. TODAY; SEEKS NEW DEAL

rubles and are fast being reduced. When the Russians arrive at a position of complete solvency they might not be averse to long term credits offered by banks or exporters and guaranteed by the government at a low rate of interest.

The Russians now believe they have been paying too much for credit. If money is offered at what they think is a fair commercial rate they might be willing to take it, but if the rate is too high they believe they can do without it.

The only other obstacle to recognition which might arise is that of the dissemination of communist propaganda in the United States. Here the Russian position is that communist activity in the United States is native to the soil and, even if it is assisted some from Russia, it is by the communist international [cominterm], which is not, the Russians aver, an organ of the soviet government.

It would be the same thing, they argue, if the Democratic party financed anti-communist propaganda in Russia without the consent, and perhaps even against the wishes, of the actual government. At any rate they are willing to undertake to do nothing as a government to interfere in the affairs of the United States and to do as much as they can to discourage such interference by individual Russians or nongovernmental Russian organizations.

Litvinov told me this morning that he hopes to be able to sail for home about Nov. 15.

SEES ROOSEVELT TODAY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A White House rehearsal for the reception of Maxim Litvinov tonight centered administration attention on the forthcoming conversations seeking to bridge the 16 year old chasm in Russo-American relations.

President Roosevelt conferred at length with the aides chosen to advise him in negotiations with the soviet commissar of foreign affairs—Secretary Hull, Undersecretary Phillips, Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the Farm Credit administration, and William C. Bullitt, special assistant to Hull.

This meeting and other developments on the eve of Litvinov's arrival stressed two important factors—first, that President Roosevelt will deal personally with Litvinov, and, second, that the conversations will proceed with a minimum of preliminary delay from the time of their first meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Will Be Speedy.

Experienced observers believe that Mr. Roosevelt and Litvinov will reach a speedy understanding and that this understanding will be of a general nature, revolving about the possibility of taking steps toward recognition.

Should these forecasts prove accurate, such issues as the $187,000,000 loan to the short-lived Kerensky government, $30,000,000 in private advances to the old czarist regime, and claims for confiscated property of United States nationals would be thrust into the background except as general formulae might be reached for their future consideration.

Into the same category would be placed any soviet claims against this government, such as those founded on the expeditions of armed American forces into Archangel and Siberia after the bolshevist government came into powar.

Credits and commercial relations also were forecast for places in the Roosevelt-Litvinov talks.

Special precautions meanwhile were taken by the government for Litvinov's reception in New York and Washington and for his protection during his stay in the capital. From quarantine in New York's harbor Litvinov will be taken directly to a Jersey City dock where a special car will speed him to Washington.

A special guard of detectives and uniformed police have been designated for the home of Boris Skvirsky, chief of the soviet information bureau, where Litvinov will stay.

FILIPINO SENATE PASSES BILL TO LET WOMEN VOTE

MANILA, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Philippine senate today joined the insular house in approving women's suffrage.

At its 1932 session the house approved a suffrage bill which is still revivable. The senate was spurred to action by Gov. Gen. Frank Murphy's message at the opening of the current legislature.

As the senate revised the house bill, women would be preferred voters, being exempted from the $1 poll tax imposed on all adult males. A second change would make the measure effective after the triennial elections next June instead of Jan. 1, 1934.

Qualifications would be the same as for males, who must be 21, literate and possess property worth at least $250. About 1,000,000 men voted at the last elections.

FIRST 5,000 GET SEATS TODAY AT COOKERY SCHOOL

Hear Margery Maxwell and Vincent Lopez.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

South side women by the thousands will be storming the doors of the Trianon ballroom at Cottage Grove avenue and 62d street today for THE TRIBUNE'S third annual session of its cookery carnival at 12:30 o'clock. There are seats for 5,000, but in former years there frequently have not been enough seats to go around during Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood's culinary courses. The regulars will be sure to come early, knowing that the attendance has totaled 50,000 in the 12 days of the "school term."

It's well worthwhile, they've found. For the throngs that swarm into the vast dance palace constitute the kind of an audience the biggest stars are glad to play to, and this week outstanding entertainers are enrolled by the dozen to appear before the cooking school crowds.

Right at the outset of today's entertainment, for instance, the personal appearances of the headliners will start with Vincent Lopez, orchestra conductor who swings the baton at the smartest night clubs, and whose name means magic to any radio fan. Lopez is pianist as well as orchestra leader, and will demonstrate on the ivories, in the spotlight, how his hands originate that rhythm.

Margery Maxwell to Sing.

As premier soloist of the day, Miss Margery Maxwell, the Chicago girl who clicked as a member of the Chicago Civic opera a few years ago, will be heard during the intermission. Miss Maxwell sang last week at two events for Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt during her visit here.

Russ Russell, staff announcer of W-G-N radio station, will be at the microphone to announce the Doring sisters, a vocal trio with plenty of auditors for their air programs. Sheila Barrett, who mesmerizes crowds at the Chez Paree and this week at the Chicago theater, with her dramatic interpretations, is scheduled. So is Joan Kay, radio's "personality girl."

For the community singing that is one of the favorite features with the "cooking class," Carl Craven, as popular a choral director as ever faced a Chicago throng, will lead the tunes. Elsie Barge will lend him support as accompanist. And numerous performers from the Ethel and Gertrude Morgan school of dancing will shuffle off some brand new steps in special costumes.

All that is sensational enough in itself, yet it's only part of the program. There remain two appearances of Mrs. Chitwood, widely known culinary lecturer.

Makes Mouths Water.

With a flick of her fingers and a flourish of her big wooden spoon, with a dab of this and a pinch of that, Mrs. Chitwood works magic right before the eyes of astounded brides and of envious, more experienced cooks. Everything she tosses together during her demonstrations turns out so exquisite to look at and so delicious to taste that mouths begin to water and sighs to echo all around the room. Most of her recipes classify as simple fare, and her instructions include numerous helpful hints for those whose biscuits always come out soggy and whose meringues will never fluff.

Mary Meade, home economics editor of THE TRIBUNE, will present Mrs. Chitwood to her audiences and will have a few suggestions of her own to make to smooth the way for those aspiring to reputations as the best of cooks. Questions may be addressed to either of these experts.

Other brand new ideas about what to cook and how to cook it will be offered during the 1933 cooking carnival by men and women who have devoted their lives to acquiring the knowledge that has placed them in positions of responsibility and importance.

Three of Chicago's recognized authorities, Ernest Amiet of the Palmer house, Erick Dahlberg of the Drake, and Camil Virla of Hotel Sherman, will demonstrate at least one of their masterpieces on various days. Dahlberg will lecture on "Bomb Parisienne" today. Mrs. Anna J. Peterson of the People's Gas Light and Coke company will speak each Friday on "Personality of Foods"; Miss Ethel McDonald of the L. C. Wiswell company will be heard tomorrow, and Mrs. Cora E. Kreasan of General Foods will appear on Thursday.

Each day during the four days of the south side cooking school a hundred baskets crammed with groceries will be distributed among those attending.

The day's programs will open at 12:30 and will be completed, it is anticipated, at approximately 4:30 o'clock.

54 BISHOPS ON WAY TO MEETING GIVEN A DINNER

Fifty-four Episcopal bishops from eastern sections of the country en route to a meeting of the house of bishops of that church opening today at Davenport, Ia., were given a dinner last night by the Church club of Chicago at Hotel Sherman. John D. Allen, president of the club, presided at the dinner, which was attended by more than 600 persons.

The only possible way out of the depression will come from the leadership of the church, was the conclusion reached in the principal address at the dinner, given by the Rev. William G. Peck, Manchester, England, who is in Chicago as the Hale lecturer at Seabury Western Theological seminary, Evanston. The Rev. Dr. Peck said that prosperity cannot return on the old basis of competition and private profit. The speaker, however, said that communism can offer no better prospects for better times than capitalism.

CUBA STIRRED AS STUDENT LEADER INSULTS U. S. FLAG

Wipes His Hands on Emblem in Crowd.

HAVANA, Nov. 6.—(AP)—An incident involving the United States flag and a spread of terrorism into the interior of Cuba resulted tonight in swift action by authorities.

Eyewitnesses said J. A. Rubio Padilla, a student leader, wiped his hands on an American flag as he climbed aboard an airplane which later carried him to Miami. It was said authoritatively that the incident was immediately reported to the state department at Washington.

Meanwhile Col. Fulgencio Batista issued orders to the army, of which he is chief, to deal firmly with all discordant elements throughout the republic.

Describe Flag Incident.

Several spectators, including Grant Mason, manager of the Pan-American Airways, whose plane Padilla was boarding, described the incident of the flag.

They said Padilla got aboard the ship following Carlos Prio Socarras, another student, who, with Padilla, will act as unofficial adviser of the Cuban delegation to the Pan-American conference at Montevideo. As Padilla disappeared down the hatch, they said, he wiped both his hands on an American flag, then waved his hat to the crowd which watched him from the dock.

"We do not identify ourselves with the action of Companion Rubio Padilla and believe it was misinterpreted. Rubio Padilla, like all Cuban students, is a friend of the American people, although opposed to Ambassador Welles. Probably the incident was motivated by a moment of passion against Welles."

Agitators Stir Up Army.

The army commander's chief aids were busy trying to locate the instigators of a movement within the army which some reliable sources believed to be the beginning of an attempt to stage another coup d'état.

1,200 Ministers Attend Conference Here.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

More than 1,200 Protestant pastors and church staff workers assembled yesterday at the Chicago temple for the second session of the United Foreign missions conference held under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation. The conference opened Sunday afternoon at the Chicago Stadium with a mass meeting attended by more than 21,000 persons.

Dr. G. Stanley Jones, the Sunday mass meeting speaker, and the Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, Episcopal bishop of Hankow, China, were the principal speakers at the Chicago temple meeting. The conference ends today after a series of 25 meetings conducted in various parts of the city and in the suburbs by a team of several noted missionaries. Some of these meetings were held yesterday. In addition to Dr. Jones and Bishop Roots, the team is composed of Miss Yi-Fang Wu, and Dr. Herman Chen-En Liu of China, Miss Lillian Picken and Dr. J. R. Strock of India, and the Rev. Herbert La Fiamme, of New York.

Communism a Growing Issue.

Three new factors in the missionary enterprise are being brought into view at the conferences. The first is the growing issue between communism and Christianity in China. The second pertains to the settlement of the fundamentalist-modernist schism with resulting strength to be turned to advance movements in church life at home and abroad. The third is a question of how best to utilize the rapid trend toward Protestant unity which has been recently stimulated largely by the report of the recent Laymen's Missionary inquiry.

Bishop Roots, in his address before the Chicago temple meeting and also other members of the team at localized gatherings, stressed the growing menace of atheistic communism in China and throughout the orient.

"Communism has a vision of better things for the common man," Bishop Roots told the pastors. "Communism is able to exact from its adherents an utter devotion. Our responsibility as Christians is to show that we can create a better soical order and economic scheme than the communists and at the same time treat the communists in a Christian way."

Asks Social Reconstruction.

This Christian treatment for communists was expounded in Dr. Jones' talk to the pastors.

"We must not rest content as Christians with mere social service," said Dr. Jones. "We must go on to a reconstruction of the social and economic order which will transform it from competition to coöperation."

Red Cross Is Kept Busy Sending Clothing to Poor

Bulky bundles of brand new clothes piled high in delivery trucks went out of Market street yesterday for distribution to the needy. The distribution was made by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, which has been doing this work for the last year, operating from its quarters at 330 South Market street. The organization is allocating the cotton material provided by the government to accredited relief agencies and is distributing clothing for the Cook county bureau of public welfare.

The Red Cross on Armistice day will open its annual roll call seeking 250,000 members so that the budget to maintain the program for the coming year may be continued. The distribution of clothing is one of the services in the disaster relief department. Other Red Cross activities to be carried on yearly are first aid and life saving, home hygiene, Junior Red Cross, nursing, and volunteer service, and, increasingly important since the curtailment of veterans' compensations, the service to world war veterans.

Aid to 176,596 Families.

Since the Red Cross began the distribution of government cotton in the Chicago area on Nov. 20, 1932, 3,506,000 garments have been given to 176,596 needy families in Cook and Du Page counties and the southern part of Lake county. In the production of garments, 11,596 unemployed persons were given work, working in shifts. James T. Nicholson, director of the disaster relief, said that the government cotton [844,000 bales of cotton were given to the Red Cross through the farm board] should provide material enough to last at least until the first of the year.

The seven floor distributing center in Market street resembled a busy dry goods store yesterday. As fast as clerks could rush them out the orders of the relief clients were filled. Their names had been provided by case workers.

"The requisition is first censored and investigated for duplications," explained L. A. Weber, director of the center. "After that the order travels like one in a State street shipping department.

"Ten pickers select the garments needed, they are assembled, packed and wrapped, labeled, and then loaded on the trucks. There is clothing to meet the needs of the family in question. In all we have had 217,430 requisitions for about 870,000 persons. Some, of course, are repeaters, so that the 217,430 figure does not mean that number of families.

Many Articles of Clothing.

On the first floor are shelves on shelves of new clothing. There are pajamas in bright colors, flannel ones for the children, play suits, sweaters, nightgowns, slips, underwear, pillowslips, sheets and towels, layettes and infants' wear, overalls, jumpers, boys' knickers and men's trousers, warm winter coats for the whole family, comforts and blankets.

"The only time we see the clients," Mr. Weber said, "is when something doesn't fit and they come to the exchange department. We try to make it so that no family gets two dresses alike. On the other floors we keep garments in reserve. Workmen unpack them and get them ready to replace the ones shipped out, and at 475 East Water street, we maintain an eight floor warehouse."

$4,000,000 Worth of Relief.

About $4,000,000 worth of relief in the territory surrounding Chicago, has been in the form of farm board wheat and cotton, and clothing. Many of the major private agencies, such as the United Charities and Jewish Charities receive allocations of the cotton material, but make their own distribution. In addition to the workers furnished from the relief rolls to make the garments, women volunteer their services much as they did during the world war. There is still need for this service in the workroom at 616 South Michigan avenue, the Red Cross headquarters, Mr. Nicholson said.

"SINKER" MAGNATE ROBBED.

Four young men, all armed, halted Ovide A. Helsing, 5528 North Spaulding avenue, owner of a chain of doughnut shops, at Wabash avenue and Illinois street yesterday and robbed him of $350. They also took checks for $960.

CHICAGO'S THIRST WILL BE PUT TO TEST TOMORROW

Thousand Barrels of Free Beer at Fair.

Chicago will be on trial tomorrow. Its taste for beer will be given a rigorous test. One thousand barrels of beer will be on tap, free of charge, for visitors to the Fair and the big problem yesterday centered upon the citizens' desire to quaff the brew in view of the fact that it was expected that the temperature would be about 40 degrees above zero.

Originally it was estimated that 2,000 barrels of beer would be needed to satisfy the crowd, but with the advent of cool weather it was decided that 1,000 would be enough.

Tickets for Free Beer.

Each person attending the Exposition on the lake front tomorrow will be provided with tickets entitling him or her to at least five steins of beer. These will be provided in celebration of the expected repeal of prohibition by the 36th state today. The day was originally designated by Mayor Kelly as Personal Liberty day, but the protests of dry organizations caused the Fair management to change the name to Personal Responsibility day.

Members of the executive board of the United Societies and Liberty league, a liberal organization formed in 1896, were added by Mayor Kelly to his committee on "Personal Liberty" day. They are Charles Neuman, Ernest Buehler, John A. Cervenka, Frank Landmesser, Joseph Stastny, Otto Kerner, Stephen Malata, Leopold Saltiel, George Landau, Frank Petkowski, Henry Kaiding, Adolph Gill, and Victor Schaffer.

A Wintry Day Expected.

The name of the celebration will not mean much if wintry blasts chill those at the Fair, sponsors of the occasion admitted yesterday. City Collector Edward J. Kaindl, one of those in charge of the arrangements, declared that the weather forecaster had promised a fair and mild November day. As he made the statement he gave the gray sky a melancholy glance.

"The 1,000 barrels are all ready," said Mr. Kaindl. "They have been donated by a number of breweries in Chicago which do not want their names used because of the possibility that some one might think that advertising was connected with such a noble cause. The packers of Chicago have donated the meat for the 150,000 sandwiches which will be ready and the bakers have provided the bread for the sandwiches."

The beer will be distributed at twenty stands in the Fair grounds, Mr. Kaindl said. Each stand will be provided with fifty barrels. The sandwiches will also be handed out at these stands and a number of volunteer workers from women organizations will be busy today making up the sandwiches for distribution tomorrow.

Plan Shelter for Drinkers.

The stands will be situated, if possible, in places sheltered from the frigid breezes off the lake. If snow is falling the celebrants may content themselves with the thought that they are attending the first winter beer picnic ever held.

Mr. Kaindl said that, under auspicious circumstances, 200,000 persons were expected at the Fair to participate in the celebration of the deliverance of the nation from the effects of the noble experiment. If the attendance fell much below this figure, he admitted, there would be many extra steins of beer for the enthusiasts.

PIPE BURSTS IN U. S. BUILDING.

Officials and early callers at the United States courthouse were forced to retire yesterday by the bursting of a pipe carrying ammonia from a basement tank. Employes donned gas masks and repaired the pipe before court opened for the day.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Six special trains from Atlanta, Macon, Birmingham, Chattanooga, Asheville, and Knoxville, will arrive in Chicago over the Big Four railroad next Saturday morning, bringing several thousand last minute visitors to the Fair. They will remain until Sunday night.

John A. Servas, executive director of the Horticultural exhibits at the Fair, has been working daily on a landscape painting of the gardens in the rear of the Horticultural building. He will have the painting completed before the close of the Exposition next Sunday.

The De Saible singers will be heard in the court of the Hall of Science this evening in an hour's program, beginning at 7:30 p. m.

Forty Italian children from the west side will present an operetta, "The Bird of a Nation," by Marie Hildemann, this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Illinois Host house. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul general in Chicago, will be guest of honor at the performance.

Dr. Arturo Castiglioni, professor of the history of medicine at the Royal university of Padua, Italy, delivered a lecture at 8:30 last night at the Italian pavilion to an audience composed mostly of persons interested in the medical world, in which the doctor is internationally known. His subject was "The Renaissance of Medicine in Italy."

FAIR OPENS LAST WEEK; SMALLEST CROWD ATTENDS

Legion Paraders to Enter Free Armistice Day.

The last week of the World's Fair opened yesterday with the least number of visitors in attendance since the Exposition opened on May 27. At 11:30 o'clock last evening 25,020 men, women and children had entered the gates.

The previous low in attendance was reached on May 31, the fifth day after the opening. On that day only 32,147 visitors entered the grounds. Yesterday was the twelfth of the 164 days during which the Fair has been open on which the attendance has dropped below 50,000 persons. Fair officials have stated that 50,000 paid admissions are necessary to pay expenses for the operation of the Fair each day.

Legion Paraders to Enter Free.

Fair officials yesterday announced that all Legionnaires and Legion auxiliary members taking part in the Armistice day parade will be admitted to the Fair grounds without charge. All Legionnaires and auxiliary members not wishing to parade who present 1933 or 1934 membership credentials will be admitted for 25 cents.

After a meeting yesterday afternoon the Concessionaires' association announced that Legionnaires will be admitted to all concessions at a rate of "two for the price of one." The concessionaires also pledged themselves to serve a meal to all members of drum and bugle corps who take part in the ceremonies. Some 20 corps are expected.

60 Episcopal Bishops Attend.

Yesterday was also Bishops' day at the Fair. Sixty bishops representing every Episcopal diocese in the United States and several foreign countries were guests at the Fair.

After an early morning tour through the grounds the bishops were the guests of Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Fair, at a luncheon held in the trustees' lounge at the Administration building. They were welcomed by President Dawes, and Bishop John Marshall Francis of the diocese of Indianapolis replied to the greeting on behalf of his colleagues. The bishops departed last evening by train for Davenport, Ia., where they are to assemble today at the House of Bishops.

WOUNDED NEGRO DIES.

Edward Smith, 24 years old, 650 East 39th street, a Negro, died yesterday in the Provident hospital of a bullet wound received Sunday night during a quarrel with a man believed to be Solomon Hall, also colored, 3520 South Dearborn street.

SPEED REMOVAL OF OBSTACLES FROM WATERWAY

Ottawa to Open Big New Bridge Saturday

Illinois waterway history, it was learned yesterday, is being made so rapidly that engineers say the removal of the last serious obstruction to navigation on the Illinois river is in sight.

The important developments are three in number. Next Saturday the big new cantilever bridge at Ottawa will be dedicated and the removal of the old bridge will be celebrated with speeches and Indian war whoops.

The other two advances were recorded as the result of activity by United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green to force the removal of the old bridge at Morris and to compel the raising of the center span of a railroad bridge at Seneca. Both efforts were successful.

Contract Let for Morris Bridge.

After long delays due to differences of local opinion, it is said, the state recently let the contract for a new structure to replace the old bridge at Morris, the most serious single obstruction left on the river. But Morris objected to the removal of the old bridge, although that step had been ordered by the war department, the work to be completed before March 1, 1933.

At the request of the war department District Attorney Green took up the removal question under a provision of the federal statutes which makes each month's failure to comply with a removal order a separate offense punishable by a fine of $5,000. Mr. Green summoned Morris officials into conference, told them what they faced, and they agreed to the removal before March 1, 1934. This is satisfactory to Lieut. Col. Daniel I. Sultan, district engineer, it is said, because the navigation season will close soon.

Finish Seneca Job Next Month.

In the matter of the railroad bridge at Seneca Mr. Green proceeded as far as filing informations in the federal court as the starting point of prosecutions. But now he has received word that this rebuilding work will be completed in December.

The bridge at Ottawa is a big one, the steel work being 1,006 feet in length, the vertical clearance at the center of the span being 50 feet, with 46 feet at the shore line piers, and the horizontal clearance 500 feet.

GREEKS DEFIANT AT U. S. PROTEST IN INSULL CASE

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 6.—The Greek ministry of justice today began a review of documents submitted in the Samuel Insull extradition hearing—a review which may last anywhere from ten days to two years—to determine whether the Greek Court of Appeals did right in ruling that the former Chicago utilities magnate should not be extradited to stand trial on charges of fraudulent bankruptcy.

This was the response of the Greek government to the note that Lincoln MacVeagh, American minister here, left at the Greek foreign office this morning containing the protest of the United States government to the whitewashing which the court gave Insull and the denunciation of the extradition treaty between the two countries.

The American government's action did not appear to be hastening the day when Insull will be returned to the United States. The treaty denunciation seems only to have stiffened the Greek attitude. This stiffening was evident, at any rate, in editorials published in government newspapers today.

In any case, a situation appears to have arisen where skillful American diplomacy at least might serve a useful purpose.

The leading government organ, Proia, today said:

"We are surprised at the Washington government's dissatisfaction regarding the Insull decision, but this dissatisfaction will not change our conviction that Greek justice has issued a fair verdict, nor will it modify the decision."

Forrest Harness, assistant United States attorney general, conferred with Anthony Reganakos, prosecutor of the Greek Court of Appeals, about the possibility of having the court's decision reviewed to see whether the Greek law was correctly interpreted.

Milder ..yes I like that word about cigarettes

"When I think of milder cigarettes nowadays, I always think of Chesterfields.

"Because Chesterfields are milder. They've got plenty of taste and aroma to them but they've got mildness too!

"I smoke Chesterfields all day long—when I'm working and when I'm not, and there's no time when a Chesterfield doesn't taste milder and better.

BANDIT KILLER SENTENCED TO LIFE IN PRISON

Joseph Lorio, 27 years old, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday by Judge James F. Fardy for the murder of Harry Gassman, 4026 North Monticello avenue, in a robbery on June 2, 1933. Lorio apparently became frightened after a jury qualified for the death penalty had been chosen and offered to plead guilty for any punishment less severe than the electric chair.

The plea was said to have pleased the prosecution, whose case was based on the testimony of a Negro and a statement taken from a member of Lorio's bandit gang, who has been adjudged feeble-minded. At the same time Lorio and three co-defendants pleaded guilty and were sentenced to serve one year to life for a second robbery in which the state had a stronger case.

Aim to Balk Parole.

The sentences of Lorio were made to run consecutively, doing away with the possibility of his gaining freedom on parole after serving the minimum of 20 years on the life sentence. The others sentenced on the second charge are Lorio's brother, Vincent, 20 years old; Leo Congenee, 18 years old, and Jack Dahlgren, 20 years old. They pleaded guilty with Lorio to robbing Mrs. Carrie Dulude, 5427 South Bishop avenue, of $65 on Jan. 14.

Lorio was the seventh slayer to be sentenced to life imprisonment since the opening of the war on crime. In addition to the life sentences, five murderers have been sentenced to the electric chair and two have been executed. Six slayers have been sentenced to 199 years in the penitentiary, three have received 100 year terms, one 30 years, three 20 years, and two others 14 years.

Pick Jurors for Murder Case.

Eight jurors qualified to impose the death penalty were selected yesterday in Judge Charles P. Molthrop's court to try two gunmen charged with the murder of Policeman William D. Lundy during a robbery in a delicatessen store at 4312 South Ashland avenue on Dec. 9, 1932. The trial marks the last of the pending cases involving the killing of a policeman.

The defendants are Joseph Majczek, 24 years old, and Theodore Marcinkiewicz, 26 years old. The state charges that the defendants entered the delicatessen as the policeman sat talking to the 4 year old daughter of the owner, Mrs. Vera Wulash. Policeman Lundy, who had been a member of the police force for 27 years, leaped to his feet and drew his revolver, but was shot to death.

Doctor Accused of Murder.

Another case in which the state is asking the death penalty was begun yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Walter P. Steffen. The defendant, Dr. Frank L. Nathanson, a physician with offices at 3846 West Madison street, is charged with the murder by abortion of Mrs. Ruth Baccus, 40 years old, of Stockton.

Court attachés pointed out that the trial is unusual in that the prosecution seldom seeks the death penalty in such a case. The state charges that Mrs. Baccus came to Chicago and stayed with the family of Frank E. Stocker at 4827 Van Buren street. The evidence will show, according to the prosecution, that she went to Dr. Nathanson's office on Jan. 16, 1933, at which time the illegal operation was performed.

The sentence of Lorio and his co-defendants and nine others yesterday brought to 536 the number of criminals sentenced since the opening of war on crime. The others sentenced:

JOSEPH KULCHES, 18 years old, sentenced to one year to life by Judge Harry B. Miller for the burglary of the butcher shop of Earl Munson at 303 East 95th street.

ROBERT E. LEE, 35 years old, sentenced by Judge Joseph B. David to one to ten years for the theft of an automobile from Sam Klein, 1433 North Hoyne avenue.

ZINE LEE SMITH, colored, sentenced by Judge Benjamin P. Epstein to one to 14 years for manslaughter. Smith shot and killed his sweetheart, Carrie Barnes, also colored, on Feb. 26 at 537 East 53d street.

FRANK WILSON, 55 years old, sentenced by Judge Epstein to one to 20 years for indecent liberties with a 12 year old boy.

LEO CHAPS, sentenced by Judge David to one to ten years for burglary of the home of Harry Sternberg, 1051 West Lake street, on Oct. 13.

CHARLES CLIFFOT, 33 years old, sentenced to serve one year to life by Judge David for robbing Adolph Schultz, 500 West 39th street, of $9.

WILLIAM PRINCE, 35 years old, colored, sentenced to one to 20 years by Judge Feinberg for robbing Clifford Cumberson, 5155 South Wabash avenue, a colored attorney, of $200.

ROBERT NEWSON, 26 years old, and JAMES WILSON, 28 years old, both colored, sentenced to one to 14 years by Judge Donald S. McKinlay for the attempted robbery of Fred Scharfhausen, 4164 Wellington avenue, on Sept. 17.

INCREASE AMOUNT IN ALLEGED INCOME TAX EVASION SUIT

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—A superseding indictment estimating Waxey Gordon's gross income for two years from "the sale of beverages" at $2,664,504 was returned today by the federal grand jury.

The new true bill handed up to Judge John M. Woolsey as Gordon was about to go to trial on an earlier indictment charging him with evading $385,000 tax on an income of $1,500,000 in 1930 and 1931 alleges that he failed to pay $572,768 tax on the estimated larger income.

Along with Gordon were indicted Louis Cohen, Alias Louis Block; Sam H. Gurock, Alias L. J. Sampson, and Edward Baker of Teaneck, N. J., who was manager of the Eureka Brewery in Paterson. All are said to be lieutenants of Gordon.

The newer figures are based on new bank accounts of Gordon discovered by federal investigators. Gordon's estimated nat income for the two years was $2,364,000.

The new indictment contains four counts of attempted evasion and four of conspiracy against Gordon and the three others.

Dance Hall Near Zion Burns with $12,000 Loss

Fire which broke out at 4 a. m. yesterday destroyed the Lakeview Park dance hall, two miles south of Zion in Lake county, and did damage estimated at $12,000. The hall is owned by George Stried, former chief investigator for the state's attorney in that county. Because three large dance halls in Lake and McHenry counties have been destroyed in the last two years by fires which were suspected to have been incendiary, authorities started an investigation of the one yesterday. Stried said, however, that he believed it was caused by crossed electrical wires.

ACQUITTED ON MURDER CHARGE.

Madison, Ind., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The jury, after deliberating 45 minutes in the case of Pearl Geneva Holman, Charlestown, Ind., accused of the poison murder of Eugene Kelly, her lover, found her not guilty.

CHINA OPENS WAY FOR RECOGNITION OF MANCHUKUO

Conference with Japan Begins in Peiping.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Nov. 6.—Negotiations which are expected to lead to Chinese recognition of the Japanese protected state of Manchukuo were inaugurated at Peiping today upon the arrival of Maj. Gen. Neiji Okamura, vice chief of staff of the Japanese army in Manchukuo. The Chinese negotiators are Dictator Chiang Kai-shek, Gen. Huang Fu, and War Minister Gen. Ho Ying-chin. The negotiations are aimed at the establishment of railway, postal, and air mail communications between China and Manchukuo, customs stations and demarkation of a boundary.

Chinese newspapers state that unofficial negotiations have already practically reached a point where agreement requires only the official seal of the Japanese army. Gen. Okamura is said to have brought this seal with him in an airplane from Manchukuo today.

Chinese Officials Silent.

While the Nanking government is noncommittal, and probably will not officially recognize the arrangement, the consensus of opinion is that the negotiations amount to resumption of normal relations between China and Japan, which were broken off on Sept. 19, 1931. On that date the Japanese army occupied Mukden and overthrew the Chinese administration. This led to the creation of the new state of Manchukuo, embracing China's northeastern provinces of Fengtien, Kirin, Heilungkiang, and Jehol, which in area are about a fourth the size of the United States.

According to Japanese reports, the Sino-Japanese get-together is influenced by international considerations, including Germany's resignation from the league of nations, which caused China to lose confidence in the Geneva organization. On the other hand, the increasing seriousness of the Russo-Japanese crisis has caused Japan to become more conciliatory, hoping to induce China to enter an economic and military alliance against Russia.

China Menaced by Reds.

A further domestic reason which influences China is the increasing seriousness of the communist situation, which is menacing the existence of the Nanking government. This is said to have caused Marshal Chiang to decide on reconciliation with Japan in order to remove fear of Japanese aggression and possibly to obtain Japanese assistance.

The recent resignation of Finance Minister T. V. Soong, who opposed conciliation with Japan, also facilitated the Sino-Japanese reconciliation.

UNIVERSITY TRUSTEE, CAUSE OF UNREST IN PORTO RICO, RESIGNS

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Gov. Robert H. Gore of Chicago and Florida accepted the resignation late today of Representative Rafael Alonso Torres as trustee of the University of Porto Rico.

Meanwhile, the student strike called in protest against the appointment of Alonso Torres, a Socialist, was renewed today after a 12-day university recess. The latest strike, however, presumably will end tomorrow.

The way for the resignation was paved yesterday by an all-day meeting of the Socialist party's executive committee, which finally resolved to permit the trustee to step out. The students objected to Alonso Torres as a trustee because, they said, he did not have a sufficiently cultural background.

IDENTIFY BODY IN LAKE.

The body of a man, taken yesterday from the lake near 90th street, was identified by members of his family, whom police reached through a tailor's label in the clothing, as that of James Victor Hall, 53 years old, of Mokena, Ill., a salesman.

SOCIAL SERVICE WORKERS MEET TO PLAN UNION

More than 600 social service workers last night held a meeting in the Y. W. C. A. at 1001 North Dearborn street to consider the formation of a union. Representatives of forty social service agencies and institutions were present.

Public relief agencies have increased their activities so greatly in the last four years that social work employés are justified in considering themselves as permanently attached to this field, the workers were told. Employés should be well paid and subject to the same general standards of working conditions as other public employés, according to a pamphlet distributed at the meeting.

A decision was made to draw up a code on wages and work conditions. Minimum salaries of $150 monthly for case workers and salaries ranging from $100 to $125 monthly for other employés were suggested.

CORONER'S JURY ASKS WIDOW HELD FOR KILLING MATE

Holding Mrs. Genevieve Kropp, 28 years old, 1931 North Leavitt street, who shot and killed her husband, Otto, 39 years old, early yesterday, to the grand jury on a charge of murder was recommended by a coroner's jury. The shooting occurred in the Kropp home as the climax of a quarrel over Kropp's alleged attentions to another woman.

As she left the inquest at St. Elizabeth's hospital under police guard Mrs. Kropp was approached by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Marie Kropp. The mother of the victim embraced the younger Mrs. Kropp and said: "There, there, everything is going to be all right."

At the inquest it was revealed that Mrs. Kropp is a daughter of Mrs. Theresa Bongiorno, stepmother of John Bongiorno, who is under sentence of 199 years for the murder of Policeman Harry Redlich.

HONEYMOONING LEGISLATOR DUE TO RETURN TODAY

Hope Adamowski Aid Will End Relief Deadlock.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Routine discussion of the winter relief problem when the Illinois house of representatives reconvenes today probably will be enlivened by the belated appearance of the long missing honeymooner. Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, Chicago Democrat.

At his law office yesterday it was said that Mr. Adamowski was understood to be en route from New York after his return from Europe, where he spent most of October with his bride, the former Miss Kathryn Kaiser. His absence from the legislative halls at Springfield during the special session has been noted from week to week and he is assured of a real welcome when he appears there.

His friends predict that he will be given a sort of delayed charivari tinged with raspberry. But it is expected the greeting will be friendly and good natured.

Horner Sees Relief.

The addition of his vote will at least bring the three weeks' deadlock over the $30,000,000 combination bond issue and gas tax relief plan one vote nearer to breaking. And Gov. Horner, in Chicago for the meeting at which Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, was the speaker, repeated his earlier expressions of confidence that this time the Graham bills embodying the relief plan will pile up the two-thirds vote of 102 sought to make them effective immediately upon enactment.

If all the 95 who voted for the bills last week are present today and have not changed their minds the program will need only six more votes in addition to Adamowski's on the roll call, and the governor said he had received assurances that the two-thirds total would be reached. The only question still open is whether the third attempt to pass the bills will be made this afternoon or, after a counting of noses, be postponed until tomorrow.

Mentions Tax Boost Plan.

"Things look pretty good," said Gov. Horner, who repeated some of the things he said in a public appeal to taxpayers on Sunday.

"Some of the opponents of the bond issue plan are advocating measures that would increase real estate taxes beyond the figure now contemplated. I am certain if the taxpayers were alive to the danger they would not approve that action.

In expectation that the house will pass the Graham bills, a full attendance of the senate for the first time since it approved them three weeks ago is expected today. The upper house must concur in amendments put on two bills by the representatives.

CALL ON COUNTY OFFICIALS TO CUT EXPENSES 40 PCT.

Appropriations Face $5,000,000 Slash.

County officials will be called before the finance committee of the county board and asked to cut the cost of their offices by 40 per cent in 1934. This program was adopted yesterday by county commissioners in opening the 1934 budget making season. They are faced with the problem of reducing appropriations approximately $5,000,000 to balance the budget.

In gloomy silence members of the county board listened to an exposition of the condition of their finances. This was summarized in a preliminary budget prepared by County Auditor Lee Howard and read by Deputy Controller Michael O'Connor.

Necessary expenditures for 1934 were estimated at $18,606,667 as against estimated revenues of $13,691,510. The gloom deepened when Mr. O'Connor pointed out that the deficit of $4,915,156 must be met by cuttting appropriations of county offices now totaling $12,256,837, because $6,349,830 of the total estimated expenditures of $18,606,667 is made up of fixed charges against the county, imposed by statute, which can not be slashed. The 1933 budget totaled $18,416,880.

Points to Assessment Cut.

In addition to the old problem of tax delinquencies, Mr. O'Connor pointed to the 25 per cent cut in real estate assessments ordered by County Assessor J. L. Jacobs.

The total loss of anticipated revenue from taxation was estimated as $5,911,738 for the years 1931, 1932, and 1933. Had revenue from taxation met expectations the county would enter the year 1934 with a surplus of $3,641,248 rather than a deficit, Mr. O'Connor said. The loss to the county as a result of the assessment reduction was estimated at $2,612,792.

The deficit is increased, Mr. O'Connor said, by the fact that two items not included in the 1933 budget must be listed in 1934. These are $325,000 for two weeks' pay rolls for September of 1931 and $90,000 to pay the county highway police for the last five months of 1933. The former item, representing a payless vacation ordered by a previous board, was ordered reinstated by the state Supreme court. The highway police were cut from the pay roll by judges of the Circuit court and later reinstated.

Fee Revenues Decrease.

Further, Mr. O'Connor said, revenue from certain fee offices has dropped. Interest on bank deposits has dropped to $100,000 as compared to the top figure of $1,350,000 in 1928. This decrease is due to the fact that the treasurer turns over tax money as rapidly as he receives it instead of banking the receipts. Receipts in the recorder's and various clerks' offices also have fallen.

The only bright spot in the budget estimate, Mr. O'Connor said, is that relating to earnings from tax penalties. These, he said, exceeded the 1933 estimate of $3,000,000 by $1,000,000 to bring the total deficit from approximately $6,000,000 to about $5,000,000.

"That's our story," said President Emmett Whealan after Mr. O'Connor read the report. "We are facing the facts fairly and squarely. What can be done is another matter. Officials can cut their expenses by 40 per cent. This will impair the county's services in proportion. Possibly we may not be able to operate.

"Our only other course is an increase in our tax rate."

Commissioner Grace Fleming moved that the county officials be summoned to appear before the finance committee to explain why they should not make the necessary cuts. The motion was carried without a dissenting vote.

First Husband Helps

Mrs. Anna Wiley, 134 North Parkside avenue, was granted a divorce yesterday from Charles L. Wiley, an unsuccessful candidate for congress a year ago, by Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Superior court. Her principal witness on a charge of cruelty was her first husband, Charles A. Koch, 4644 South Laflin street, who testified that he saw Wiley strike her on several occasions when he was in the Wiley home visiting his daughter, Dawn. Attorney Victor Frohlich represented Mrs. Wiley. In 1931 Wiley appeared in federal court to testify for the janitor of the building where he lived and was himself arrested on a prohibition charge after he had stated that the janitor had been making beer for him.

$1,014,306 GIVEN IN CAMPAIGN FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Leaders in the Community fund campaign to collect $4,000,000 to support the city's private charity organizations for 1934 were cheered yesterday with the announcement that the first million dollars has been subscribed. The exact amount pledged is $1,014,306, given by 588 donors.

R. Douglas Stuart, president of the fund, said the campaign leaders had not expected to reach so large an amount so early in the campaign. A quiet canvass has been conducted for the last ten days among individuals and corporations supporting previous campaigns. Most of the donors duplicated the amounts they gave in 1932 but some increased pledges.

"We are greatly heartened by this generous response," said Mr. Stuart. "We had some apprehension that many might feel that relief work of the federal government and the state would be adequate, but it is apparently generally known that these supply only food, clothing and shelter, while we are seeking funds to support other charitable activities."

BOGAN HEARS PLEA TO BUILD LEYDEN SCHOOL

A delegation from the district of the proposed Leyden Elementary school at 7400 Cornelia avenue appealed to Supt. William J. Bogan yesterday that work be started on the building. The school is organized, but the children are housed in portable structures and 430 pupils are attending only half day sessions.

"Your school is the first on the list when we can obtain money to construct new buildings," said Mr. Bogan. "At present we are planning to finance the completion of five new high schools from federal funds."

In its negotiations with the school board thus far over the allotment of easy money for schools in Chicago, the local advisory board on public works thus far has declared that only buildings started would be financed.

CUTS INTEREST ON SCHOOL BOARD TAX WARRANTS

Paper Used to Pay Wages Not Affected by Order.

The interest charge on tax anticipation warrants issued by the board of education in payment of all indebtedness other than salary obligations has been reduced from 6 to 5 per cent, it was revealed yesterday. The change, which was ordered by James B. McCahey, president of the board, will result in a yearly saving of between $100,000 and $200,000, depending on the number of warrants issued.

Bills of the school board in normal times have risen as high as $4,000,000, and for 1933 the estimate is $2,500,000. The bills for the current year will be paid in 1933 warrants and the amount of the saving to be realized on the 5 per cent interest basis will be determined when the securities are redeemed.

"Warrants to be distributed to teachers in lieu of cash," explained Mr. McCahey, "will continue to bear 6 per cent as well as any warrants sold for cash to pay teachers' salaries."

Large Interest Charges.

Before the reassessment and tax strike in Chicago the interest charges of the board of education totaled several hundred thousand dollars a year. The warrants were in denominations reaching as high as $1,000,000 each and they were redeemed in a short time.

With the drying up of tax collections and a stagnant market in municipal securities, the school board has been distributing warrants in denominations as low as $25 apiece to teachers and creditors during the last two years.

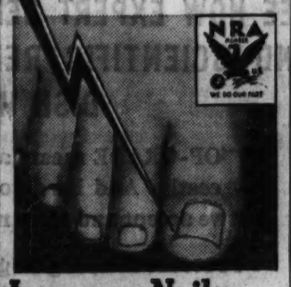
The appropriation for interest on educational fund tax warrants in the 1933 budget is $4,000,000, or nearly 10 per cent of all expenditures out of this fund. The estimate for interest on building fund warrants of the school board this year is $1,000,000, while the playground fund charge is $45,000.

Plan Warrant Sale Drive.

The preparations of a group of teachers' representatives, headed by George Mahin, executive secretary of the High School Teachers' association, to sell wararnts at par are nearing completion and the drive will start next week, it was announced.

According to Mahin, figures are being prepared on the proportion of 1933 warrants that may be applied on a payment of tax bills.

The school board is preparing $4,000,000 worth of 1933 warrants in small denominations to distribute among teachers and other employes for their services during March. The warrants have been quoted at 90 bid and 92 asked.



Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

Pain Stops Instantly!

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, any one can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toenail that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

TAX RECEIVER APPOINTED FOR 41 PROPERTIES

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $368,809, making a total of $84,497,754 collected since the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow.

Nov. 6	$ 23,126	$ 26,753
Uncollected	16,679,331	$4,525,750
	1930.	1931.
Nov. 6	$ 60,895	$ 255,091

County Judge Jarecki yesterday began the twenty-eighth week of enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act by appointing County Treasurer McDonough as receiver for forty-one income bearing properties. The properties owe $87,000 in taxes for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930. Other property owners paid $48,000 in court to forestall receiverships.

Assistant State's Attorney Manuel E. Cowen, who has prosecuted suits for the collection of delinquent personal property taxes, announced that during October $549,187 was collected in the Circuit and Municipal court.

The treasurer yesterday distributed tax collections of $665,000 to major taxing bodies, as follows:

City of Chicago	$500,000
State of Illinois	25,000
Sanitary district	50,000
South park commissioners	40,000
West park commissioners	20,000
Lincoln park commissioners	15,000

The taxing bodies will use the funds for the payment of salaries and back bills.

JOE SALTIS CASE DELAYED.

Joe Saltis, former beer hoodlum and self-styled gentleman farmer, obtained a continuance until Nov. 22 when he appeared yesterday before Judge Jay Schiller on a charge of vagrancy. The delay was granted to allow time to establish a special vagrancy court.

For Quick Relief Always Say "BAYER Aspirin" When You Buy

There is now a quicker way to ease pain. A way that often brings relief from even a severe headache or neuritis in a few minutes. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the space of two seconds after touching moisture.

The illustration of the glass, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly. This unique Bayer discovery means quick relief from pain for you and yours. Fewer lost hours from headaches, neuralgia or the pains of rheumatism. And safe relief—for GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN does not harm the heart.

See though, that you get the GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN. The best way is never ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But always to ask for "BAYER ASPIRIN" when you buy.

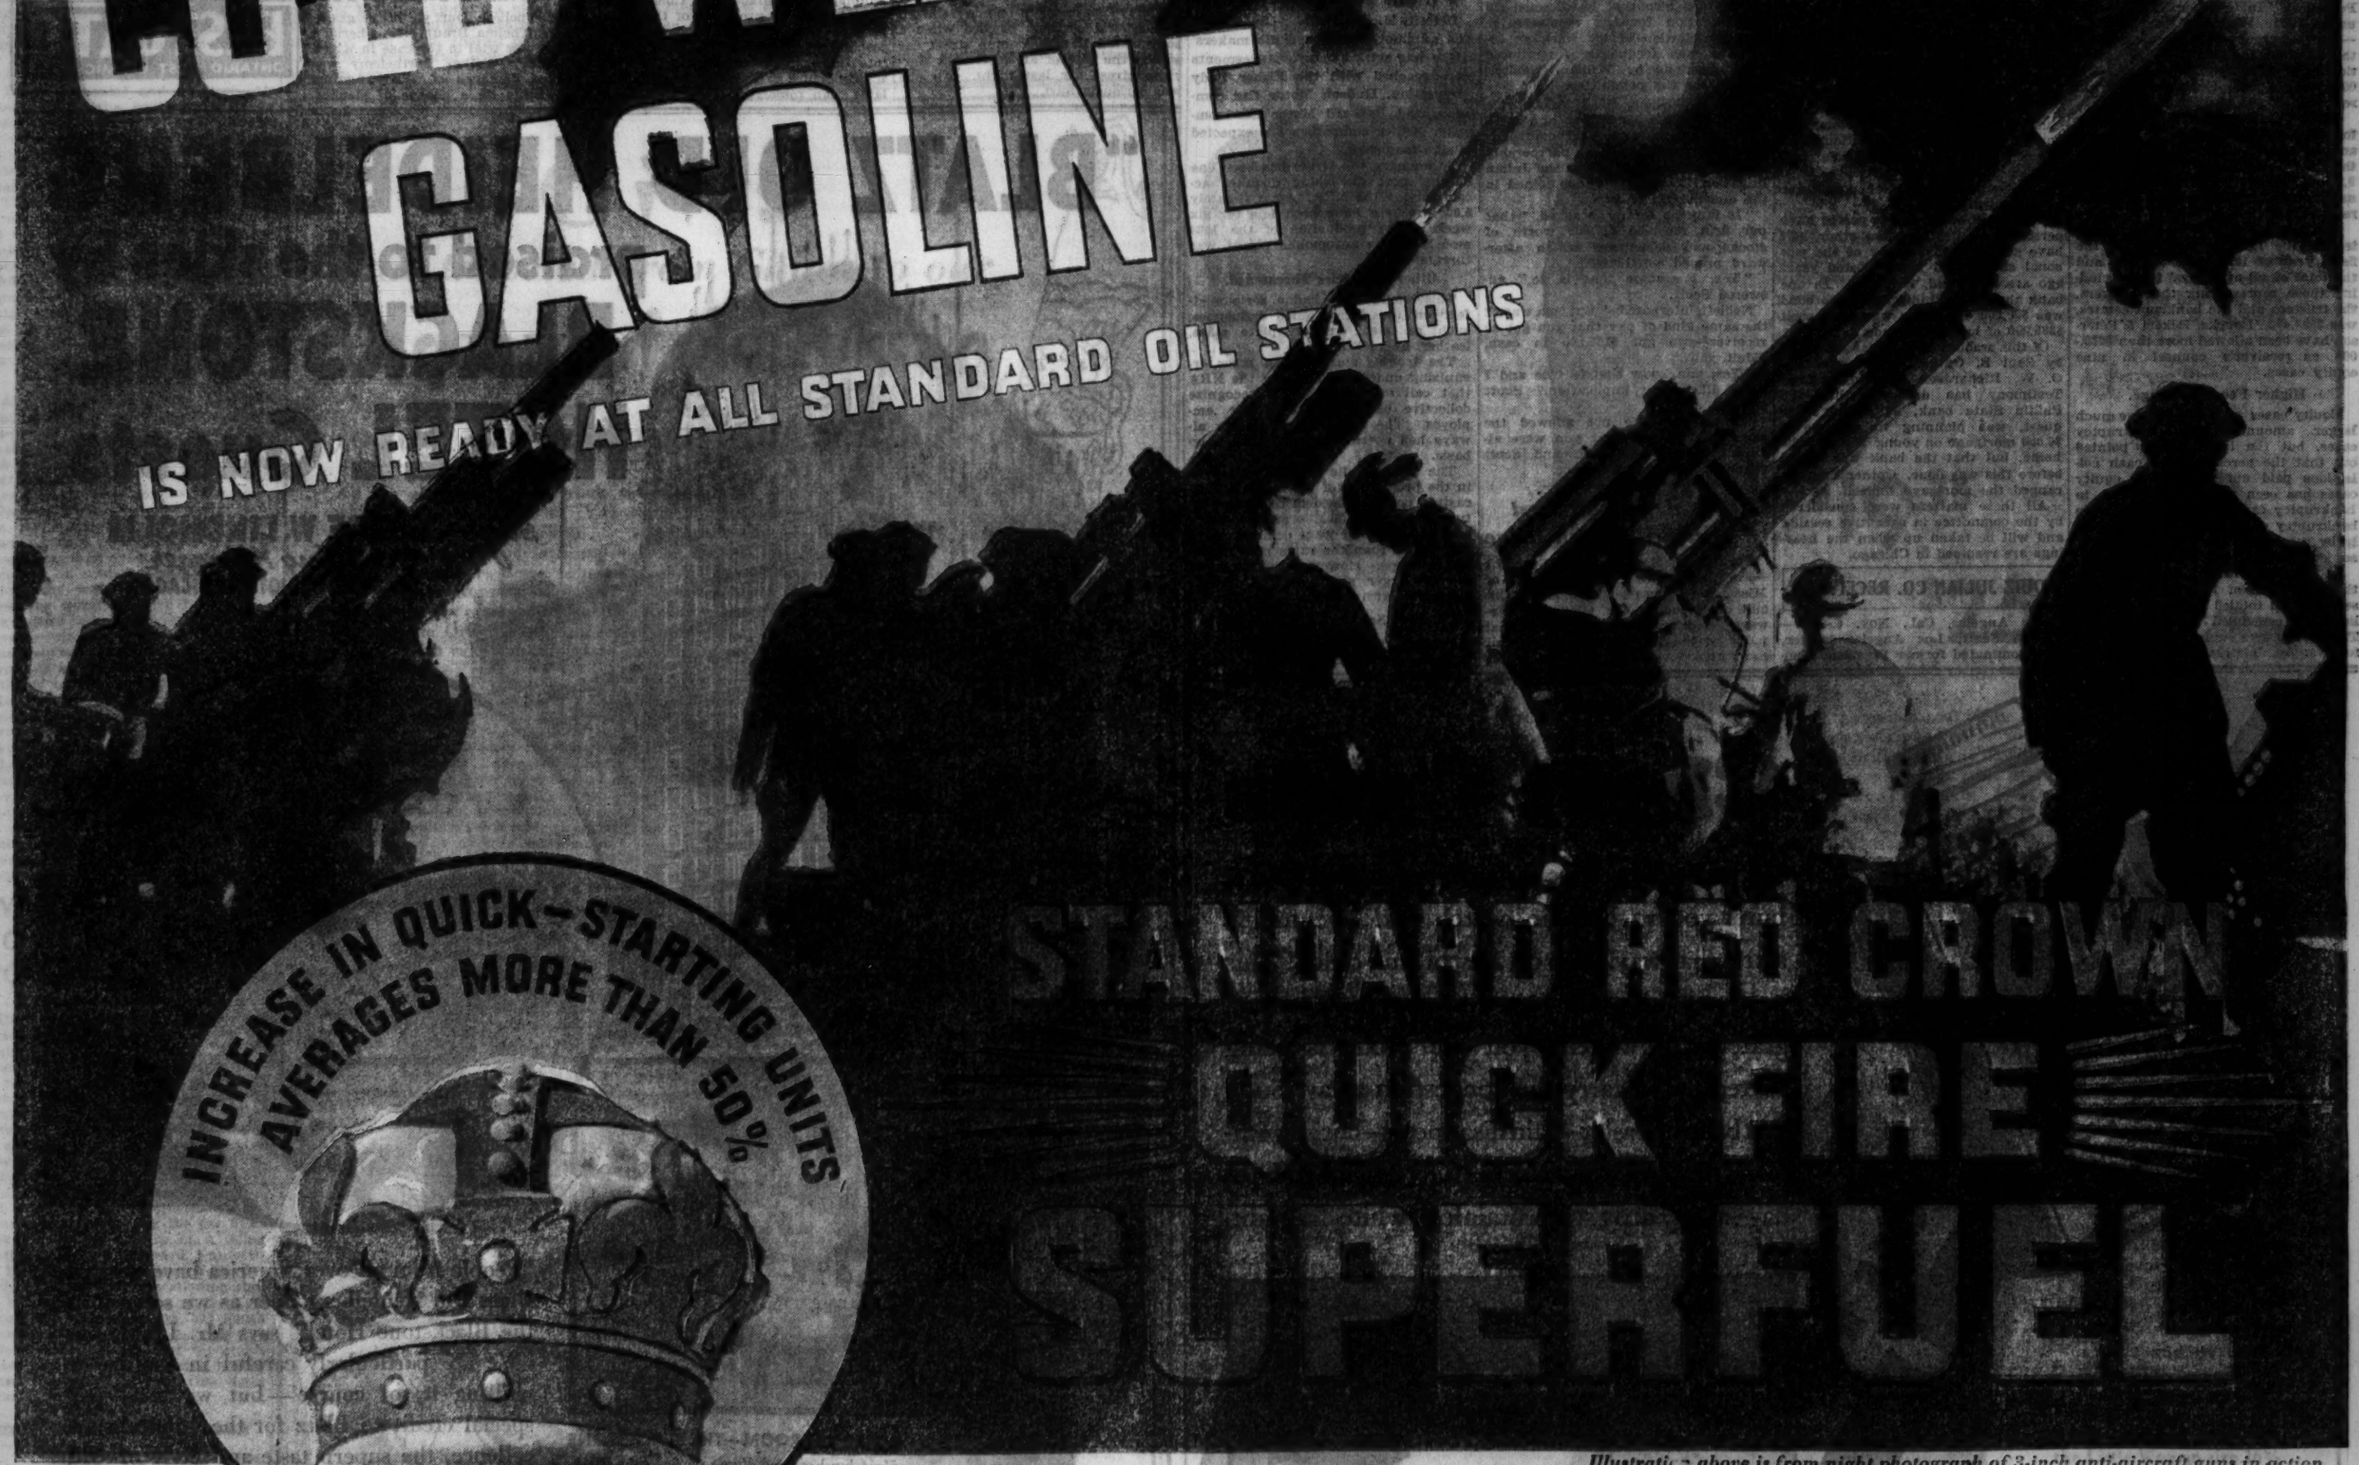
A NEW QUICK-FIRING COLD WEATHER GASOLINE

IS NOW READY AT ALL STANDARD OIL STATIONS



STANDARD RED CROWN QUICK FIRE SUPERFUEL

Still the COMPLETE SUPERFUEL

Some "regular" gasolines may equal Standard Red Crown "Quick-Fire" Superfuel in one or two qualities—none surpasses it. And we believe that not one equals it in ALL the essentials of good gasoline.

1. Unsurpassed in starting—quick warm-up. 2. 70 Octane—top anti-knock in its price class. 3. Free from harmful sulphur and gum. 4. Accurately adjusted for seasonal variations. 5. Always uniform everywhere. 6. Fresher because of Standard's popularity. 7. Sells at the price of regular.

It's ready today—the fastest-starting gasoline Standard Oil ever offered! Just what you need to get action—FAST ACTION from your cold motor these snappy mornings. It's called QUICK-FIRE SUPERFUEL, and that's exactly what it is. Its highly volatile, quick-firing units have been greatly increased. This increase averages more than 50%. Yet it also has 70 octane anti-knock and all those other qualities which combine to make it the complete superfuel. And it still sells at the price of "regular" gasoline.

If you haven't been a steady Superfuel user, stop in at any Standard Red Crown pump and get a few gallons now. Then, on the next snappy morning, see how it does warm up a cold motor!

FIND BANKRUPT CASE COSTS ARE HIGH IN CHICAGO

But Fees Are Lower than in Equity Actions.

Federal investigators disclosed yesterday that the congressional receivership inquiry in Chicago was not limited to appointments in United States Judge Charles E. Woodward's court, but included an exhaustive survey of bankruptcy conditions, as distinguished from equity receiverships. Among other things it was learned that the cost of administrating bankrupt estates in Chicago is higher than in any other federal district.

It was also disclosed that receivership fees in bankruptcy cases, fixed by statute, have been much lower than fees allowed by the federal courts in equity receivership cases. Combined attorneys' fees in all bankruptcy cases for the last three years have been only 11 per cent of the assets realized, while in some equity cases the fees have been as high as 50 per cent.

Wextark Radio Case Cited.

In the Wextark radio case, for example, payments of 18 per cent, amounting to $79,000, were made to creditors, while the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver and the law firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson as receiver's counsel received $26,989 each.

This case was administered in the court of Judge Woodward, whose son, Harold, was employed by Loucks, Eckert & Peterson [now Eckert & Peterson]. In another equity case under Judge Woodward's jurisdiction—the Zerozone refrigerator case—the total surplus from a year's operation prior to reorganization was $35,000, and Loucks, Eckert & Peterson received $20,000 of this in cash.

George F. Cummerow, investigator for the congressional committee, examined all the bankruptcy cases for the last three years. They totaled 9,295. There were 3,262 cases in which assets were realized and a complete record was made of these.

Total fees for receivers and trustees in the 1,000 asset cases for the fiscal year of 1933 were $171,975 and the total of all attorneys' fees, including those representing the receivers, the trustees and the bankrupt estates, was $593,492. Loucks, Eckert & Peterson have been allowed more than $225,000 as receiver's counsel in nine equity cases.

Higher Fee Percentage.

Equity cases as a rule involve much larger amounts than bankruptcy cases, but the investigators pointed out that the percentage of cash collections paid out in fees in equity cases has been much higher than in bankruptcy cases. Attorneys' fees in bankruptcy cases are not fixed directly by the judges but by the referees, subject to the court's approval.

In the 3,255 bankruptcy cases for the fiscal year of 1933 actual net assets realized totaled $4,413,736 and the liabilities scheduled were $94,110,276. The net assets were distributed as follows: Administrative fees and costs, $1,269,569; paid to bankrupts for exemptions, $62,364; priority and secured creditors, $626,456; general creditors, $2,342,622; other payments, $84,360; undistributed balances, $28,362.

The investigators found that of every dollar received in administrating bankrupt estates in Chicago 40 cents goes to administrative expenses and 60 cents to the creditors. This is said to be due in part to the appraisal system in Chicago and to the fact that there is little competitive bidding at auction sales here.

Probe Bank Depositories.

Another matter investigated was the designation of banks as depositories of bankrupt funds. Since the passage of the bankruptcy act in 1898 the courts have designated as depositories 72 banks in the Chicago district, including 34 state banks over which the government has no jurisdiction. For one of these banks no bond was posted. Of the others, thirty-five have closed, twenty-seven are open and nine have been merged.

About half of the bonds posted have personal sureties and the other half have surety bonds. Many of the personal sureties on bonds posted years ago are now dead, it is said. In one bank alone, the Phillip State, the bond was $50,000 and there was on deposit $395,000 of bankrupt funds.

Of this amount $25,000 was deposited by Saul B. Optner, receiver of the O. W. Richardson company estate. Testimony has disclosed that the Phillip State bank, at Optner's request, was planning to arrange a $6,000 mortgage on young Woodward's home, but that the bank was closed before this was done. Optner then arranged the mortgage himself.

All these matters were considered by the committee in executive session and will be taken up when the hearings are resumed in Chicago.

QUIZ JULIAN CO. RECEIVER

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Joseph Scott, Los Angeles lawyer, who nominated former President Hoover at Chicago last year, was asked on the witness stand today to explain what he did to earn the $105,000 fees he received in a 29 months' period as co-receiver of the Julian Petroleum company, which failed in 1927 with an estimated loss of $100,000,000 to investors.

As a witness before the Ashurst senate committee investigating receivership and bankruptcy matters, Scott responded that he succeeded in collecting $561,000 in a series of usury suits growing out of the Julian case. He testified also that he directed all the litigation for the receivership. Scott's recitation of his work as co-receiver was frequently interrupted with questions by William Neblett, counsel for the committee.

Senator William G. McAdoo, vice chairman of the committee, and J. F. T. O'Connor, now federal controller of the currency, were in partnership with Neblett at the time of the Julian litigation. Senator McAdoo joined in the questioning of Scott.

"Is it not a fact," he asked, "that our firm received $17,500 worth of stocks and debentures which afterward proved worthless?"

"Yes, I assume that is so," answered Scott.

Neblett interposed: "But that wasn't the same kind of pay that you got as receiver—you got $105,000 in cash, didn't you?"

"Yes, you know that is true and I don't like your implication," Scott shouted.

"Then we were not allowed the same kind of pay that you were allowed?" pursued Neblett, and Scott rejoined: "No, you were not."

DETROIT STRIKE ENDS AS PLANTS SIGN COMPACTS

Diemakers Returning to Factories.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The automotive tool and die makers' strike was settled today. Agreements were reached with the Fisher Body corporation, Hudson Motor Car company, and Packard Motor Car company. Other companies are expected to sign tomorrow.

To industry the strike has been one of the most disturbing disputes accompanying the NRA. Approximately 5,000 workers have been idle for six weeks. The production of the 1934 models in the automobile plants was threatened.

Other Industries Threatened.

This would have had a serious effect on the many allied industries, such as steel, rubber, plate glass, leather, and textiles.

The trouble started with labor organizing under provisions of the NRA that call on employers to recognize collective bargaining by their employés. The automobile industry always has operated on an open shop basis.

The tool and die makers, employed in the production of the molds and in casting patterns used in the manufacture of automobiles, organized as a new union. Their wage demands were not higher than the rates paid in the larger shops. However, the employés in the larger shops walked out in sympathy with those seeking raises.

Riot Squads Kept Busy.

During the last six weeks there were several mass demonstrations at the shops, with bricks thrown through windows and automobiles overturned. The riot squads of the Detroit police department were kept busy.

In the settlement, according to unofficial reports, there was no wage increase for a majority of the strikers, but they considered they had won a victory with the companies agreeing to recognize their union.

FORD'S LAYOFF PLAN STARTS AT BIG AUTO PLANT

Week's Furlough for First 9,000 Employes.

Detroit, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Henry Ford's "layoff plan" to bring average Ford working hours within the NRA auto code began today in the huge River Rouge motor plant. With it came indications that the Ford-NRA controversy has moved into another phase of silence.

Half of the employés in the Rouge plant, upon orders of their department managers, stayed away from machines and assembly lines today, and will remain away for seven days while working hours are brought from 40 a week to the 35 hour weekly average set by the code.

Then, employés who now are at work will be ordered home for a similar period.

Ford officials, in contrast to their recent open criticism of Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, had no reply to make today to Johnson's offer to "consider an exception" if Henry Ford wished to keep his men at work under 40 hour week schedules.

The Ford company awaits official comment on its submission of wage and hour schedules to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. That is another provision of the auto code to which the Ford company is responding in line with its announced intention of "obeying the law." The schedules are expected to be filed not later than tomorrow.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Dr. H. A. Ironside, pastor of the Moody Memorial church, states that Albert M. Johnson, chairman of the board of the National Life Insurance company of the U. S. A., has made no contributions to his church since it was reorganized following the resignation, 12 years ago, of Dr. Paul Rader as pastor of Moody church. During Dr. Rader's pastorate Mr. Johnson was a contributor to the church. Dr. J. M. Gray, president of the Moody institute, states that he has no records of contributions by Mr. Johnson during the last 15 years. An article appearing in THE TRIBUNE Oct. 30 stated that Mr. Johnson had been a contributor to Moody institutions.

Calumet circle, Daughters of Isabella, will meet at 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the Southmoor hotel, not this evening as stated in last Sunday's Metropolitan section.

FRENCH ANGRY AS U. S. VINTNERS 'STEAL' NAMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 6.—The approaching death of prohibition in the United States is bringing many happy thoughts to French wine growers, but also many unhappy ones due to the lack of originality of their California brothers.

American wine lists reaching here which list as "extra fancy California wine" such names as Sauterne, Moselle, Haut Sauterne, and even the almost holy Château Yquem, have aroused wine men to arms and they are going to take plenty of action.

Calling California wine Moselle after the famous French wine region is a fraud, they declare. M. Blanchet, head of the wine committee, announced that an effort to stop it will be made without delay.

AIR LINES SEEK TO MAKE WINTER FLYING POPULAR

Point to Increased Plane Efficiency.

A determined effort to make air travel as popular this winter as it was last summer, when all records for passenger traffic were broken, will be made by the leading air lines, according to an announcement made by their officials yesterday. Increased dependability of operations will be sought in order to make air travel an all season mode of transportation.

Winter operations in the past have been interrupted by weather conditions, sometimes for several days at a time. Many new factors have been developed in the last year to combat weather delays and existing facilities and services have been improved to such an extent that the air lines may be more independent of weather conditions along their routes.

The end of this year is expected to see new high operating efficiency records for all of the major air lines, due to their concentration on overcoming weather obstacles. The intense rivalry of the major air lines for the passenger, mail, and express traffic has spurred them on to greater efforts to maintain uninterrupted schedules.

The effect of weather upon air line operations is disclosed in the efficiency records of two of the major air lines for last year, as reported to the post-office department. United Air Lines, operating between New York, Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City and San Francisco, the midcontinent coast to coast route, flew a total of 8,331 trips last year, completing 80.5 per cent of them on time.

Transcontinental and Western Air Lines, flying the southern coast to coast route, from New York through Columbus, Kansas City, Oklahoma City, and Albuquerque to Los Angeles, made a total of 3,774 trips last year, completing 46 per cent on time.

The southern route's flying weather is not as good for all year operations as the midcontinent route. Weather experts point out that the midcontinent route has clear, cold weather, while the southern route has warmth enough to produce fog and other bad flying conditions. Veteran pilots avoid the Panhandle of Texas and other areas in the southwest where storms are known to originate.

New Developments in Air.

Air line officials predict that the hindrances caused by such weather conditions will decrease. They point to the development of the radio beam, the new high speed transport planes that can fly around bad weather, and even greater developments to come.

New efficient ice removing apparatus, which protects planes from their worst enemy, ice forming on the wings, has been produced and is being installed on transport ships. A robot pilot that will fly planes through even the worst weather without undue hazard is in an advanced stage of development. A new blind landing beam has been devised by the government and is now being tested as a preliminary to universal installation.

In addition to these material advances, the airway weather reporting service operated by the weather bureau has reached a high stage of development, and it is being supplemented by the weather reporting services of the air lines themselves. In addition, United Air Lines is entering its seventh winter of operations and other air lines their fourth, with the advantage of considerable practical experience behind them.

Charles Stein, 22 years old, two gun bandit from Chesterton, Ind., was held yesterday at the detective bureau where he is to be viewed by victims of recent robberies. Stein was seized Sunday night in a tavern at 2528 South Halsted street, after he had taken $23 and locked up eight victims in a back room. Previous to the tavern robbery Stein had stolen an automobile from Mr. and Mrs. John E. Rouse, recently from Wyoming, but now living at 1632 Sheridan road, Evanston, after stealing the car Stein took $14 in the robbery of a filling station attendant, Edward Danforth, at 1608 West 95th street. Yesterday Stein admitted under questioning that he had robbed the offices of the Tom Brown band and orchestra, 315 South Wabash avenue, before he stole the automobile. The fact that the stolen Rouse car carried a Wyoming license caused the belief, at first, that Stein came from that state.

MEXICAN TREASURER, TWO OTHERS IN PLANE LAND ON IOWA FIELD

Keokuk, Ia., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Elias Yazbek, general treasurer of the state of Tabasco, Mexico; J. A. Liddell, air pilot, and his wife, landed unexpectedly in a cornfield near Keokuk tonight while winging their way from the southern republic to Chicago. None of the three was hurt and the plane was undamaged as it bumped across old furrows to a stop beside the highway. Kansas City airport officials had told the pilot there was a landing field at Keokuk. Unable to find it, Liddell came down in the dark on a forced landing.

Yazbek is on his way to Chicago to obtain two new airplanes for the governor of Tabasco, Thomas Garrido, as well as to find new markets for Mexican fruits and vegetables.

The party will spend the night here and resume the flight to Chicago tomorrow morning. Mrs. Liddell, wife of the pilot, was the least alarmed of the three at the unexpected landing on an Iowa field. She laughed at the incident and went to a movie show while the Mexican official and her husband hunted up two farmer boys to sleep in the plane for the night and make arrangements for refueling.

RUINS OF AIRSHIP LOST 10 YRS. WITH 52 ABOARD FOUND

PALERMO, Sicily, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Fishermen reported today that they had located the skeleton of the French dirigible Dixmude, which disappeared on a flight to Africa in December, 1923, with 52 men aboard.

The craft, the fishermen said, lies in water 130 feet deep about 2½ miles from the town of Menfi.

The Dixmude, which held distance and endurance records, was sighted south of Medenin, Tunis, the night of Dec. 23, 1923, apparently badly damaged. It was again sighted on Dec. 24 at Tafahouin, after which it was not seen again.

MUSSOLINI GRABS GREATER POWER; OUSTS GEN. BALBO

ROME, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini became the head of all armed forces in Italy in name as well as fact today when King Victor Emmanuel gave him the navy and air portfolios in addition to the army ministry, which Il Duce already had.

The immediate result of the cabinet changes, which involved the transfer of Air Marshal Italo Balbo to the governorship of Libya, is expected to be the enactment of measure to intensify and widen the Fascistization of all defense units.

Balbo Is Disappointed.

Balbo, one of the new Italy's most colorful figures and the leader of an Italian seaplane armada to Chicago last summer, received the news of his transfer with disappointment.

He said he would take a vacation of several months before taking up his new post. His knowledge of aviation, air officers said, would help him in a colony where air travel plays a large part in keeping tribesmen in the interior under control.

The air force under Balbo, an ardent blackshirt, had already acquired the distinct fascist color sought by Mussolini. Balbo's popularity became great with the success of his transoceanic flights. He has consistently professed absolute loyalty for Il Duce in accordance with the fascist creed, and in keeping with that spirit must go uncomplainingly to his new post.

See Unification of Defenses.

Unification of the Italian defense units was foreseen eventually through the creation of a single ministry. For the time being, however, Premier Mussolini will hold the portfolios separately. Besides being the chief of the army, navy, and air forces, Mussolini, as head of the Fascist party, is the commander of the Black Shirt militia.

As the minister of the interior he commands the police. He held the same combination of reins for three and a half years until September, 1929, when he appointed separate ministers.

The premier holds six ministries in all—foreign affairs, interior, war, navy, air, and corporations. There are seven he does not occupy: Colonies, justice, finance, education, agriculture, communications, and public works.

Admiral Sirianni Out.

Admiral Giuseppe Sirianni resigned as minister of the navy. Gen. Valle was named undersecretary for air and Admiral Cavagnari was appointed undersecretary for the navy. Balbo will replace Marshal Badoglio as the Libyan governor.

Balbo was raised to the rank of air marshal from general on his return to Rome from the mass trans-Atlantic flight. He also led a mass flight across the south Atlantic to South America in 1930-'31. He was once the undersecretary for aeronautics and served as the commander in chief of the national militia. Balbo was a member of the famous "quadrumvirate" of Mussolini's march on Rome in October, 1922, leading to the Black Shirts' assumption of governmental power.

'33'S SUMMER IN CHICAGO.

In the closing days of the great exhibit at the Art Institute the crowds each day would have been regarded as satisfactory at any great football game, approaching or exceeding 40,000 interested persons. The price was only a quarter, but all told during the exhibit over a million six hundred thousand people entered to see this great display of art. It was one feature of the Fair, which up to the time originally set for its duration had collected over $8,000,000 at the gates and its concessions and exhibitions had raised the total spending to about $35,000,000.

All this was during a summer when much was despaired of. The effects spread far beyond the grounds of the Exposition. They penetrated the various business enterprises of Chicago. The city led the country in profitable activities and in working its way out of the hard times. It became a conspicuous bright spot on the national map. People came from everywhere with money in their pockets. In coming they brought a new life to the transportation systems, and railroads running into Chicago must have thought they were back in the heyday of the railroading business. Not only Chicago but neighboring cities felt the impulse out of depression and despair. Neighboring regions bucked up. The Fair was the brightest omen the country had seen. The millions who came to it did not act as if they were looking over the edge of an abyss, and the fact that they found time and money to indulge themselves in something they wanted to do and felt they could not miss was evidence that the devil was not riding them and that they did not see utter confusion as their only future.

All this was made possible by the determination of energetic and resolute private citizens to make a success out of what they had undertaken. It didn't have a subsidy from public funds and it did not have government advisers or dictators. The moral can be read for what anybody wants to make of it.

THE STAND-UP BAR.

In formulating a system of liquor control for Illinois the stand-up bar should be eliminated without hesitation and the sale of liquor by the drink should be restricted. The remarkable sweep of opinion which has disposed of the national prohibition experiment should not be permitted to cover the restoration of evils of the old system. There is one question upon which in the controversy over prohibition almost every one agreed——namely, the return of the saloon. The stand-up bar was the backbone of the old saloon where the worst habits of consumption were encouraged. The repeal of the 18th amendment makes possible the establishment of a sensible use of alcoholic beverages and the elimination of influences conducive to intemperance. Better systems of control are in successful operation in other countries and can be adapted to American conditions and needs. The field is not new and American intelligence is sufficient to formulate a system or systems for our communities. But at least for Illinois we feel strongly that the stand-up bar should be firmly eliminated.

THE AGE OF ALUMINUM.

Scientists have estimated that more than 7 per cent of the earth's crust is made up of aluminum in various chemical forms. Aluminum is said to be at once the commonest of the metals and the most widely distributed. These facts furnish the background for the news published from time to time of new and improved methods of extracting the metal from various ores. Whether any of these processes will be as successful commercially as they have been in the laboratory remains to be seen, but it is scarcely to be doubted that one of these days aluminum will be produced at far less expense than at present, and in consequence its uses will be immensely expanded.

We seem, even now, to be at the latter end of the age of steel and at the dawn of the age of aluminum alloys. They are entering more and more into the construction of all sorts of transportation equipment. The airship could hardly exist without the aluminum alloys of which its frame is constructed. The airplane builder finds them invaluable. Aluminum parts in internal combustion engines are now standard equipment. The alloys are used in automobile bodies as well as the engines. Experimental railroad cars are being built on aluminum frames with aluminum sheeting. The use of the metal in ships will be increased enormously if the cost of the metal is reduced. Almost anything which is designed to move, whether it is an automobile piston or a Pullman car, is improved if its dead weight can be reduced without increasing its bulk or sacrificing its strength. The lightness of aluminum and its strength in various alloys are its great advantages.

Its uses, of course, will not be confined to transportation. In building construction it offers great economies. It is a good conductor of electricity and in some localities is already a competitor with copper in transmission lines. As the price of aluminum drops its competitive position in the power industry will be advanced. If it is not so good a conductor it is much lighter and therefore demands a less costly type of tower to carry it.

Arnold Bennett's play, "Milestones," ought to be read by any one who thinks that steel will forever be the dominant metal in industry. Just as there were men who thought that iron could never replace wood in ship construction, and others, a generation later, who thought that steel never could replace iron, so there are those today who think that the reign of steel will never end. Incidentally it is that kind of Bourbonism which must be expected to dominate the industrial planning about which the brain trusters talk so glibly.

THE INDIANA JAIL DELIVERIES.

The recent experience of Indiana with escaped convicts deserves some serious attention from our Hoosier neighbors and indeed from all observers of crime conditions in other states. It has included the escape first of ten criminals and five weeks later of four more, the outbreak of fresh crimes plausibly ascribed to some of these fourteen, the calling out of National Guardsmen, and an appeal to federal authority for assistance. We believe such a situation could not arise without a coöperation of corrupt politics with professional crime. When fourteen convicts escape and immediately begin depredation so flagrant that extraordinary measures must be adopted there is good reason to believe the escapes were arranged for and the criminals so confident of immunity that they returned at once to their activities. They seem to have been conscious of protection in the district where they had been confined, for otherwise they would have got as far away from it and as quickly as possible.

The proceedings should be examined thoroughly. If it is, we think a drastic shakeup will be indicated. The alliance of organized crime with corrupt politics is the chief factor in the crime of this period in many, if not virtually all, communities. That alliance must be persistently exposed and attacked if we are to make any substantial advance in the war on organized crime.

DISCIPLINE IN THE FOREST ARMY.

Some of the men in the conservation corps in the Wisconsin area have been dishonorably discharged and sent home for refusal to obey orders and report for work at times specified. There has been discontent, although apparently not very active or widespread, because of new regulations covering work hours. The malcontents thought they were imposed upon and the army officers sent them home.

A change in the regulations requires that work which cannot be done because of weather conditions within the standard working hours shall be made up in the otherwise free time. Some of the men resented this taking of their day off and refused to obey. The work hours have been regulated to a low maximum and people who believe there is something of national benefit in the conservation corps idea will feel that the advantages are being maintained by discipline, which is not inconsiderate of the men surely and is considerate of the public interest. In lax hands this activity could become a travesty. The government is endeavoring to keep it going over the winter and thus sustain the morale of the young men who are much better off at work than they would be if they were returned to the communities from which they came. They should be physically and otherwise better in the corps than idle at home, and the right sort of young fellow is better satisfied knowing that he is contributing to the support of dependents as well as earning his own keep than he would be helpless upon public relief.

CHECKING UP ON THE DEMOCRATS.

(The Minneapolis Tribune.)

The notion that party platforms are constructed to win elections, and not primarily to stand upon after victories have been won, had much to substantiate it long before the Roosevelt administration came into power. Both parties have laboriously built them with tongue in cheek and each has assailed the other, on innumerable occasions, for breaking pledges which were never intended to be kept with solemn literalness. This is a story as old as American politics, and yet it is still reckoned good party strategy to drag forth the opposition's platform and submit it to a thoroughgoing scrutiny in the light of subsequent achievements.

It is hardly surprising, therefore, that the long quiescent Republican national committee should express its first sense of shock and horror over the failure of the Roosevelt administration to respect the Democratic platform. The counts in the Republican indictment are many, and some of them, it may fairly be said, have more than pure partisan bias to foundation them. Mr. Roosevelt, it is charged, signed the inflation bill and is even now moving toward a managed currency in the face of a platform pledge to preserve a sound currency at all hazards. The complaint is further made that he has failed to reduce federal expenditures by 25 per cent; that the administration has deceived the taxpayer by keeping two sets of books; that where it pledged itself to lower tariffs it is actually laying plans to raise them. The President, again, was once opposed to taxing foodstuffs, and yet the processing tax, which is indisputably a levy on foods, is a cardinal part of his farm relief program.

These and other charges are hurled at the administration by the Republican national committee. If the Democratic leaders, as reported, have been spoiling for a rousing party fight in order to dramatize issues and further rally public opinion behind the President, they should be eminently pleased by this sudden turn of events. How effective their defense will be can only be guessed, but it is a fair certainty that a categorical denial of the charges will involve some tall explaining.

The truth is that it is quite impossible to reconcile Mr. Roosevelt's policy of "bold experimentation" with the hard and fast limits of the Democratic platform on which he was elected. The President cheerfully confesses that he is proceeding on a trial and error basis; that if one plan will not work, he will not hesitate to substitute another; that his policies are fluid enough so that they may be conformed to the particular needs of the moment. In the face of this it would be futile to deny that the platform adopted at Chicago has lost much of its pertinence. A party which is pouring its plans from one test tube to another in the economic laboratory obviously cannot be too respectful of formulæ which seemed to suffice a year or more ago.

So it will hardly do to dismiss the Republican national committee as a group of disgruntled party prevaricators. A more forthright course would be to admit that circumstances have altered cases, and that in such instances as the Democratic platform has been abandoned it has been because of unforeseen emergencies. That would tend to thicken the atmosphere of cynicism which surrounds the subject of party platforms in general, but it would also justify, in the minds of many, administration policies which cannot possibly be squared with the commitments made at Chicago more than 15 months ago.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THIS DAY it practically comes to an end—the delusion that you can compel men to do anything demanded by passing a law about it. The prohibition era ends as was one of the most monumental failures ever attempted by any government. As the French proverb says, "C'est plus qu'un crime, c'est une faute." And so that you won't have to look it up, that means "It is worse than a crime, it is a blunder."

AND WHILE I'm just about as charitable as anybody else, when I pass a corner after the six states have voted today and at least three of them (probably all) have voted to send the Sacred Eighteenth running like a scared rabbit for the tall grass and the uncut timber, I am not going to drop a dime in the tin cup of the man with a hand organ just because his sign says, "Pity a Poor Bootlegger Who Can No Longer Make an Honest Living." For once he wore gorgeous raiment and a silk hat and his chauffeur tried to run his imported limousine over me while I was crossing the street. Let the bootlegger say with Cardinal Wolsey, "I have touched the highest point of all my greatness, and from the full meridian of my glory I haste now to my setting."

THE ANTIQUE DESK.

This maimed antique still breathes
From rosewood pigeonholes
Its face is marred
And splotched with ink.
Black dents and scratches seam
Where some too fervid pen
Once drummed out rhythms
On the ways of men.

An ode to sacrifice,
A song for toil,
A chant for war,
A lay for common good;
The balladry of swains,
The sonnetry of kings,
A threnody . . .
A psalm of peace.

This maimed antique still breathes
The visionings of youth—
Embellished and embossed
By time and scars and truth.

NRA IS widening out more and more. They were using it in the mayoralty campaign down in New York last week; they're making it in green candles; they're sawing it into jigsaw puzzles; school children at the word of command take the form of the mystic letters, and triplets in Idaho have been named Nry, Rry, and Ary. What worries me most is that if I ever come to the point where I'm going to be the center of interest at a funeral, instead of a floral pillow or the Gates Ajar I'll draw a large floral piece three feet high composed of the letters NRA worked in yellow hyacinths and lilies of the valley.

THE FACT that somebody has invented a Mae West cocktail reminds me that we'll soon have that to worry about—the inventing of new cocktails and names for 'em. In the old wet days everybody had a pet cocktail which either he had invented himself or somebody had told him about—the Blue Bird, the Blue Moon, the Clover Leaf, the Honeysuckle, the Garden of Eden, the Yellow Gold, the Angel's Dream, and several thousand more. And now we've forgotten 'em all and we'll have to start all over again. And gosh! how we dread it!

THE LAW OF COMPENSATION is ever at work! Up in Michigan if a deer hunter shoots a deer out of season he is haled into court and his deer hunting license revoked for three years. Down in Illinois if a snorting, wild eyed hurry-hurry driver jumps out of line and collides with your car his license isn't suspended for as long as three minutes. Because you have to have a license to hunt deer, but down in Illinois you don't have to have a license, or experience, or intelligence, or a birth certificate, or a letter from your pastor, or street car transfer, or anything. Naw! Not even brakes.

IN A GARDEN.

All is the same, from rose to moss-grown stone;
Yet all the world has changed since we were here.
For in this garden I now walk alone
The moon looks downward through the willow branches,
And fireflies are dancing everywhere—
But I see only shadows and night blackness—
I miss the golden glimmer in your hair

A mocking bird is singing in the distance,
But how can I see loveliness and beauty
When they are not reflected in your eyes?

COLDS IN THE NORTH.

One method of studying the very difficult problems related to the common cold is to observe the people in very isolated, thinly populated regions. Drs. Paul and Freese contribute to the investigation of influenza and colds now being made in Spitzbergen by one of the foundations. The general opinion is that those who live well within the arctic circle do not have colds except when the infection is brought in, though there is some testimony to the contrary.

In Longyear city, where this investigation was made, the reporters say colds never prevail except following the arrival of people from the outside. The people of the region are completely isolated for eleven months in the year. There is one month in which the weather conditions permit travelers to come and go. All of the commerce and travel of the community is limited to this one month.

Soon after the first arrivals enter the community the first case of coryza appears. In a few days the disease has become epidemic. The epidemic does not subside until the great majority of the residents have been attacked.

The length of the incubation period is about 48 hours. This means that the man who began to get sick on Thursday noon was exposed to some spreaders of the infection on Tuesday about noon. Meanwhile getting wet, getting the feet wet, being chilled, sitting in a draft on Wednesday or other intervening periods had been of only minor importance.

When a person had recovered from this cold he was immune to infection with the same microbes for a certain length of time. The average length of the immunity was seven weeks. In some it was much longer, and in others shorter. A few persons seemed to be permanently immune. After traffic had closed colds became scarcer and scarcer. Presently there were none and this condition prevailed until traffic opened the next year.

The report indicates that coryza is an infection. People catch it from those who have it or who are carriers of infection, though not sick—at least not at the time.

The ordinary bacteria habitually present in the nose and throat of the people of this isolated community were about those found in people in the tropics. The evidence indicated that these germs have nothing to do with the common cold. Nor were weather conditions or exposure to the elements of the individual a major factor. The one cause that appeared to be worthy of consideration was exposure to one capable of spreading the disease.

This study indicates that some day we will have a vaccine against colds, and those who use it a few times between September and April will escape coryza.

From Across the Sea

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

OSLO, Norway.—Norway has no beggars and Norway is intensely proud of that fact. Every official, every publicist, and nearly every Norwegian citizen points this out. Considering the fact that Norway has suffered and is still suffering from the economic crisis more than the other Scandinavian and Baltic states, it is something to be proud of.

At present her unemployment is heavy. Leaders of the Labor party place the figure at 170,000 now and expect it to rise to 200,000 this winter. The government says there are 120,000 persons unemployed now and that there will be 180,000 by winter.

Both arrive at their figure by similar calculations. First there are 33,000 trade unionists reported out of work. That figure is accepted as exact. Then there are 47,000 reported by relief societies whose figures are checked by the government. After that there are a number variously estimated who belong neither to trade unions nor relief societies. Consequently they do not come under the view of the government or the trade unions except when they apply at the state employment offices for work.

Even so, there are no beggars and as far as can be seen no starvation or even hardship. In Oslo the children in the working class districts are rosy cheeked and well clad and—best test of all in Europe—wear good shoes. The men and women look well nourished and comfortably dressed. Here's the answer:

Norway has no dole or system of state insurance like Great Britain. The duty of caring for the poor and unemployed falls first on the communes or local governments. Societies are organized and funds raised from local taxation. These funds so far as possible are spent in providing work. The state also has instituted large schemes of public work.

In addition, the government supplements the funds of the communes by a payment for each person relieved and in that way it is now spending about $2,400,000 a year. After that there is a system of poor relief for those who cannot work or for whom work cannot be provided. This costs the government $10,000,000 a year. Much of this money is provided by the profits of the liquor monopoly, which was established by the government when Norway abandoned prohibition.

One of the biggest undertakings which is being pushed as part of unemployment relief although not originally so intended, is the rebuilding of a large part of Oslo.

This space will be occupied by a park. Near the royal palace an entire quarter of old tenements is being razed. New streets are being constructed and new houses built. One of the objects of this improvement is to let the sea breezes through the town from the fiord and so improve the health of the populace.

THE END OF ANOTHER SILLY SYMPHONY

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

SO WHAT!

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 2.—Last June after 13 months of being without work and after disposing of everythin. of any value which I owned, and being at the end of my rope as it were, I joined the sisterhood which includes so many unfortunate girls and women in Chicago. Since then I have supported my husband, myself, my mother-in-law, and my little girl by a previous marriage. My husband thinks I work as a telephone operator.

In July I was arrested. Fortunately I was able to produce $20 and my case was forgotten.

Last week I was arrested again. They had not one shred of evidence that I was soliciting, as the man with whom I was caught said that he gave me no money and that I had asked for none, but I was given one year probation. Why, I would like to know, while gangsters, gunmen, and robbers of all kinds roam the streets of Chicago unmolested? Why must I be forbidden to earn a few dollars because I haven't the necessary $20 or $30 for "lawyer" fees?

Gambling houses and houses of prostitution run wide open. Gangsters and hoodlums hold forth in every block. Yet the girls trying to make a few dollars to keep body and soul together are hounded, and chased, and jailed. A little colored girl was in the court the day I was there. Several days before she had been tried and released, and she had promised to "be good" and get a job. She had come in that morning to ask if some one there would help her find work. With tears in her eyes she begged for a job, and the courtroom was full of "welfare workers." "Welfare workers"—what a joke. Do you think any one would listen to her? She left the room, probably to go back on the street again.

I am not trying to justify what I am doing. If all laws were enforced and all judges handed down fair, unbiased verdicts I could have no grounds for complaint. The whole system is hypocritical and unfair.

Greed is the fundamental force and vice in Chicago is a business. Girls who earn a living in that way are required to work in a house where a certain percentage of their earnings goes for protection. Such is vice in Chicago. Meanwhile I am a marked woman, with a year staring me in the face on one hand and want for myself and loved ones on the other. It was a supreme sacrifice for me to begin that sort of thing, and it looks as if my sacrifice was in vain.

I have a good education, good business experience, good personality. I come from American stock for several generations. My father fought in the world war; one of my grandfathers in the civil war. Yet I am denied the right to earn a living. I cannot get a job. My husband cannot get a job. So what?

"OUT OF LUCK."

THE REAL BENEFACTOR.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Referring to Ruth De Young's article in Thursday's TRIBUNE, "Italy's Premier Pays Honor to a Chicago Charity." I note he sent an autographed photograph which the local Italian consul states in a letter to Mrs. William J. Chalmers "is to be placed in your home for convalescent crippled children."

Wouldn't an autographed check be more appropriate? The Lorusso family entered the United States "fraudulently." Neither the parents nor the children in question were American citizens. Yet American money was spent on the entire family when many of our native born needed it. Miss De Young further speaks of hanging the picture "that it may be a source of inspiration to the hundreds of boys and girls who are being healed and instructed . . ." How so? Wouldn't an autographed photo of Mrs. Chalmers and the other real benefactors serve the purpose?

AGNES HARKNESS ANDERSON.

NEIGHBORHOOD PROBLEM.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—I understand that the old Clark school building at Ashland avenue and 13th street is to be converted into a relief shelter this winter. If so, I wish to protest against this for the reason that our church, the First Christian Reformed church, located on the corner of Hastings and Ashland avenue, and the First Reformed church, located at 1531 West Hastings street, will be very hard hit. These churches have catechism classes and society meetings in the evenings, and it would be very unsafe for our girls and women to attend any of these evening functions. The shelter will only be a move to bring many hobos and derelicts to the neighborhood. Our churches have been in this vicinity for over sixty-five years. Ought we not have the privilege of continuing without another hazard in addition to the purse snatchers that infest this neighborhood already?

THE RETURN OF PROHIBITION.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The people of Illinois voted to do away with prohibition, which action has apparently been taken by a lot of dense politicians to mean that the people wanted the old saloon back where hard liquor was sold for consumption on the premises. It is about time for intelligent liberals to assert themselves so that the lunatic fringe of the wet movement won't bring back prohibition.

AUSTRIA TO BUILD NEW STATE ON RUINS OF OLD

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Nov. 6.—Austria will fight Chancellor Hitler's German nazlism with some of his weapons, but not, according to a statement made to this correspondent today, with all.

Committed to fascism in her struggle to preserve her existence, on which the peace of Europe seems precariously to depend, Austria is not, however, committed to any systematic negation of liberties nor any formal anti-Semitic program.

Such were the assurances given by Engelbert Dollfuss, Europe's newest, youngest, and smallest dictator, in a long conversation in which for the first time he outlined for publication plans for an Austrian fascism that is neither German nor Italian.

He explained in detail the "stændische" state which he intends to erect on the ruins of Austrian democracy whose fifteenth birthday was to have been celebrated last Sunday. From what he had to say three things stand out.

First, his plans for a new state are based on guilds, or rather estates in the old sense, and are much further advanced than is generally believed.

Second, that though his plans are maturing they will not be put into execution until after the winter has passed.

Third, some liberal democratic ideals are to survive.

Will Set Up "Totalized" State.

"Ours will be a 'totalized' state," he said, with Hitler's Germany in mind. "Liberty will be respected as long as it remains within reasonable limits. And as to fighting another race, such as is being done in Germany now, that is alien to our political traditions and our religious views."

For all the curiosity aroused by it because of Austria's poignant situation on the map of Europe, Dollfuss has not talked about this "stændische" state until now. But when he talks he talks.

The little man is 4 feet 11 inches high, but he seems to grow as, bright eyed, direct, and incisive, he speaks his determination to cast Austria in a new mold and save her.

There is no hope for the world, he says, in Socialism or the hypernationalism of the Nazis. In Austria the class war preached so long by the Marxists must cease. The interests of worker and employer are identical.

Reviving Old Guilds.

So he is reviving the old guilds, vestiges of which still survive in Austria. They will elect representatives to the "stænde" [guild] chamber which, with the second chamber, the senate or national council, will constitute the parliament. There will be a president elected by popular vote. He will appoint the government.

The laws, Dollfuss says, will be drawn up by the government, sometimes with the advice of the "staende," and presented for acceptance or rejection to the "staende chamber" within a certain time limit. The workings of the second house have not been fixed, but it may be able to initiate legislation of a purely political nature.

Socialist Party to Live.

"In the stænde chamber, where the purely vocational interests will be represented, parties will have no place, but parties will surely not cease to exist in Austria," Dollfuss said.

This could be interpreted as assurance that the Socialistic party may not be dissolved as the Heimwehr Fascist chieftains, aids of Dollfuss, are demanding.

"The stænde system in Austria," he added, "will be on a different basis from the Italian system and will be adopted to the particular needs of our country where for centuries there has been a stænde feeling rooted in the people. Until 1907 the various chambers of commerce elected members to parliament and among the peasants there is a strong guild feeling. I am a farmer's son and the idea comes naturally to me."

Pledges No Drastic Changes.

He denied drastic changes in Austrian life, such as are going on in Germany, are contemplated. In the schools, which for 15 years have been Godless, more stress will be laid on religion, and, in a country to which patriotism has long been foreign, attempts will be made to arouse a "love of fatherland." Women will not be sent back to the kitchens, but an effort will be made to better their economic situation, so that the wife and mother can devote herself to family duties.

Dollfuss disclaims any intention of inaugurating the kind of anti-Jewish policy for which many of his adherents are clamoring. It is understood, however, that once the new guilds are created they will have authority to reduce the alleged preponderance of the Jews in the professions.

Affable and direct, Dollfuss nevertheless is a diplomat. Asked if there is any chance for the restoration of the Hapsburgs he smiled and said:

"Remember," he said, as he got ready to end the interview, "the world will be no happier from either Socialism or the kind of things the Nazis preach, and of that I am sure."

Smiling noncommittally about Hitler's designs in Austria, he nevertheless, broke out last night in a speech at Klagenfurt and said:

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—A new trial was granted today by the Supreme court to Maj. Charles A. Shepard, army surgeon, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of his wife after she was reported to have made a dying declaration that he poisoned her.

The court held the alleged statement of Mrs. Shepard did not constitute a dying declaration because it was not "spoken without hope of recovery and in the shadow of impending death."

"Fear or even belief that illness will end in death," the opinion said, "will not avail of itself to make a dying declaration. There must be a 'settled hopeless expectation' that death is near at hand and what is said must have been spoken in the shadow of its impending presence."

EDUCATION WEEK IS OBSERVED IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The celebration of education week was begun yesterday in the Chicago public schools. Throughout the week special programs will be held in assembly halls and classrooms, to which parents will flock by the thousands. The programs were announced yesterday by Supt. William J. Bogan.

At the Chicago Normal college a series of assemblies will be held. The speakers will include Dr. Charles Freeman and Dr. A. J. Brumbaugh of the University of Chicago, Peter A. Mortenson, former superintendent of the Chicago schools, and Vernon L. Bowyer.

In many of the schools Armistice day and education week programs will be combined. Special programs have been announced for the Farragut, Flower, Calumet, Crane, Hyde Park, Lindblom, Parker, Roosevelt, and Tilden High schools.

LAKE FOREST'S POLICE TO GET TWO WAY RADIO

Lake Forest's municipal council voted last night to expend $2,400 on a new two-way police radio system which is expected to aid greatly in the fashionable suburb's war on crime.

Each of the four squad cars belonging to the police force will be equipped with a microphone and a receiving set. Tests of the apparatus, it was said, have demonstrated that conversations between the car occupants and the police station are feasible.

Ald. James Griffis, who made the motion for the expenditure, said that in three years the system would pay for itself by eliminating a large number of telephone calls by the police.

KILLED BY FALL.

Beaver Dam, Wis., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Carl Strassburg, 48, carpenter, fell from a scaffold late today while at work on a store front. His head struck the sidewalk and he died while en route to the hospital.

ASSERTS FEAR OF WORLD WAR GRIPS EUROPE

The fear of another world war and its resultant crushing of the taxpayer stalks constantly in Europe and will invade the United States as a result of Germany's recent actions, Clark M. Eichelberger, executive secretary of the League of Nations association, asserted yesterday in addressing members of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations at a meeting in the Palmer house.

Mr. Eichelberger spent the summer in Europe and was present in Geneva during the greater part of the summer. He witnessed the recent disarmament negotiations which culminated in the dramatic withdrawal of Germany from both the disarmament conference and the league of nations.

"The fear that grips the hearts of Europeans as a result of the situation in Germany cannot be exaggerated," said Eichelberger. "Statesmen in adjacent countries are asking if the the German menace means that after struggling through to the point where the depression appeared to be lifting a little, that they are going back down hill and break the backs of the taxpayers with renewed armament expenditures.

"That's what is on the minds of Europeans as the radio broadcasts of Germany's strange ambitions come across their borders and into their homes. They wonder whether they should spend the money to educate their sons for the trenches, or if they should send them to Brazil or some other country from which they could not be drafted into the army."

Mr. Eichelberger has no expectation of an immediate war, however, but expressed the belief that if Germany is not halted in her present policies she will ultimately menace the peace of the world. He said he was confident that France would make no aggressive moves against Germany unless given further provocation."

"L" Celebrates 40 Years of Service; Honors Three

Officials of the Rapid Transit Lines yesterday celebrated the 40th birthday of the Lake street division by presenting jeweled service pins to three members of the force who have served for 40 years. The men honored are John J. Bruce, 4339 Maypole avenue, president of division 308, Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employés of America—the elevated employés union; George A. Pugh, 5806 West Superior street, a motorman, and Howard Van Dine, 3535 Walnut street, a motorman.

Confesses Killing Wife in Anger Over Jealousy

Donald Tracy, 30 years old, signed a confession yesterday in the Bridewell hospital that he shot and killed his wife, Lorraine, 28 years old, Sunday in their apartment at 147 West Oak street. He then shot himself three times, inflicting wounds which physicians say will probably be fatal. He shot his wife, he said, when he became angered at her jealousy of him.

DUCE MAY INVITE U. S. TO 5 POWER DISARM PARLEY

Talks Things Over with German Nazi Chief.

ROME, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The possibility that Premier Mussolini will call a meeting of the four big European powers—Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy—and the United States to consider the disarmament stalemate was seen by well informed circles here today after Il Duce and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister without portfolio, had an hour's conference.

Gen. Goering, who arrived with a retinue by airplane this afternoon, and the premier talked in the latter's Venezia palace ogers about disarmament, recovery in the Danubian area and Austria, reliable quarters said.

Seeks German Concessions.

The conversation on disarmament was said to have revolved around the method to be pursued to reopen the arms parley, which was broken off shortly after Germany withdrew from Geneva.

Mussolini was understood to have sounded out Gen. Goering, who was dressed in his full uniform, on what concessions Germany is willing to make in its demands for equality in arms before the start of a new arms conference.

It was considered most likely that the Italian premier will make no move to invite the great powers to talk things over until after Nov. 12, when Germany will vote in a plebiscite on the Nazi régime's foreign policy.

Trouble With Vatican.

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The second visit of Gen. Goering to Rome in recent weeks was said in informed circles today to be connected with difficulties between the holy see and the Prussian government concerning the appointment of a bishop in Berlin to succeed the late Bishop Schreibu.

Gen. Goering's choice for the post is Dr. Wilhelm Berning, the bishop of Osnabrueck, a Nazi, while the Vatican is said to favor Prelate Wolker of Dusseldorf, head of the Catholic Youth organization.

Other difficulties between the Vatican and the Hitlerites involve freedom of the Catholic press, liberty of charitable works carried on under the auspices of the church, and Catholic influence on the religious education of youth.

The official comment on Goering's visit in Italy was limited to the statement that the Nazi chieftain intends to inspect Prussian institutions in Rome and will probably assure the Vatican that Chancellor Hitler aims to live up to the terms of a concordat reached recently between Germany and the holy see.

NAZI POLICE CHIEF ADMITS A SLAYING AT ARSON TRIAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—Edmund Heines, chief of police at Breslau and leader of the Nazi Silesian storm troopers, today refuted charges in the "Brown Book of Hitler Terror," published some time ago in London, that he helped set fire to the reichstag building on Feb. 27. Testifying at the trial of five communists accused of having set the fire, Heines, who once was a Nazi member of the reichstag, said:

"The 'Brown Book' only continues the campaign against me started at the time of the 'feme' murders years ago. I admit I sent a traitor who intended to betray arms to a foreign enemy where traitors belong. I cannot understand the patience with which the accused are being treated here."

[This was a reference to a series of incidents which occurred thirteen years ago in Pomerania when the inter-allied disarmament commission was supervising German disarmament. In one case a German soldier revealed to the commission a hidden arms depot. Heines killed the soldier.]

Heines, who was sentenced to prison twice in 1932 under the republic—once for his part in a bombing and again for assaulting a newspaperman in the reichstag lobby—offered an alibi for his whereabouts on the day of the fire.

HERE'S NEW HEALTH FOR YOUR LIVER

Now banish bad breath, pimples, constipation; feel like a million!

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver which does not yield sufficient bile — causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something" which stimulates the bile flow.

A successful substitute for calomel, these famous tablets are compounded of pure vegetable ingredients, and have been praised for years by millions.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

NAZIS COMMAND ALL GERMANY TO 'TUNE IN' HITLER

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—Orders went forth to Germany today to prepare for "a gigantic day of creative work" Friday as a climax to Chancellor Hitler's campaign to obtain unanimous support for his domestic and foreign policies in the referendum and reichstag "election" next Sunday.

Posters pleading for the voters' support show President Paul von Hindenburg and Hitler, who was a corporal in the German army in the world war, standing arm in arm. Inscribed is this appeal: "Field marshal and corporal stand together. They want you to fight with them for peace and equality."

Factory Whistles to Blow.

On Friday at 1 p. m. factory sirens will sound and all work will stop for an hour. Incidentally, wages will also stop for an hour. At this time Hitler will address the nation to impress it with the significance of election day.

All pedestrian and vehicular traffic will pause for a minute "to illustrate to the world that the entire German nation is united behind Hitler for equal rights," according to the instructions of the ministry of propaganda.

"School children will listen to the broadcast," the instructions continue. "It is the desire of our leader that all radios in Germany be tuned in. Each household—members of the family and servants—must gather around the loud speaker."

The public has been informed of the names of only ten of the reichstag deputies they are to accept at the election. These are Hitler, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, and eight high Nazi officials.

Hitler declares he wants the "third reich" to unite behind him to show the world the passionate patriotism with which 67,000,000 Germans are demanding their "right of equal security and armament."

Diplomatic observers insist, however, that this desire is not sufficient to justify the magnitude of the campaign Hitler and his lieutenants are carrying on. They believe that he is using the cry "for honor" and other flag waving tactics to get the people in a frame of mind to accept without a murmur whatever changes he plans. In French circles it is declared that Hitler, following the referendum, will act to reintroduce partial military conscription and start rearmament as a natural consequence to Germany's withdrawal from the league of nations and the disarmament conference.

Is 43 Stories High

The topmost piece of steel in the Field building, the largest office structure in Chicago, was lifted into place yesterday. It is 535 feet above the street level. The new building is at La Salle, Adams, and Clark streets.

As soon as the steel placement was made an American flag was lifted above the tower. Witnesses who assembled for the flag raising were Howard White of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, the architects, and George Richardson, trustee of the Field estate.

Records have been set, it was said, in the steel construction. The first and second units, each 25 stories high, were completed with 320 and 280 hours, respectively, for the steel placement. The third unit, which includes the additional 18 floors of the tower, required 456 hours of work. Ordinarily, according to Robert Carpenter, building manager, 600 hours would have been required for each of the first two units. The first is now occupied and the whole building will be ready for occupancy May 1, 1934.

ESCAPE FROM FEAR!

STOP living in eternal dread of gum-diseases and tooth-decay. With the care of a good dentist, and Squibb's Dental Cream guarding The Danger Line, you're as safe as scientific protection can make you.

Squibb's is a 5-way guardian of teeth and gums. It cleans effectively and polishes safely. It prevents bleeding of the gums by safe cleansing—not by the use of dangerous astringents. It combats the germ acids that cause tooth-decay. And its use is true economy.

You'll like the clean, delightful taste of Squibb's. Even children enjoy brushing their teeth with it twice a day. But that's not all. Because it is made by Squibb, you can rest secure in the knowledge that Squibb's Dental Cream is safe and dependable.

The Danger Line is the area where the thin edge of the gum encircles each tooth, forming tiny ledges, difficult to reach by brushing. Here food particles collect and bacteria multiply, generating acids. Not one, but all your teeth are endangered by unhealthy gums. When you use Squibb's Dental Cream, you force into the sheltered areas countless antacid particles which combat the germ acids and protect the gums.*

BALDWIN INSISTS DEMOCRACY HAS COLLAPSED IN U.S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Three British cabinet leaders—Prime Minister MacDonald, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, and Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council and lord privy seal—today defended the national government as democracy's last bulwark against a dictatorship in Great Britain.

The occasion was a luncheon given in honor of the distinguished trio by the national labor committee. It was strategically chosen to take place the day before parliament reassembles.

The three leaders declared themselves in absolute accord that the present fusion cabinet, organized two years ago during a national crisis, must remain in power for a long time.

Baldwin Sounds Warning.

When and if it does dissolve, Baldwin warned, there will be a general election on the great issue of whether Britain is to continue with parliamentary institutions or surrender to a dictatorship, either Fascist or communist.

"The ordinary constitution has certainly broken down in the United States, and they are practically under a dictatorship," he said. "Great Britain is the sole guardian of democracy. It certainly would be interesting to see what the backwash of America or Germany will be in 12 or 18 months. Thank God we are not an hysterical nation. Above all we must bring home the real need for the preservation of democracy in this country."

The speakers barely touched on a deeper political movement which is now becoming evident and which portends political developments of the greatest significance. MacDonald, with a handful of National Laborites, Baldwin, leading an overwhelming Conservative majority, and Simon at the head of his branch of the Liberal party are planning to complete a reorganization of the present setup along permanent national party lines. There no longer would be a fusion but a new entity able to go before the electorate with the promise to save the country from another Hitler or Stalin.

Oppose Corporate State.

At the moment Sir Stafford Cripps, solicitor general in the last Labor government, and Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Fascisti, are openly advocating a British corporate state, Cripps under the dictatorship of the proletariat and Mosley under his British Black Shirts.

"The condition of the world today is such that Britain must not by any means attempt to restore party government," he said. "It would not only be a mistake but a crime."

Britain, he said, is leading the world today and the national government should seek to imbue the nation with "new vision and new energy to pursue national affairs." These qualities, he asserted, form the basis of the success on which continental dictatorship was founded.

Pleads for Coöperation.

"Can three parties in opposition do this?" he inquired. "I believe it is impossible. Three parties in coöperation—will they do it? I believe it is possible."

This statement was interpreted by some of the prime minister's hearers as a forecast of a nationalist emergency government ruling by decree.

Simon was equally emphatic that parliament must be guarded in Britain and he hailed the national government as the vital agency in preserving democracy.

"Great Britain is one of the few ancient countries in the world in which parliamentary institutions are actively operating with success," the foreign secretary said. "In Germany parliamentary institutions survive after a fashion, but only on the principle nobody should vote for any one except the government candidate."

is the manner in which these deadly infections spread!

Medical authorities assert that every untreated case of gonorrhea and syphilis leads to an average of 6 new infections. In fact, as many as 17 cases of syphilis have actually been traced to a single individual!

Hence it is evident that the responsibility for the enormous spread of venereal diseases in this country rests largely on those sufferers who are not under medical care. Each year they contribute to more than two million fresh cases of gonorrhea and syphilis (according to U. S. Public Health Service estimates)!

There is a lesson in this for every man and woman who has a venereal disease. And that lesson is—put yourself in the hands of a good physician as quickly as possible and continue treatment until he says you are cured! Otherwise you may bring suffering and even death to others, including those nearest and dearest to you.

Gonorrhea and syphilis are two of the most deadly infections known to medical science. The former may be the cause of sterility, prostate trouble, crippling rheumatism and other grave disorders, while the latter may lead to heart disease, blindness, deafness, apoplexy, paralysis or even insanity!

Syphilis, in particular, requires instant attention, for in its early stages it is very catching. The man with an untreated case who is not careful to use only his own brushes, towels, tableware and similar articles may easily infect his family or fellow workers. It is also possible to give another person syphilis merely by a kiss!

Thus it is obvious that anyone with syphilis or gonorrhea should seek reliable medical treatment immediately. Especially is this true of married people, for not only do they run the risk of infecting one another but even their children may suffer tragic consequences unless treatment is instituted promptly.

For instance, the expectant mother with untreated gonorrhea runs the risk of having her baby blinded at birth. And the pregnant woman with untreated syphilis is very likely to have a stillbirth, or to give birth to an infant so defective that it will die within a few months!

For these many reasons, no man or woman with syphilis or gonorrhea should delay in consulting a physician. In fact, even those who have no particular cause to suspect infection should be examined, for syphilis can be inherited or otherwise innocently acquired and thus exist without the victim's knowledge. Therefore, go at once to your family doctor or come to the Public Health Institute!

Founded by prominent Chicagoans NOT FOR PROFIT the Public Health Institute specializes in the treatment of venereal diseases at remarkably low fees. An examination for syphilis and gonorrhea, including Wassermann and Kahn blood tests, costs only $3.00, while treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 each and some of those for gonorrhea still less. Even persons pressed for funds can arrange to be treated.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

Assembly Ball Will Be Held December 15

First Friday Date Changed Because of Repeal.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MRS. LESTER ARMOUR graciously is changing the date of the dinner dance she is giving for two debutantes of the season, Miss Patsy Keith and Miss Nancy Morse, from Dec. 15 to Dec. 8 so that the one and only Assembly ball of the winter can be given on the 15th.

For years it has been the custom for the first Assembly—up until last year there were two each winter except when there were none—to be given on the first Friday in December. But since this year Dec. 7 is sure to be a red letter day in the history of our country [ratification of the 21st amendment is expected at that time] the conservative governors of the Assemblies feel that Dec. 8 hardly is a proper date for such a formal and dignified party as an Assembly.

The crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel is the place selected for this year's affair and as usual there will be any number of dinner parties beforehand.

Arthur Meeker, chairman of the board of governors, and Mrs. Meeker usually give one of the largest dinner parties before the ball, but Mrs. Meeker hasn't decided yet whether she will be a dinner hostess this year or not. Since there is to be only one ball the receiving line will be long for the wives of all the governors will be in the line.

Two Receiving Lines at Former Parties.

When there are two balls the wives of the older governors receive at the first affair and those of the younger ones at the second. Mrs. Armour will be one of the those who will receive the six or seven hundred who attend the ball for her husband is one of the governors. The other governors in addition to Mr. Meeker and Mr. Armour are William McCormick Blair, Augustus A. Carpenter, Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Stanley Field, Robert A. Gardner, Howard F. Gillette, Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Charles G. King, Harold F. McCormick, Eames MacVeagh, William H. Mitchell, William R. Odell, Albert A. Sprague, and John A. Stevenson.

Miss Keith, who is the daughter of the Stanley Keiths, and Miss Morse, who is the George Richardsons' daughter, are two of the most entertained of the season's buds, not only because of their own charm and popularity, but because their parents are such favorites in the smart set in Lake Forest in which they move. The Armours themselves will be having a debutante in their family before very many years have passed for their Betty is away for her first year at boarding school this winter. She is at Miss Walker's at Simsbury, Conn.

Decide Not to Hold Twelfth Night Ball.

Unless they change their minds the twelve mysterious knights who plan the Twelfth Night ball when there is one aren't going to attempt to give one this winter, according to information received from one of them yesterday.

Perhaps as the season advances they'll decide differently, however, and call a meeting and make plans for what always used to be the gayest party of each winter. Last year there wasn't a Twelfth Night ball but there was one the year before, a much more simple one, however, than those of pre-depression days when the decorations were something to make one gasp and the costumes were equally as gorgeous.

To judge by the large and fashionable audience that filled the Grand Opera house last night for the benefit performance of "Bittersweet," sponsored by the Kenwood Social Service club, the Evanston and North Shore Smith College club will add materially to its scholarship fund this evening. The club has taken the opera house for tonight and Mrs. Norman Waite, the general chairman, reports "almost a sell out."

Many of the north shore alumnae of the eastern school are planning parties beforehand. A dozen of the youngest alumnae, however, are eating a hasty supper in order to be at the theater a half hour before the first curtain to sell gardenias. The vendors include Miss Eleanor Cushman, Miss Carolyn Erminger, Mrs. Henry H. Brigham, Miss Jean Armstrong, and Mrs. Ruben Perin.

Here's a Reminder of Christmas Time.

It makes one realize that it won't be long until Christmas when announcements of the St. James utility and food sale are received, for that always is held just about a month before Christmas. This year it is to be on Tuesday, Nov. 28, from 10 in the morning until 10 at night with tea from 3:30 until 5:30 o'clock, and a turkey dinner at 6:30 and 7:30.

Mrs. Robert F. Hall is taking reservations for the dinner, and judging by previous years, we know her telephone will be busy receiving reservations even so far ahead as now for that dollar dinner that the woman's guild serves is noted far and wide.

Mrs. Fremont A. Chandler is chairman of the guild, and among the well known women who are members are Miss Lyla Woodruff, Mrs. Frederick Belknap, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson, Mrs. Alan C. Dixon, Mrs. Orville J. Taylor, Mrs. Alvin C. McCord, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh and Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine.

The Christmas question will be answered for more than one person on Dec. 6, when the Woman's auxiliary of Grant hospital holds its annual holiday sale at the home of Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt at 1547 Dearborn parkway. Mrs. Henry Bartholomay is the general chairman of the selling, and among those who will be assisting are Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Mrs. Frank

Dramatic Stage Comes to Life as Guild Presents 'Biogra

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

WHENEVER the Theater Guild takes charge of the dramatic stage the report of that institution's death seems to have been grossly exaggerated. Last night, under the magic touch of the Guild, the late corpse was brilliantly resurrected and began a brave new life in Chicago, laughing as if it had enjoyed its descent into the nether world.

The play was "Biography," mellowed by a year of success in New York—a keen and graceful comedy, written with literary charm and acted with high skill and consummate persuasion by a cast that comes close to perfection. The occasion was the opening of the American Theater society's subscription season at the Erlanger theater and its program of six productions.

The honors of the première, however, were chiefly Ina Claire's. Six years after her departure for Hollywood this admirable comedienne returns to us, unchanged, it seems, except for a deepening in the glow of her sunny sense of humor and an enrichment of her power to charm and captivate an audience.

Miss Claire had acted many gracious ladies in comedies of manners before she kissed the stage good-by for a term of years at the close of the tour of "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney." She was then accepted as the leader in her class. Her performance in "Biography," serenely accomplished and suavely entrancing, is no matter of surprise because of its superior quality. It must be greeted with emphatic recognition, however, for it puts the cap on her already notable career. This is Miss Claire's finest character study, and therefore a subject for general cheers.

She appears as a blithe, sympathetic young woman of the world who has had a somewhat sensational career as a portrait painter. The type is fairly well known. The women who rove the studios of the world, persuading dictators, prime ministers and other statesmen to sit for their pictures or their busts, more by social gift than by talent, frequently figure in the news and gossip of the day. Such a one is Ina Claire in "Biography," with an active love-life to make a piquant sauce for the casual, lightly satirical tale.

How she is persuaded to write her memoirs for publication in a magazine that flourishes upon such indiscretions; how the thought that the lady will tell all worries the next senator from Tennessee, who happened to have been her first lover; how there is a great fluttering among the stuffed shirts over Ina's forthcoming confessions; how she falls in love, somewhat maternally, with the savage young radical who is her sponsoring editor; and how she emerges from the mixup as a gay, happy, untrammeled creature without compromising her spiritual dignity—this is the trend the story takes.

To be a true gentlewoman although rated as a female Casanova is the problem that "Biography" assigns to its leading actress. Miss Claire solves it perfectly.

The others in the company represent the Theater Guild's standard policy of "casting" as a fine art. Earle Larimore is winning as the cantankerous journalist in spite of the fact that the character is in a chronic state of overpowering grouchiness at the world. Jay Fassett is effective as the stuffed shirt who hopes to represent his state in the United States senate. Arnold Korff's study of an old composer from Vienna adds grace to the play's atmosphere of upper Bohemia, and Charles Richman brings rich experience to Stuffed Shirt No. 2, who strikingly resembles a well known publisher of newspapers and magazines.

"BIOGRAPHY."

New Evening Togs Fashioned in Velvet, Fur

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Long, draped, devastatingly picturesque affairs—these newly arrived evening wraps! Long sleeved models that are fashioned of shimmering long lengths of colored velvets that remind you of pictures from illustrated fairy tales. You can buy them with or without fur, but all of them will enable you to stage a spectacular entrance where ever you go.

If you like chinchilla you will not sleep till one stunning model trimmed with this fur is hanging in your wardrobe. Huge bishop sleeves that are gathered snugly into wristbands are made entirely of this flattering gray chinchilla [simulated], while a high most becoming collar, also of the same fur, will frame the face. It is especially pleasing in a smoke gray velvet and good enough to rave over in a bronzeen green shade.

Another velvet wrap that will completely cover you from ears to toes is made of deep red velvet, the exact color of sun on mahogany . . . a color that will top any and every kind of evening costume you may possess. Spicy brown kolinsky fur trims the sleeves and fashions the collar. Pictorial effects can be achieved with some of the new green shades and you can be assured of sensational success with a new wrap made after the pattern of your grandmother's dolman, only granny's was possibly hip length, while the 1933 version sweeps the floor. Anyway, the sleeves are clever affairs that look like sleeves, when they are not, just deft drapings that fool even an expert.

These demurely charming models are without fur, but boast a long scarf collar that can be twisted a dozen ways . . . and a price tag to make you grab quickly before they have vanished.

Princess Barbara Hutton Returns with Her Mdivani Husband

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani came home today with her Georgian nobleman, a slim waistline, and a pronouncement that the buxom styles of America had not reached the boulevards of Paris.

"Paris dresses are just the same," said Princess Barbara. She had a flock of Parisian gowns in her trunks.

"I am very, very happy"—the heiress to the Woolworth five-and-ten fortune smiled demurely when she said it.

Her husband, Prince Alexis Mdivani, agreed.

It is their first visit to the United States since their marriage in Paris last June.

She had 12 pieces of luggage, her maid, and an inclination to see some plays on Broadway when she arrived on the Bremen.

He had his valet, his old governess, 12 pieces of luggage, and a desire to talk American politics.

The prince declined gracefully to discuss his brothers' marital difficulties. He is the brother of the former husbands of Mary McCormic and Mae Murray.

They will spend three months at the home of the bride's father, Franklyn L. Hutton, and thereafter may go to California or China.

She picked out a family of bankers about which to develop her absorbing tale, although when she began the book she had no idea of the tragedies that were to befall banks and bankers in the ensuing year. When she reached the point in the book where the family bank fails, she was at a loss about how to handle it, so she asked her husband, Cecil Barnes, how a bank goes about failing. She took notes on the things he told her, as he was leaving for a trip east, and wrote it while he was away. When he returned he read the part she had written and was overcome with admiration for the masterful way she had handled it, knowing how foreign the subject was to her.

"Well, now I understand how they can teach a horse to add," he commented admiringly.

A FELLOW was driving through Milwaukee the other day, minding his business, when he approached an intersection with the light in his favor. A car traveling a short distance ahead of him pulled out from the curb directly ahead of him, forcing him to make an abrupt halt. Poking his head out of the car he called angrily to the woman driver of the other car:

"Where in hell are your hands?"

Whereupon the lady, lifting each of the lily white members under discussion to her nose, remarked:

"Here is one. And here's the other."

IT probably is of little interest to the younger generation, but to these old eyes and ears to whom the radio is a great wonder, it was of interest to hear a party of duck shooters tell of a little incident that occurred on their way back from Duck Island, Ill., Sunday night. The party was driving in Allan M. Clement's handsome car over a fine motor road, the allotted number of ducks in their bag, when Mr. Clement turned on the radio. He got Paris, France, at the first turn of the dial.

Says Equality Is Key to Ideal in Matrimony

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Four hundred women, members of the Chicago Drama league, considered the ideal state of matrimony last night. It is, they explained in the words of Dr. Louis K. Anspacher of New York, a relation where independence is equal, dependence is mutual, and obligations reciprocal.

They had learned their definition from Dr. Anspacher yesterday afternoon at the Drama league's opening reception of the season in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel. In a stirring vindication of feminine freedom, the gray haired dramatist and lecturer traced the status of woman from the day she was considered "the original sin."

"The ideal marriage," he said in climax, "means equal independence, mutual dependence, and reciprocal obligations. This way woman is neither divinity nor chattel but the true mate of man.

"The future of the race depends upon such relationship. Man and woman are equally but differently endowed. In the past their differences rather than their equalities have been magnified. I do not mean that the differences should be obliterated. I dislike a masculine woman just as much as I do a feminine man, but let each be liberated to make the best contributions possible."

Dr. Anspacher came to Chicago yesterday as the house guest of Mrs. Mary Welch Dickinson after having made a tour of a dozen colleges and universities where he addressed more than 6,000 young women students.

"They are different," he said in speaking of his tour. "These students have a pagan frankness. They are not hypocrites. The new woman is womanly rather than feminine."

Traveling the trail of history, Dr. Anspacher recalled that it was at the Council of Macon in 585 that woman was first declared a human being. There, he explained, after 11 months of discussion the council decided by three votes that woman had a soul. Reverting even back of this he drew upon biblical references to show that in testamentary times "the greatest misfortune was to born a woman, that the greatest good was celibacy."

"We talk about falling in love today," he continued. "This is an ignominious capitulation, for one must rise to love. 'Falling in love' is a slang expression based on the biblical estimate of woman."

In Tennyson's "Idylls of the King" and the ever-refreshing romance of Lancelot and Guinevere, Dr. Anspacher found the woman of the Renaissance . . . the days when the denunciation of femininity was lost. "Woman then was the personification of divinity," he pointed out.

"It took her a long time, however, to realize that what she wanted wasn't gallantry but rights. The blue stocking women in England were the ones to lead the way in this direction. They were the ancestors of our bachelor girls . . . Florence Nightingale, Susan B. Anthony, and all the rest."

Modern biology and anthropology, current economics, and the world war he gave as the three causes of feminine independence today.

Alice Tully, New York Society Girl, Cheered at Opera Debut There

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A New York society girl, Alice Tully, made her debut in American grand opera tonight amidst loud and long applause at the Hippodrome.

Miss Tully, a niece of former Ambassador Alanson Houghton, studied in Paris for six years and made her first concert appearance there in 1927.

Her appearance tonight brought for the first time a good sprinkling of society people to Alfredo Salmaggi's Chicago Grand Opera company. Within a few weeks she will return to Europe for an engagement with the Opera Comique in Paris.

CHASE AND SEIZE AUTOIST AFTER CAR HITS WOMEN

Three Hurt While Standing on Safety Island.

James Moore, 2717 Evergreen avenue, was pursued and captured by a police squad yesterday as he drove away after his automobile had struck and injured three women, one of them severely, while they were standing in a safety island at Center and Clark streets. Moore was charged with driving while intoxicated and drunkenness. A companion in the car, Theodore Galus, 1068 Fry street, was charged with disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

The victims of the accident were Miss Flora Zulu, 26 years old, 1748 Balmoral avenue; Mrs. Jeanette Janovitz, 40 years old, 3006 Armitage avenue, and Miss Ida Gecht, 20 years old, 3006 Armitage avenue.

Miss Gecht was taken to the county hospital, where it was said she was suffering from internal injuries. Miss Zulu and Mrs. Janovitz were treated at Augustana hospital for minor injuries and taken to their homes.

Car Forced to Curb.

As the careening car sped southwest in Ogden avenue after running down the women, a police squad composed of Patrick Deegan and Fred Osterkorn of Hudson avenue took up the chase. Moore's car was forced to the curb by the police car in front of 845 Ogden avenue and the two occupants arrested.

Two motor fatalities in Cook county yesterday increased the 1933 toll to 930. The victims:

Arthur H. Reinhardt, 53 years old, La Crosse, Wis. Died in Oak Park hospital of a skull fracture believed by police to have been inflicted by a hit and run automobile. He was found unconscious late Saturday night in Roosevelt road in Forest Park.

Charles Henning, 70 years old, 7019 Verpon avenue. Died in Jackson Park hospital of injuries incurred last Friday when he was struck by an automobile at South Chicago avenue and 69th street.

Judge's Son Figures in Accident.

Anthony Mikas, 16 years old, 616 York place, was severely injured yesterday when he was thrown through the windshield of a car driven by Walter Steffen, 16 years old, 3162 Pine Grove avenue, son of Judge Walter P. Steffen. Young Steffen and Mikas were riding in the former's automobile when Mikas asked to be allowed to drive. He stood up to change seats with Steffen as the latter brought the car to a sudden stop in front of 3352 Seminary avenue. Mikas was thrown through the windshield and suffered serious cuts about the head and face. He was taken to John B. Murphy hospital.

Mrs. Emma Heller, 62 years old, of Beecher, in Will county, died in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, last night a few minutes after she had been taken there by her husband, Edward, who told attendants she had been injured when his automobile collided with a truck near Beecher. Heller was slightly injured.

Found Dead Under Wrecked Auto.

William Martinkius, 58 years old, who lived two miles west of Lake Villa, in Lake county, was found dead yesterday beneath the wreckage of his automobile at the side of state route 59 on the east shore of Fox lake. Martinkius apparently lost control of the automobile, which had run into a ditch and overturned.

Joseph Smolke, 22 years old, was killed yesterday when th. motorcycle he was riding crashed into an automobile driven by John Kurek of Indiana Harbor. Kurek and John Kocat, Hammond, who was riding with Smolke, were badly hurt.

NEW WILLS FILED IN PROBATE COURT

Six wills were filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin in the Probate court yesterday and were approved by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge, as follows:

CATHERINE MALONE, died June 11. Estate, $8,000, to two daughters, W. A. and Victor Malone, sons, are executors.

WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD, died Sept. 24. Estate, $23,000, to widow, three children and grandson, John and Henry Crawford, sons, are executors.

THOMAS BALL, died July 19. Estate, $4,000, to widow and son. Gertrude Ball, widow, is executrix.

MARGARET BIZOLD, died Oct. 14. Estate, $4,150, to son, Henry Eden, who is executor.

BERNHARDT N. J. JACOBS, died Nov. 1. Estate, $8,500, to three children. Gertrude Helen Bauer, daughter, is executrix.

FATE TAKES HAND, RELIEVES STATE OF MURDER CASE

The law will never have to trouble any more about the fate of Andrew J. Carr, killer of two men, nor about his brother George, who aided him in his escape from the Chicago police. Both are dead.

George Barthelemy, 30 years old, 2842 Thomas street, and Frank Dudek, 22 years old, 922 North Francisco avenue, were shot and killed June 25 at Thomas street and Francisco avenue. They had attended a party a little earlier at the home of Alfred Schoeben, 1101 North Francisco avenue, and Policeman Fred Susenback, after a long investigation, discovered that Andrew Carr was the killer. He had been an uninvited guest, and a quarrelsome one, at Schoeben's.

Carr fled to Covington, Ky., his brother driving a car for him. On the way back to his own home in Lorain, O., George Carr was killed in an automobile accident. That was on July 4. The Chicago police have now learned that Andrew met the same fate near Covington in August.

T. T. LYMAN RITES TO BE CONDUCTED BY BISHOP TODAY

Funeral services for Thomas T. Lyman, senior warden of St. Luke's Episcopal pro-cathedral and a former official of the Johns-Manville company, will be held this morning at St. Luke's with Bishop George Craig Stewart and Dean Gerald G. Moore officiating. Burial will be in the Episcopal section of Memorial Park cemetery.

Mr. Lyman died Sunday in his home at 1621 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston, after he had been ill a week of pneumonia. He was 70 years old.

He was a trustee of Nashotah seminary, an Episcopal theological school near Nashotah, Wis. Mr. Lyman retired from active business several years ago, leaving the position of manager in the middle west for the Johns-Manville company. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Sylvester A. Lyman, Alfred T. Lyman, and a daughter, Lillia O. Lyman, all of Evanston.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

TEXAS GUINAN'S BODY WILL LIE IN STATE HERE

Chicago friends of Texas Guinan, night club entertainer, who died on Sunday in Vancouver, B. C., were awaiting word yesterday of the time of the arrival of her body here. A wake will be held in Chicago, which was another home of the actress who rose to fame on Broadway.

Mike Fritzel of the Chez Paree, Ralph Gallett of the Club Royale, and numerous others active in Chicago's night life were named as those planning to do honor to her memory. Many of the girls who were formerly in Guinan shows are here now and they want an opportunity to pay their respects.

Word from Miss Guinan's brothers in Vancouver was that in accord with her last wishes she will be buried in New York, but her body will lie in state here for a brief period. The "wake theater" so far has not been selected. However, performers such as Harry Richman, Joe Frisco, Joe Lewis, Sammy Walsh, Cliff Winehill, and troupers like "Babe" Fenton and Gwen Sweeney, along with many legitimate stage players and orchestra leaders and members, said they would be present.

Brother to Escort Body.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Funeral services for Texas Guinan will be held in New York City at St. Malachi's church, of which she was a member, friends here said today. The body of Miss Guinan will be taken to New York tomorrow by George Guinan of Portland, a brother.

"I would rather have a square inch of New York than all the rest of the world," she told her manager, Eddie Baker, when she requested that she be buried there.

7 BODIES TAKEN FROM HOUSE HIT BY GUARD PLANE

Red Bank, N. J., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—The bodies of seven persons were recovered today from the charred ruins of the two story frame bungalow in Shrewsbury township, destroyed last night when an airplane crashed through the roof and exploded. Four inquiries into the crash were started today.

The search of the ruins was continued, although police said they did not believe there were any more victims.

Two of the dead were in the airplane. One was Lieut. George R. [Tuck] Johnson, 32, noted aerial explorer and member of the New Jersey National Guard, who was piloting the plane, and the other was his passenger, Sergt. Alfred W. Poole, 35, also of the National Guard. Their bodies were recovered first.

James Conroyd Funeral Tomorrow; School Engineer

Funeral services for James Conroyd, engineer at the Yates public school, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow in his home at 4844 North Ridgeway avenue. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Conroyd, who was 73 years old, died Sunday of heart disease. He had been employed by the school board for 21 years, and before that was assistant to his father, James Conroyd Sr., who was the first engineer of the old county building. His widow, Mrs. Anne Johnson Conroyd; two daughters, Mrs. Lenore Spaulding and Mrs. Marguerite Radcliffe, and five sons, David L., William A., Walter E., Charles S., and Ralph Conroyd, survive.

Fr. Holton, Loyola Dean, to Conduct Mother's Funeral

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Holton, 67 years old, who died of heart disease Sunday, will be conducted by her son, the Rev. Edward C. Holton, dean of students at Loyola university, at 9:30 o'clock this morning at St. Dorothy's church, 450 East 78th street. Burial will be at Holy Sepulchre cemetery. Mrs. Holton, who had lived in Chicago for more than 50 years, died at her home at 8022 Rhodes avenue. She is survived by her husband, William Holton; a daughter, Marie, and three sons, Frank, William J., and Father Holton.

Mrs. Emily Spofford's Funeral to Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Emily Spofford, member of a pioneer west side family, will be held this afternoon at the chapel at 523 Lake street, Oak Park, with burial in Waldheim cemetery. Mrs. Spofford died Sunday in her home at 1113 Holley court, Oak Park. She was 57 years old. Mrs. Spofford is survived by a son, Clarence; a daughter, Mrs. Jessie Tucker, and two grandchildren. She was the daughter of John A. Dahmke, long prominent in business and civic affairs on the old west side.

E. T. BIRDSALL, VETERAN AUTO DESIGNER, DIES

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Edward Tracy Birdsall, a pioneer in the development of automobiles and aircraft engines, died at his home here today after a long illness. He was 70 years old.

Birdsall built some of the first automobiles in this country and was one of the founders of the Society of Automotive Engineers. At the time of his death he was research engineer for the Lawrence Engineering and Research company of New York.

He was graduated from the Stevens Institute of Technology in New York in 1886. He conducted pioneer auto experiments with the Stearn, Partridge and other interests and aided in the development of the Diesel engine for aviation purposes.

RITES TOMORROW FOR MRS. ANGELA KETTENHOFEN

Funeral services for Mrs. Angela Kettenhofen, a lifelong resident of Chicago, will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow in Our Lady of Victory church, Agatite and Laramie avenues. Burial will be in St. Boniface's cemetery. Mrs. Kettenhofen, who was 81 years old, died Sunday in her home at 5527 Cullom avenue. She was a daughter of Bernard Heing, who landed in New Orleans from Germany in 1833, went by boat to Galena, Ill., and then walked overland to Chicago. Her husband, Peter Kettenhofen, a dealer in religious supplies, died a number of years ago. A daughter, Miss Catherine Kettenhofen, survives.

150 INDIVIDUAL TAXI LICENSE PLEAS HEARD

Applications of 150 individuals for licenses to operate taxicabs were heard yesterday by the city public vehicle license commission during an all day session in the city hall. The applications were taken under advisement and the commission adjourned until Thursday, at which time the applications of several new taxicab companies will be heard.

Information was brought out in the hearing that nearly all of the individuals who have applications pending have been operating without licenses. Corporation Counsel Sexton, a member of the commission, then warned drivers without licenses that if they do not remove their cabs from the streets the commission will not consider their applications.

Among the companies that are seeking licenses are the Public Taxi Service company, which has been operating cabs more than a year under an arrangement with the city council; the Capital company, and the Eagle Cab company. The latter company put several new cabs on the streets a week ago without licenses, following which a number of its drivers were arrested by the police.

Head of Russia's "Secret Army" in France Is Dead

PARIS, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Gen. Nicholas Lokhvitsky, commander of the Russian expeditionary force in France, which was often described as a "secret army" during the world war, died today at the age of 65. The force was supposed to have crossed England in sealed trains.

IN every neighborhood, Chicago families realize the nearness, the remarkable promptness and superiority of Hursen service in directing funerals.
They know that Hursen elegance, Hursen unmatchable equipment, and the use of Hursen Organ-Chapels, always free, cannot be matched in their own neighborhood.
They know, too, that Hursen funerals cost less!

Assembly Ball Will Be Held December 15

S. Porter, Mrs. Paul Brauer, Mrs. Philip Starck, Mrs. Walter Birk, Mrs. Dewes Burgweger, Mrs. William O. Orth, Mrs. Taylor Strawn, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, and Miss Dorothy Schmidt. Tea will be served during the afternoon to the especial friends of the auxiliary members.

Albert B. Pattous Have New Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brace Pattou are being congratulated upon the birth of a son. The baby has been named Gerald Elting Pattou. He has a brother and sister. The Pattous moved recently from Green Bay road to Kennington terrace in Lake Forest.

After a visit with the Albert Erskines their daughter, Mrs. Paul Fenimore Cooper, and her husband and their three and a half year old son, Paul Jr., are leaving this morning to spend the winter in Arizona. They are motoring west from their home in Cooperstown, N. Y.

Mrs. David Peck, Mrs. Martin Howard and Mrs. Snelling Robinson are leaving Lake Forest today to motor east for a ten days' trip.

Mrs. Robert E. Wood and her daughter, Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis, have gone east to see their son and brother, Robert W. Wood II., who is at West Point. They are calling for the Woods' youngest daughter, Anne, who is at Farmington and together they will see one or two of the army football games. Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Tullis will spend two weeks with Mrs. Wood's sister, Mrs. Ernest Stires, in Garden City, Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. William Pope of Winnetka are being congratulated on the birth of a son, their first child. They have named the baby Robert Bear Pope after his maternal grandfather, the late Robert Guy Bear. Mrs. Pope is the former Eleanore Bear of Evanston.

Series of Dinners for Debutantes.

Instead of making a formal debut at a large tea or ball this winter, Miss Elsa Kochs, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Kochs, is to have a series of dinner parties at which she will entertain her sister debutantes and their beaux and some of her family's friends. Mr. and Mrs. Kochs have issued invitations for the first party Friday evening at their home. Following dinner Miss Kochs will take her guests to dance in the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel.

Pumpkin colored cards announce the luncheon and card party the Ladies of the Consuls are to have today at the Belden Stratford hotel. Mrs. Berthold Singer is the founder president of the group and Mrs. Elmer Forsberg the chairman.

The provisional members of the Chicago Lighthouse Volunteer Aids are going over to the Lighthouse on West 22d street this afternoon for tea and an inspection of the institution.

Herman Devries will call upon personal experience when he gives his reminiscences of Bizet at the meeting of Le Cercle Français this afternoon. Mr. Devries, as a young man, lived and studied with the master. To complete the program, Mlle. Aida Ventos accompanied by Mrs. Devries, will illustrate the talk with several of Bizet's rarest songs.

New Social Group on South Side.

When Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley [Mary Hastings Bradley, as she is perhaps better known] commented to a group of her south side friends recently that there were plenty of attractive young people on the south side, but that they never seemed to have any social life among themselves, they took her comment seriously.

The result is the formation of the University Colony club, composed mostly of parents who are members of the Quadrangle club at the University of Chicago. Yesterday the directors met at the home of the president, Mrs. Charles W. Gilkey, and planned a series of parties for their sons and daughters.

The first, they decided, will be a dance during the Christmas holidays, probably Christmas night, at one of the downtown clubs or hotels. Mrs. Bradley's daughter, Alice, will be home from Sarah Lawrence college then and so will Miss Frances Fairweather. Dr. and Mrs. Gilkey's two children, Mary Jane and Langdon, who are at preparatory schools in the east this year, will be others back for the party.

Mrs. Gilkey, who was an absent hostess because of illness, describes the club as "a group of parents interested in maintaining certain traditions and standards among the young people of the neighborhood through providing entertainment for their sons and daughters which reflects the social ideals of their individual homes."

Mrs. Scott Will Give Luncheon.

As soon as Mrs. Walter Dill Scott heard that Rockwell Kent was going to lecture this afternoon at a joint meeting of the University guild of Evanston and the Evanston Woman's club she invited Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins to be her guest at luncheon at the Woman's club preceding the lecture. Two such ardent modernists as Mr. Kent and Mrs. Hutchins, she reasoned, would enjoy an hour or so of comparative conversation. The lecture is scheduled for 2:30.

Mrs. Scott and her husband, the president of Northwestern university, are concentrating their social interest this fall on a series of football teas. With homecoming this coming weekend, they have extended especial invitations to the alumni and councilors to drop in after the game.

The subject that Dr. Horace J. Bridges will discuss at 11 o'clock this morning at the second of a series of lectures at the Fortnightly should be very interesting to many Chicagoans, for Thornton Wilder, about whose art Dr. Bridges will talk, is a great favorite here.

Bishop Budlong Remains in City.

Bishop Frederick G. Budlong, who came to Chicago yesterday for the bishops' dinner last night at the Hotel Sherman, and Mrs. Budlong are remaining in Chicago this week to be the house guests of Mrs. Harry G. Webster. Bishop Budlong has scores of friends here, since he was formerly the rector of St. Peter's. Now he is the bishop of Connecticut. This afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock the Women's guild of St. Peter's will give a tea for Mrs. Budlong in the guild room.

This evening the directors of the Century club are winding up their World's Fair season with a dinner for President Rufus C. Dawes in the club's private dining room. Arthur Meeker, club president, will be the toastmaster.

Arts Club to Open Exhibition Season.

Cards from the Arts club bring to attention the opening of the club's exhibition season Friday afternoon with a showing of the George Gershwin collection of modern paintings as well as an exhibition of paintings by Roger Fry. Tea is to be served between 4 and 6 o'clock and each member is privileged to bring one guest.

At 11:30 the morning of Nov. 14 Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the president, and the members of the board are inviting the membership to hear Daniel Catton Rich lecture on the Gershwin collection. Again each member will be permitted to bring one guest.

Mexico has been chosen for a November vacation by the Walter Brewsters and the Alfred Hamills. Several days ago Mr. and Mrs. Brewster went to the "gay, vivid countree" for at least a month as the guests of Lord and Lady Hastings.

Before the Brewsters arrived the Hastings had taken the house next door to that of the artist Diego Rivera and had planned all sorts of amusing excursions for their Chicago guests.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

I rise [figuratively] to make the staggering statement that never before Friday had I seen or heard Jack Pearl, on stage, screen or radio, and to follow it up with the observation that I don't think I've missed much.

So far as this interested party is concerned, "Meet the Baron" ranks with "Tarzan the Fearless" as entertainment—and that is no rank at all. True, the former has Jimmy Durante, Zasu Pitts, Ted Healy et stooges and Edna Mae Oliver in support of the star; but, on the other hand, Buster Crabbe has monkeys . . . !

"Meet the Baron" details the adventures of an 'umble pants presser who is mistaken for the famous Baron Munchhausen. Bulwarked by his faithful "manager," Mr. Durante, he becomes honor guest at a girls' college, a radio celebrity and Man of the Hour to Zasu Pitts, chambermaid extraordinary of Cuddle college. [Some pretty girls with some pretty lingerie at that college!]

The piece abounds in idotic situations and dialogue, some of which you may think funny. There's nothing wrong with the acting—Mr. Pearl's a likable cuss—and I'm inclined to think the director did right smart by his shoddy story material.

"SAVAGE GOLD."
Produced and photographed by Commander George Dyott.
Presented at the Castle theater.

QUALITY: Good.

ACTION: You accompany Commander George Dyott, Watt Benson and Sam Kent to South American jungles in their search for a comrade who has fallen into the hands of the head hunters of the Amazon. He'd met his fate while prospecting for gold.

SCENERY: Fascinating.

PHOTOGRAPHY: Excellent. A title informs you that an automatic camera was used and that all the scenes pictured are spontaneous, unstaged, and undirected. I wish I could believe it.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: The film should go well with those who have a yen for strange countries to see and a desire to familiarize themselves with foreign men, animals and customs. If you've never seen a medicine man "shrink" a human head, or one snake swallow another—"Savage Gold" has these enchanting spectacles on view.

The Fair for Skippy!

The aunties had all been to A Century of Progress and had come home talking much about the World's Fair. Days passed and canning season came. One morning while all the household was ingrossed in working over the fruit one suddenly spied Skippy starting toward the street. He was called back and asked where he was going. Hesitatingly he began to open the small bag he could scarcely carry. Then he replied, "I was going to the World's Fair with my family. And with this he unpacked the dog, Fido, a kewpie doll and a sailor boy.

Hair Ornaments Return to Favor

Mature Talk of Child Is Not Impudence

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"I wanted to ask you something the other day, but I was afraid you'd think I was being impudent," said a young daughter of about twelve to her mother.

"Am I such an ogre as all that?" answered the mother rather ruefully. "When was this?"

"O—you know—yesterday when I got mad about my homework and slammed the door and you told me to try not to waste my energy that way? Well, I wanted to ask you . . . I don't you ever lose your temper and waste your energy?" The young daughter looked rather hesitant.

Her mother considered her answer seriously. "There's nothing impudent about that," she said. "I'd hate to think you couldn't ask me just about anything you wanted to. . . ." She stopped a minute. "As a matter of fact, I do waste energy getting mad about things sometimes—and I do lose my temper when I should have learned not to let certain things bother me. But I try not to—and when I see how foolish it is, I want you to do better than I do and to be wiser than I am."

Should you feel that your child were impudent if she asked you a question like this one? You ought not to, if it is asked in a real spirit of inquiry.

It doesn't mean that your children love you any the less when they probe and question where before there was only docile acceptance of your word. It only means that they're maturing and growing up. If you're a wise parent you'll meet them on this ground.

House of Bishops of Episcopal Church Will Meet Today

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Members of the Episcopal house of bishops started to arrive here tonight for the annual conference, which opens tomorrow afternoon at Trinity cathedral. Between 80 and 150 Episcopal bishops having votes in the body will attend the session.

Financing of the church's missions will be one of the important problems to be discussed. Another important matter which will come before the bishops will be the receipt of a report of a special committee on placement of clergy, which aims at definite requirements in the selection of the rectors to fill vacancies.

Movie Hats for Winter Are Exciting

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The new winter hats—hats that are amusing, dashing bits of chic to take years from one's appearance and prove a fashion cocktail for jaded wardrobes—are appearing in Hollywood.

A Tyrolean cap with a saucy peak and two tiny feathers stuck through the corded wool fabric is worn by Myrna Loy in "The Prizefighter and the Lady." Myrna also wears a black suede beret with big slashes at front and back through which her auburn hair gleams. The slashes are clipped down with silver ornaments.

Madge Evans introduces the sombrero felt in "Transcontinental Bus." It is of the same beige felt used in the cowboy's sombrero, with a wider-than-usual brim, worn slanted. A black band circles half the crown, rising at the other side to meet a tiny curl of feathers.

Fifi D'Orsay wears some of the gayest, trickiest hats of the season in "Going Hollywood." One tiny cap of quilted maroon velvet has a long peak bent far forward with two brushes of uncurled feather quills jutting from the tip.

Mrs. Roosevelt Plans Simple State Dinners

Expects to Shorten Line at Receptions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—It was the society editor's hour at Mrs. Roosevelt's press conference this morning. The wife of the President was eager to talk about the federal factory-farm experiment being started at Reedsville, W. Va., but the ladies of the press were eager to talk about food and functions.

"You told us,' 'one of the newspaper women reminded her, "that you intended to serve simple food at the state dinners. May we have the menu for the first one?" (The dinner in honor of the cabinet, Nov. 16.)

"Certainly," said Mrs. Roosevelt. "I'll let you know what it is just as soon as I know myself. This I can promise you: No fancy frills; no food out of season."

"Alice Longworth," somebody called out, "gave a dinner for President Coolidge once and served him pot roast and pumpkin pie. She made headlines with that."

Alice Longworth's cousin (I never can remember what degree of kinship there is) laughed as she replied: "O, my goodness, my dinner won't be nearly as exciting as that."

From dinners the talk moved easily to receptions. This year they will be smaller; so calculated that the line won't take more than an hour and a half to pass the President and shake his hand. Those who don't receive their customary invitation to a state reception will, however, be bid to the after dinner soirées that follow the state dinners. And they are just as socially smart.

Daily, now, Mrs. Roosevelt is receiving letters. I imagine hundreds of them, from people who want to be put "on the official White House list." As a matter of fact, Mrs. Roosevelt explained today, there is no such thing as an official White House list.

Government officials rate bids to certain parties; foreign diplomats have their niche. Some Washington residents are, traditionally, invited to certain parties. And, of course, everybody who leaves his card at the White House is given some sort of social recognition.

But there is no list on to which one may slide by merely filling out an application the way one would apply for an automobile license. Mrs. Roosevelt hopes people will realize this.

Still remembering her recent visit to Chicago, Mrs. Roosevelt praised the Michigan boulevard-lake front development; said she believed that its beginning, planned years ago by Frederick Delano of Washington and others, was the basis for the city beautiful plans later fostered by the American Civic association.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Roosevelt gave up her job of school teaching to go into the White House, but she disclosed today that she would keep on conducting one lecture course.

She's been doing it for three years, with Junior league members and graduates of her own Todhunter school as audience. She started lecturing on city government. Then she lectured on state government. This year the course is to be on national government.

The first lecture will be given in New York Wednesday.

To EVERYONE WHO HAS TAKEN THE SAME LAXATIVE OVER TWO MONTHS:
Medical men have made a very important discovery about the bowels.
This condition can be caused by any laxative you have taken very long. It can never be cured by larger doses. It can be corrected in a week by a cathartic change.
This new knowledge is what started the stampede to Chocolate Cascarets. You never tire of their honest-to-goodness chocolate flavor and the bowels never tire of cascara.
Cascara doesn't make a system laxative stale!
Are you laxative stale? Take a Chocolate Cascaret and see! Let it melt in your mouth and enjoy that chocolaty goodness till the last morsel is gone. Then an unhurried but thorough emptying of the bowels. A natural, muscular movement that cleans the system completely. Cascarize the system every few days until the bowels are moving like clockwork of their own accord.
Get the children's bowels working with the same regularity. They'll need no coaxing to eat these luscious chocolate squares! They're chocolate through and through—no medicine taste at all. Their flavor compares with the finest chocolate candies made!
All drugstores have Chocolate Cascarets now. Those that were sold out have received more, in all three sizes. Ten, twenty-five, and fifty cents. In the new brown boxes.
A cathartic change may give you a new lease on life; find out for a dime!
DOCTORS SAY "Don't increase the dose"
When your favorite laxative lets down, the system has simply become "laxative stale." Larger doses, or stronger laxatives only make matters worse. Changing to cascara has ended all bowel trouble for many who thought they had chronic constipation. Cascara is as effective as medicines two and three times as strong! Chocolate Cascarets are a delightful form in which to take this natural bowel stimulant.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, a Paris newspaper man, is her friend and counselor. Bun agrees to help James B. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Bobianoffs, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Ferenz, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craymer. A recent newspaper picture showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clue Bun has to go on. That same night Finlay is murdered. The money Finlay had given Bun as advance payment is stolen from her apartment. Finlay's son, Robert, arrives from America. He proves to be an impostor. Bun meets the real Robert Finlay in Cannes. She is attracted to him, but believes he's in love with Helene. She continues the quest with him. The tall woman with Helene in the group picture is identified as the Countess Vernadon, who has a villa in Grasse. Bun and Robert call on her at her dreary villa. She denies knowing Helene. As they are leaving they see a woman fall from a window. Back at the hotel Bun sees Mrs. Craymer, who has appeared at the hotel, drop a note to Robert. Next day Mrs. Craymer is found dead. Fred Crawford arrives at Cannes. Bun's maid, Liberté, had been watching Mrs. Craymer's room and is now held by the police.

UNDER SUSPICION.

"I want you to think of me as one of your real friends, Bun. You've certainly shown yourself that to me." Then Finlay's glance shifted back to Crawford. "What complications do you mean?"

"All this fell on Bun out of a clear sky. But it isn't going to look so clear to an outsider. These Sureté people are going to find her a star factor. To tell you the truth, I'm worried about what they're going to say and do about her testimony."

"What can they do?"

"Make it darned unpleasant for her, detain her; watch everything she does—which, up to the present, from their point of view, is going to look extremely suspicious. Even though she will be cleared in the end, I hate to think what they might embody in her dossier in Paris. It may have a good deal to do with her future career there."

Finlay's expression became grave. "Then you think she has become seriously involved—"

"I've thought that from the first. I tried to make her give up the case—refuse your father's request—the first time she told me about it. It just happened that by the time she had told me it was too late."

Finlay rose. "I can certainly clear her of all suspicions. I'll do it at once. I'll see those men now."

He strode toward the door, Crawford watching him without making a motion to rise. When his hand was on the knob, Crawford said quietly: "You forget, Mr. Finlay, your own situation is not any too clear."

Finlay turned back with a stern countenance. "What do you mean by that?"

"In trying to save your step-mother you've drawn yourself into a net of clues that may reflect upon you. And your relations with Mrs. Craymer—they're tremendously suggestive to these sleuths. You must remember they don't look at things as we do. It isn't a matter of what they think of you—it's what they can prove against you. I heard one of them say once that the least suspected person was the one that almost invariably turned out to be the guilty one."

"Guilty of what?" Bun heard Finlay's voice with a start of anxiety. For the first time she saw him in an entirely new light. There was something actually frightening, if impressive, in his suggestion of restrained fury.

"Guilty of the crime," Crawford answered slowly.

Finlay's fists clenched painfully; the veins in his temples throbbed visibly; for a moment Bun thought he was going to strike Crawford. "Do you mean to hint that there was some reason for my being implicated in my father's murder?"

Crawford met his eyes without flinching. "I mean to say that many things are going to be found out that you will have to explain more satisfactorily to the authorities than you have to Miss O'Reilly or me."

"Fred!" Bun's exclamation followed angrily upon the last words. "What are you saying?"

Finlay put out his hand as if to keep her out of the imminent battle. "Please—Miss O'Reilly." Then, to Crawford, "Please make yourself clear."

"First—your wanting to shield your step-mother."

Finlay recoiled as if from a blow. His face became ashy white. "Haven't I explained that to you both?"

"From your point of view—yes. From the world's—no. Just the mere fact that you have not come forward and made a clean breast of the whole situation makes it a thousand times more complicated.. It was the reasonable and normal thing to do—and you didn't do it. Do you see the point I'm trying to make? Your emotions, I suppose you'd call them, are in the way."

Finlay let his hands fall to his side; his anger was slowly subsiding. He nodded. "Yes—they are."

"Well—there you are. Detectives love to twist emotions round to fit their theories. And they are usually so complicated that they are easily twisted."

Finlay was so long silent that Bun began to wonder if he were going to answer at all. In the end he looked up and straight at her. "It isn't too late for you to get out of this. I had no idea you would become involved. You can leave immediately after you have made your statement. As for the amount you lost," he hesitated a moment, "I shall see that you do not—"

Bun flushed angrily. "If you think—"

"No—please do not suggest such a thing. Don't you know me better than that?"

His look was so full of sincere distress that her anger vanished swiftly; athough she knew she was still flushing violently. "I'm not a quitter."

"You don't have to tell me that. But you will make it all the harder for me if you suffer in any way." He was looking at her now in the way she liked, perhaps more so, warmer than he had ever done before.

"Don't give me a thought. I'm in on this—and I stay put until we all pull through together."

Again a long silence spread over them; and again it was Crawford who broke it. "Now—listen to me, both of you. For the present it looks like you two had to remain here with your hands tied. Not so with me. I'm a free lance—trying to find out anything that will make headlines for my paper. Whatever I do will be entirely natural. Whatever you do won't be. I'm supposed to work in the open. As a matter of fact I'm going to do just the opposite. Under the guise of a news gatherer, I've got a clear road. Both of you sit tight here. I'll do the scavanging and report from time to time. Do you get me?"

His suggestions were broken in upon by the announcement from the office that the two Sureté men were waiting to see Miss O'Reilly. She asked Crawford and Finlay to leave her to handle the men alone. They left with the understanding that they were all to meet that evening for dinner.

She received the two detectives in her sitting room. It amused her somewhat at the beginning to find that both had assumed certain characteristics which they evidently considered American—probably from what they had seen of detectives in American films; even their manners—an attempt at breeziness—were an amusing imitation. And their English, which they spoke at first, fluent in spite of a strong accent, included some slang. Bun fell into the atmosphere they wished to create, offered them cigarets and aided them in playing the part they had assumed. It was only when she let a French phrase—an entirely colloquial one—slip into the conversation that she saw a complete change take place in them. They abandoned English at once—and their assumed rôles. The next moment they were wholly French, polite, suave, and very alert.

But, so far as throwing any light on the case that was new to her, there was nothing valuable in their questions. She congratulated herself upon skirting any implications of Finlay's actions; she recounted it as a perfectly normal, straightforward effort of a son to find his father's murderer. When Liberté was brought in to the interview, the atmosphere at once changed. Though her usual exuberance was somewhat quelled in the presence of officials, and she recounted her experience with the burglars in a much calmer and more succinct way, when she came to the hotel waiter her tendency to become colorful returned.

"He is the one for you to question, messieurs," she burst out. "If anyone knows who entered Madame Craymair's room, he does. Why do you not force a confession from him? You come to us—mademoiselle and me. We are the ones who have suffered. We are the ones who should be protected. Mademoiselle, because she lost two hundred thousand francs. I—because I still carry about with me bruises that do not let me sleep. See them for yourselves."

Doris Blake Answers

"Dear Miss Blake: There is a certain girl whom I know I could make like me if I only knew the proper way of getting around her. Could you inform me as to this way? H. H."

How's the girl to know you're on earth even, if you don't get on the job!

Just Let Him Talk.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go to many wonderful places with my boy friend, but when I talk about them I don't think he likes it. How can I get out of this habit? LOLA."

How strange! But better please the darling by letting him lead the conversation, then!

Corn Bread Has a Tasty Cousin in Johnny Cake

"Whee—Johnny cake!"

Recognize that wild, glad cry? It has a way of bursting out of dashing runabouts and hungry husbands the minute the aroma of corn bread salutes them at the front door. It likewise pops out of school goers who turn out crutsy gold corn muffins from the depths of the lunch basket. But to keep such enthusiasm at a real pitch, said corn goodnesses have to taste as soul tempting as they look and whiff, so let's give a thought to the factors which sometimes do or don't make them so tasty.

As for the origin of the name—Johnny bread or cake—your guess is as good as mine. Some say it once was "journey cake," since squares of the golden bread made such good traveling companions. But if you know of some celebrated Johnny it was once named for, we'll give him credit, too.

As for sorts and kinds, corn bread batters may be baked in an assortment of amusing ways, as thick bread, light and tender; in a thin sheet, crisp and crusty; in round, square or oblong shaped pans; in muffin pans or bread stick pans; or as a southern spoon bread.

Recipes you'll find differ a bit, depending upon whose dark and southern mammy whacked up the original golden batter. But here are four combinations which seem to raise the greatest number of family cheers:

3 teaspoons baking powder.
2 tablespoons sugar.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup yellow corn meal.
2 eggs.

Sift the flour, baking powder, sugar and salt together, then mix with the corn meal. Beat the eggs thoroughly and stir into the milk. Add this to the dry ingredients, mixing well. Add the butter and pour the batter into a greased 9 inch layer pan and bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for 40 minutes, or until done.

This same batter may be baked in greased bread stick pans at the same temperature for 25 minutes and makes 3 dozen crispy corn sticks.

"But I can make corn muffins!" exulted a leading lady in a recent stage hit, and the achievement changed the fate of the nation! No doubt the future Mrs. Wintergreen used this recipe to turn the miracle:

CORN MUFFINS.

3 teaspoons baking powder.
2 tablespoons sugar.
¾ teaspoon salt.
2 eggs.
1 cup milk.
¼ cup melted shortening.

Sift together the flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Add to this the corn meal and stir well. Beat the eggs and add with the milk to the dry ingredients, beating thoroughly. Add the shortening and turn into greased muffin pans. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] for 25 minutes.

JOHNNY CAKE.

1 teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons sugar.
1 cup yellow corn meal.
3 tablespoons melted butter.

Sift the first five ingredients together twice, then add the corn meal and beat in the sour milk, beaten eggs and melted butter. Turn into a greased pan, 8 by 8 by 2 inches, and bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] 40 minutes, or until done.

And finally arrives the soft and spoonable corn bread cousin—

SOUTHERN SPOON BREAD.

1 teaspoon salt.
3 tablespoons melted butter.
1 cup boiling water.
1 cup milk.
2 eggs, well beaten.

Add the salt and melted butter to the corn meal and stir into it slowly the boiling water. Beat till smooth. Add the milk, eggs, and baking powder. Mix completely and turn into a greased casserole. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for 50 minutes. Remove portions with a spoon and serve with butter.

The third Chicago Tribune School of Cookery begins today. Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous home economics expert, in co-operation with Miss Mary Meade, Tribune cooking editor, will conduct the sessions.

All schools will open at 12:30 o'clock.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt entertained this afternoon at the first of the series of teas for the wives of the "little cabinet," for women heads of various departments, and for women in special work in the departments. The first lady received the guests in the Red parlor and had receiving with her the following cabinet hostesses: Mrs. Hull, wife of the secretary of state; Mrs. Dern, wife of the secretary of war; Mrs. Wallace, wife of the secretary of agriculture, and Mrs. Roper, wife of the secretary of commerce.

The British ambassador and Lady Lindsay, who have as their guests at the embassy the commander in chief of the British West Indies naval squadron, Admiral R. A. R. Plunkett-Erle Drax, and Mrs. Drax, entertained at dinner tonight for them. Among the guests were the secretary of the navy and Mrs. Swanson, the assistant secretary of the navy and Mrs. Henry L. Roosevelt.

Junior Friends of Art.

The Junior Friends of Art are having a closed meeting today at the Drake hotel. Luncheon will be at 12:30 o'clock, after which there will be a program that will include a group of songs by Miss Mildred Boberg and a talk on "Italian Art of the Renaissance," by Prof. George L. Scherger.

HAIR Removed!
There's only one way to remove hair and destroy the roots: ELECTROLYSIS But beware of "moy-leas." Miss Keller, a specialist for 22 years in this work, is endorsed by eminent physicians. 200 to 500 roots destroyed per hour. No scars. Face, arms, and body.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

AN ILLUSTRATIVE CASE.

"It was really a very simple case."

"Tell me about it, won't you Prof. Fordney," asked Sheriff Monahan of Burnside county, a bit embarrassed in the presence of the great criminologist.

"Surely. There's not much to it. I was driving along the turnpike when I came upon a small crowd gathered around an ambulance. I drew up, wormed my way through, established my identity to Chief of Police Berry of the village of Withington and to the ambulance surgeon.

"On the ground lay the body of Thomas Young. The surgeon before putting him into the ambulance said he had a badly fractured skull resulting from a fall from the truck on which he was riding.

"I was told by Clumbley, a farmer, driver of the truck, that the injured man was his brother-in-law and that Young was standing on the back of the car sorting various vegetables being taken to a buyer named Morton.

"He said," continued Fordney, "that he looked back to yell something at his brother-in-law just as a car suddenly darted out of a cross road in front of him and sped on its way. The truck was traveling about 45 miles an hour and when he jammed on the brakes the sudden stop threw Thomas to the ground.

"Chief Berry was preparing an accident report when I told him to detain Clumbley.

"I looked at the body myself and this case illustrates the real necessity for training of rural as well as metropolitan police in the fundamentals of crime detection."

WHY DID FORDNEY KNOW IT WAS NOT AN ACCIDENT?

Doris Blake Answers

"Dear Miss Blake: There is a certain girl whom I know I could make like me if I only knew the proper way of getting around her. Could you inform me as to this way? H. H."

How's the girl to know you're on earth even, if you don't get on the job!

Just Let Him Talk.

"Dear Miss Blake: I go to many wonderful places with my boy friend, but when I talk about them I don't think he likes it. How can I get out of this habit? LOLA."

How strange! But better please the darling by letting him lead the conversation, then!

Voice Trainer Discusses Film Diction Needs

Emphasizes Resonance, but Deplores Accent.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—"The perfect screen voice is something beautiful to listen to, without affectation, and cannot be recognized as coming from any particular section of the country."

So says Miss Nina Moise, Stanford university graduate, director and voice "trainer" of many well known screen personages.

Since the talkie entrance many a screen candidate, as you know, has to undergo voice training. Furthermore, you know, that a number of stellar lights in silent days lost caste and place with the opening of their mouths before the mike. So the voice today becomes a more vital asset than face or figure.

"What is needed primarily is a free, lovely, resonant tone for talkie production," says Miss Moise. "Volume is not needed, but perfect placement, free production, and utterly relaxed muscles are necessary."

Ann Harding, according to our authority, has a beautiful "screen" voice. It's like an organ, of magnificent timbre. Helen Hayes' voice has a free, lovely resonance. "Claudette Colbert has a voice with personality, a thing we never try to change," continues Miss Moise. "Irene Dunn has an extremely nice voice. Lynn Fontanne's voice is a magnificent, throbbing instrument. Mae West expresses her personality perfectly in her voice. Eddie Robinson has a fine male voice. Sir Guy Standing has a beautiful voice. It reflects everything he feels.

"What we aim for," says Miss Moise, "is a cultivated American speech, a speech that you cannot recognize as middle west or eastern or southern, or coming from any particular locality. We don't want any affectation, either. We don't have to say 'loff' for laugh nor 'cawn't' for can't. Neither do we want 'laf' or can't with the nasal 'a.'"

It's limiting to a screen career to have a local speech. You can't put into an English girl part a girl with a southern accent, say. And incidentally, this southern accent is the most difficult of all to conquer, Miss Moise tells. In training voices for the screen it is found that most people speak too high. This has to be brought down, but not to the exaggerated depth sometimes affected. A wisecrack that goes the rounds here is that "the higher a star mounts, the lower her voice goes."

But this enforced low pitched tone is not what Miss Moise means by lowering the voice. It has to come down from that high pitched key, but, as she says, every voice has one place and in training voices you have to find that one place, from which a resonant full tone can be produced. Bringing the voice down to its proper placement is largely a matter of mind and ear, Miss Moise tells. You have to get the sound in your own ear. Most things wrong with the voice are simply bad habits, which can be corrected with sharp listening and the desire to improve.

Lecture on Money.

Prof. Herbert E. Dougall will give the first of a series of lectures on banking and finance at 11 o'clock this morning at the Chicago College club. Prof. Dougall, who is of the school of commerce at Northwestern university, will discuss "Money and Credit Under the New Deal."

Sports Frocks Are Threaded to Gold Standard

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Dresses with the blouse part done in metal-threaded silks and brocade are all over Paris, but they are mostly intended for dressy wear. Chanel, however, makes sports frocks with skirt-waist blouses of plaid taffeta, woven with gold threads in the weave. Their skirts are made of wool with a gold thread under weave, and that puts the sports dress entirely on the gold standard.

One of these gold base sports frocks is shown here. The blouse is made of red and navy plaid on a gold ground, and is taffeta. It has a plastron sewed on the front like men used to have on their boiled shirts, and still do as far as I know. The collar is a mannish turnover with a small string tie of velvet, and the blouse buttons on small gold buttons down the front and at the wrists of the sleeves. The plain red wool skirt, with a gold thread under weave, is given a panel at the back, bordered with bias bands, and another in front, that rises in a point above the normal waistline. There is a plaid taffeta belt and it passes under this point in the front of the skirt.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Devereux Milburn are making a late sojourn at their country place at Westbury. They will give a large dance there on Thanksgiving eve, Nov. 29, for their debutante daughter, Miss Kathryn Milburn. Their other daughter, Miss Nancy Milburn, was presented last year at a similar party at the Westbury estate.

Construction has started on a new country home near Brookville for Mr. and Mrs. James J. Lee. Mr. Lee purchased several months ago the property of Harry C. Cushing III. on the Muttontown road, adjoining the estates of Mrs. George Murname, Francis T. Nichols, and Mrs. Royall Victor.

Filmland Fancy Doesn't React Well to Spring

May of This Year Shows High Divorce Record.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—There may be something about springtime in Hollywood that churns the thoughts on love instead of turning them gently in that direction. An odd disclosure is made about May, 1933, at least. It proved a record month for Hollywood divorce, or public disclosure of divorce and separation news, with July a close runnerup. Such film families as the Douglas Fairbanks', the Richard Dix', the William Powell's, Hoot Gibson's, and Aileen Pringles' [husband's name out of memory reach at the moment] were featured in the July holacaust.

The range of grounds for Hollywood divorce covers cruelty, infidelity, jealousy, refusal of affections, spending money on other women, living elsewhere, neglect, physical cruelty, mental cruelty, uncontrolled temper, incompatibility, intemperance, and "Mexican mutual consent."

"It is impossible to be happy in Hollywood," said Yvonne Valle, divorced this year from Chevalier. A statement belied by a fair sized list of enduring Hollywood marriages, including the Arliss', the James Gleasons', the Will Rogers', Jean Hersholtz', George Bancrofts', Warner Baxters', all married from eighteen years up.

On the other hand the wife of a big Hollywood executive, beautiful herself and clever says: "Eight years we have been married. [Knock on wood.] Eight years is a long time marriage here."

The competitive position of a wife in Hollywood is summed up with this same woman's remark, "there's always that seventeen year old girl! I grow one year older, two, four, eight, but there's always that seventeen year old!" A reflection on the male mentality, say you? Anyway, a peek into the mind of a woman growing older among so much devastating and often relentless youth.

Of one particular "grab" perpetrated by a female siren [no use mentioning names] the woman said, "I'd give up at once did she cross my husband's path. She's dynamite enough to blow up any home she sets her mind on! Ruthless, and relentless!"

You'll doubtless need many party dresses this winter, and this design is easy to make. Chinese-red rough silk crêpe, with the cape of a matching shade of velvet, will be just the thing for evenings. For afternoons the pattern provides for high back, short, full sleeves and a shorter length skirt. Wild blackberry velvet with metallic flowers in gold is suggested.

The pattern, No. 3033, comes in sibes 11, 13, 15 and 17 years.

Potted Bouquet Furnishes Motif for Quilt Block

Grace Moore to Help Open Charity Drive

Will Sing at White House Program Thursday.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Grace Moore has interrupted the movie program laid out for her by her new studio—Columbia—to travel to Washington and sing at the White House on Mrs. Roosevelt's request. She will be soloist from the President's home on Thursday at a program inaugurating a national campaign for the community chest charities.

After her White House appearance Miss Moore will make a short stop at New York, take part in a national broadcast there, and dash back to Hollywood, where her studio will try to knit together a suitable vehicle which must be a dramatic story with music. Miss Moore's movie vehicle may be patterned after the colorful story of her own life, much as Radio is doing with Gregory Ratoff's life story in "I Love an Actress."

A would-be successor to Vince Barnet as professional ribber appeared on the MGM lot last Saturday and was introduced to Nelson Eddy, the singer. He began by highly critical remarks about Nelson's taste in clothes and progressed to others about his singing, but Eddy took it all with such good nature that he dismayed the man. "You know," Eddy told him confidentially; "I realize that what you say is true—I'm not a good singer—but I sing for my own pleasure and other people pay for it." The "ribber" got peeved and left the lot.

In "Beloved," just completed at Universal, Gloria Stuart plays a feminine rôle in which she progresses from young girlhood to the age of 90 at the end of the film, and John Boles, who is featured with Gloria, is pictured from babyhood to the age of 96. This sets the record for movie longevity.

Fox has bought Mrs. Arnold Rothstein's book, but has no principals cast to personify the central figures in the big time gambler's life and death.

Scenes for "Lets Fall in Love" are laid in Sweden, and some of the dialogue is in Swedish. So Columbia had to get an instructress to teach Swedish to the two girls who play the main rôles—Harriette Lake, American-Danish, and Greta Mayer, German girl. Miss Lake sings one number, "Love Is Love Anywhere," in Swedish. Gregory Ratoff, Edmund Lowe, and Miriam Jordan are in the cast. Its the first film with story and plot laid in Garbo's country to be attempted by an American studio, so far as the writer recalls.

Jean Harlow has bought a platinum blonde cat. Now nothing seems left but for Joan Crawford to buy a big burly bull dog to chase Jean's cat. Joan leaves soon for a visit of several weeks to New York. But, she says, "I'm not going to Hartford, Conn., or to a sanitarium. I'm well and healthy. I'm going to New York for the simple purpose of having a swell time. Then I'll come back in a couple of weeks and start by next picture."

Joan's comment was inspired by irritation over rumors she had been in a Hartford, Conn., institution. Joan says she worked so long—five months—on "Dancing Lady," she feels she owes herself a good time.

"Sky Blue" is the name of the Jed Harris New York play Katharine Hepburn will shortly appear in. She gets a six months' leave of absence to do it.

The Mystery of MAE WEST!

WHY is Mae West the most vivid character in motion pictures today? Does her early life match her colorful stage career? Is the real Mae West the sensuous, sex-throbbing figure she has so often portrayed? Is she as bad as she is painted?

When we first asked Mae West to tell us her life story . . . the plain, unvarnished truth . . . she dropped the lids over those purple eyes and murmured, "The story of my life? Hm-m-m! Not all of it, y'can't mean . . . ?" "Uh-huh! All of it," we urged. So here it is! You will find it amazing. Replete with thrills. Intimate. Real!

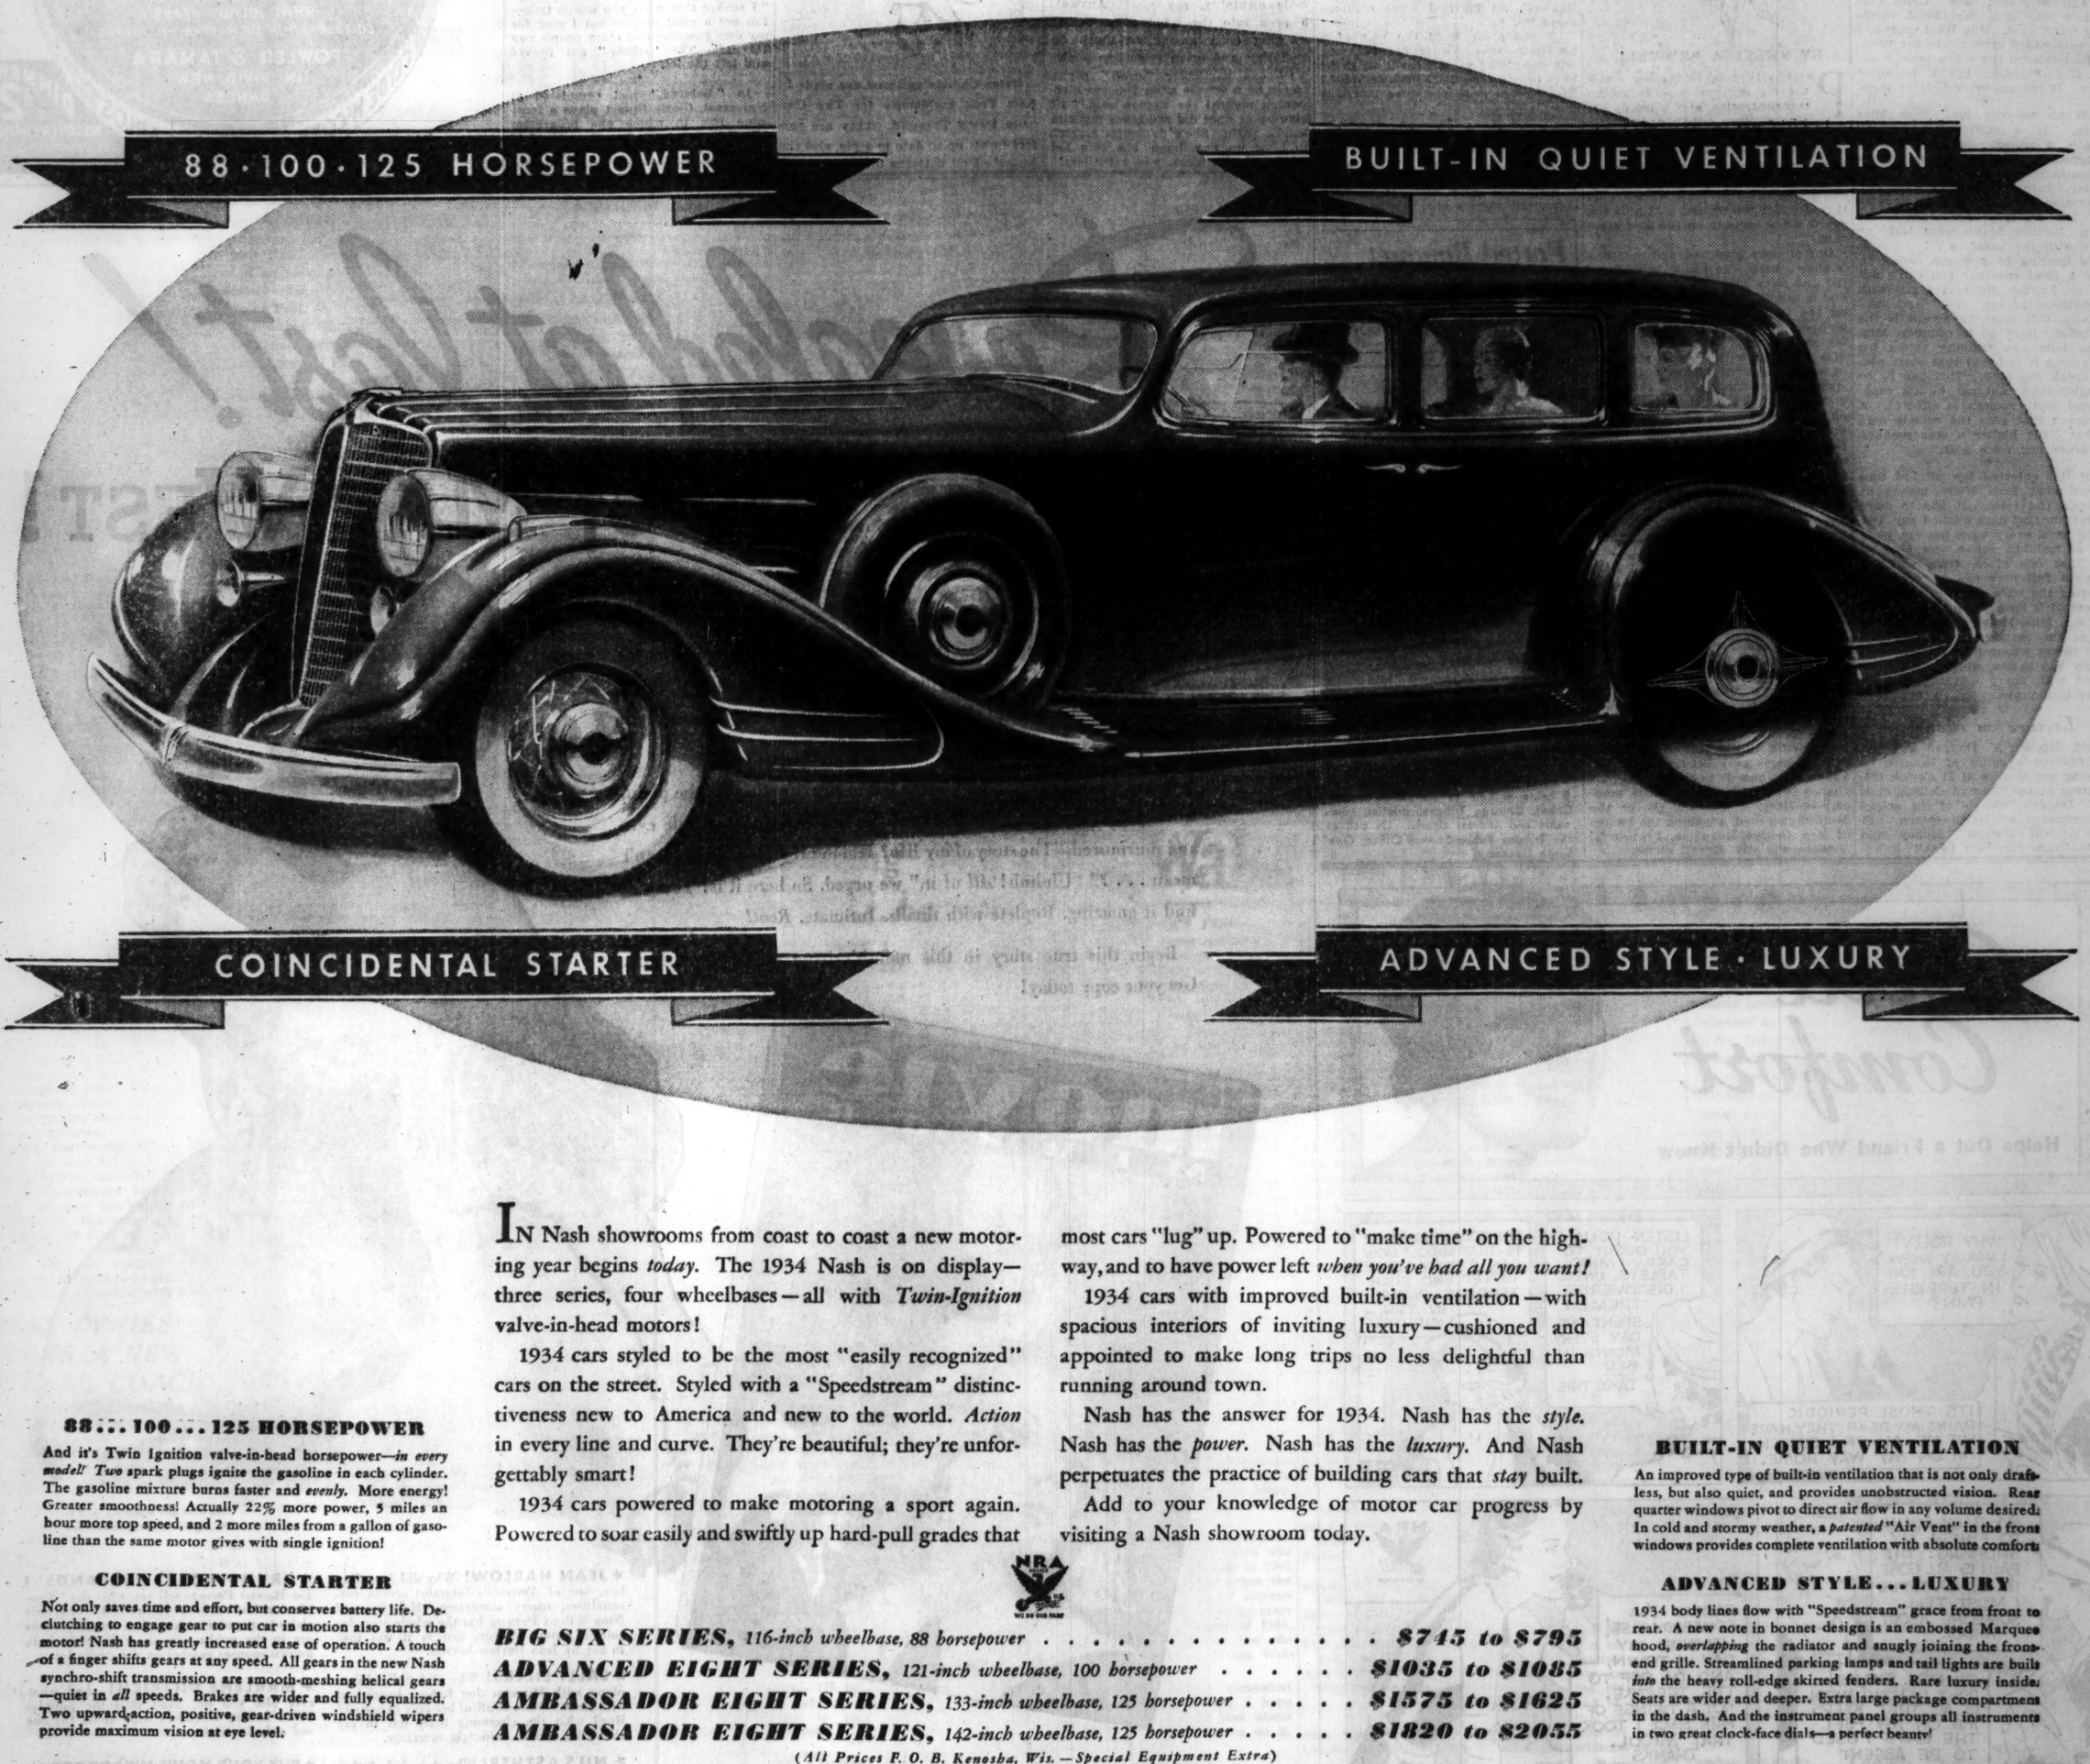
All TWIN IGNITION VALVE-IN-HEAD MOTORS!



IN Nash showrooms from coast to coast a new motoring year begins today. The 1934 Nash is on display—three series, four wheelbases—all with Twin-Ignition valve-in-head motors!

1934 cars styled to be the most "easily recognized" cars on the street. Styled with a "Speedstream" distinctiveness new to America and new to the world. Action in every line and curve. They're beautiful; they're unforgettably smart!

1934 cars powered to make motoring a sport again. Powered to soar easily and swiftly up hard-pull grades that most cars "lug" up. Powered to "make time" on the highway, and to have power left when you've had all you want!

Nash has the answer for 1934. Nash has the style. Nash has the power. Nash has the luxury. And Nash perpetuates the practice of building cars that stay built.

88 . . . 100 . . . 125 HORSEPOWER

And it's Twin Ignition valve-in-head horsepower—in every model! Two spark plugs ignite the gasoline in each cylinder. The gasoline mixture burns faster and evenly. More energy! Greater smoothness! Actually 22% more power, 5 miles an hour more top speed, and 2 more miles from a gallon of gasoline than the same motor gives with single ignition!

COINCIDENTAL STARTER

Not only saves time and effort, but conserves battery life. Declutching to engage gear to put car in motion also starts the motor! Nash has greatly increased ease of operation. A touch of a finger shifts gears at any speed. All gears in the new Nash synchro-shift transmission are smooth-meshing helical gears—quiet in all speeds. Brakes are wider and fully equalized. Two upward-action, positive, gear-driven windshield wipers provide maximum vision at eye level.

BUILT-IN QUIET VENTILATION

An improved type of built-in ventilation that is not only draftless, but also quiet, and provides unobstructed vision. Rear quarter windows pivot to direct air flow in any volume desired. In cold and stormy weather, a patented "Air Vent" in the front windows provides complete ventilation with absolute comfort.

ADVANCED STYLE . . . LUXURY

1934 body lines flow with "Speedstream" grace from front to rear. A new note in bonnet design is an embossed Marquee hood, overlapping the radiator and snugly joining the front-end grille. Streamlined parking lamps and tail lights are built into the heavy roll-edge skirted fenders. Rare luxury inside. Seats are wider and deeper. Extra large package compartment in the dash. And the instrument panel groups all instruments in two great clock-face dials—a perfect beauty!

BIG SIX SERIES, 116-inch wheelbase, 88 horsepower	$745 to $795

GARDINER ELECTED CAPTAIN OF BLACKHAWKS

WEIL RESIGNS AS CINCINNATI REDS' PRESIDENT

McPhail to Head Club.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 6.—(AP)—After trying for four years to give Cincinnati a winning team, Sidney Weil today stepped down as president of the Reds.

Larry McPhail, former president of Columbus of the American association, acquired an interest, was elected a director and it is generally understood he will be named president in a reorganization of the club.

Control of the club was taken over by the Central Trust company, which acquired Weil's stock, slightly more than 50 per cent. The bank, it is understood, will give McPhail a free rein in operation of the club. The franchise will remain in Cincinnati.

Money Stunted Success.

"I deeply regret I was not able to fulfill the sincere ambition and desire which actuated me in becoming interested in the Cincinnati baseball club, namely to give Cincinnati a winning team," Weil said.

"During the four years of my stewardship I exerted every effort and resource at my command toward this end, but without avail. My handicap of lack of funds was no secret to any one.

"I hope the new members of the board of directors will have the necessary financial backing that I have lacked and I wish them every success.

Weil Has No Plans.

"The memory of the friendships I have been privileged to enjoy throughout the major league circuits and baseball as a whole will ever be a source of joy and gratification to me. I will still be a red hot fan."

Weil said he has no immediate plans for the future. He was an automobile dealer before acquiring control of the Reds in 1929.

Close followers of the Reds ventured the opinion tonight that in the event McPhail is made president, a playing manager in all probability would handle the team next season. Jim Bottomley is regarded as the most likely candidate for the position.

O. K. Asked on 119 Track, Swim Marks

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Despite some sensational performances, record-breaking feats in the sports of track and swimming fell off nearly 50 per cent this year, according to the list of records prepared for submission to the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic union at Pittsburgh, Nov. 19-21, and made public today.

Claims have been filed for 119 records, as compared with 234 in 1932 when the Olympic games sent the list soaring. Thirty-nine marks are credited to women athletes.

Jack Medica, Seattle star who holds the national 440 and 880 yard swimming championships, heads the list of individual record-breakers, with applications for ten new marks in free-style competition. His nearest rivals are Katherine Rawls, all around swimming champion from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with six records, and Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette Negro who is national sprint champion, with five.

KANSAS DENIES IT SEEKS A NEW FOOTBALL COACH

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Denial that a change in the University of Kansas football coaching staff was planned came from Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics, today.

In a statement in which he wished to deny rumors that a "change is imminent," Allen said, "we are perfectly happy and satisfied with Ad Lindsey's coaching."

"Although Lindsey's team has lost two conference games, his record still is just about even. The showing of his team against Notre Dame entitled him to that record, and the Big Six season is not over yet by any means."

The Kansas team was defeated by the University of Oklahoma Saturday by a score of 20 to 0. It also lost to Kansas State college. Earlier it held Notre Dame to a scoreless tie.

Wood Wins from Church in Pocket Billiard Meet

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Arthur Church of New York City slipped another notch in the national pocket billiards tournament today when he was defeated by Harry Wood of Duluth, 125 to 31, in 27 innings. At the conclusion of the meet Nov. 13, the three highest ranking players will be eligible to enter the world tournament in Chicago in December.

In a close match tonight Marcel Camp of Detroit won from Arthur Schliesman of Minneapolis, 125 to 118, in 14 innings.

PYLE, THE OLD PROFESSOR, HAS HIS TROUBLES

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—Word comes to me of an unhappy incident which has recently disturbed the intellectual calm of Prof. C. C. Pyle's astounding and amazing aggregation of unique educational oddities at the Chicago World's Fair. Prof. Pyle met the situation with his usual tact, trying to avoid an ugly scandal in educational circles. However, tragedy seems to have occurred.

Arjan Desur Dangar, the Bombay policeman, who came to America to exhibit his 78 inch mustache under the professor's auspices, has disappeared from the steamship Conte de Savoia, which bore him to Naples on his way back to India. But Dangar had left his mustache in Chicago. The loss had left him very low in spirits and he was displeased with himself for having pounded his manager, Chotalal Nansing Kamdar, on the head with a brick.

This suggests one explanation of his disappearance at sea. There is also, of course, the natural possibility that the manager himself might have found a brick on the way across. But more probably Dangar felt that he could not face his friends in Bombay with a nude upper lip.

Of Course, You Know the Prof.

It should not be necessary to introduce the professor, but he himself has often said people are very dumb and do not know much. So perhaps I should recall that he is the man who broke into education some years ago, exhibiting a stuffed burglar known as the Oklahoma Outlaw, to teach the people that the wages of sin is 10 cents a squint, children under 12 half price.

The forces of ignorance, always suspicious of knowledge, would have discouraged a teacher less devoted than Prof. Pyle. In various jurisdictions from coast to coast, along the route of his memorable Bunion Derby, the sheriffs and constables, blind to anything which they could not see with the naked eye, denounced the burglar as an ordinary dead man, demanding that he be given Christian burial at once. But Mr. Pyle's devotion to his work was something like the zeal of the martyrs.

When the coroner came to look the burglar would not be there. Sometimes he was in, or under, Prof. Pyle's bed. Once, in Arkansas, as the coroner, the sheriff, and the hordes of ignorance combed the hills to find the burglar and put him under ground, the burglar spent the night in a hollow log. Again, Mr. Pyle spent a night riding around and around town with the burglar beside him in a taxicab. Still again he propped the burglar up in a telephone booth for two days.

Mr. Pyle had paid fifty dollars for the burglar, so there was an issue of property right involved. You cannot just haul off and bury a man's burglar on him without due process of law. Moreover, other educators were touring the country at the time with embalmed whales which really pointed no moral and appealed to nothing higher than the morbid curiosity of the people who came to look.

This Mustache Was Singular.

This year the professor assembled the greatest faculty ever gathered together to raise the intellectual level of the country at popular prices. Among them was the mule-faced lady the spell of whose personal charm soon had romantic blades among the World Fair customers bashfully hanging around the faculty entrance with sprigs of new mown hay and bags of oats. And there was Harry, the ossified man, who hadn't a worry in the world except one gnawing anxiety for his unfortunate brother, a man of 68, who had grown too old to work in the coal mine any more and faced a future of bleak and miserable destitution.

"My brother was just born to hard luck," old Harry said, lying there on his little perch in the astounding and amazing aggregation on the midway. "I started out as a miner myself, but I ossified more than 30 years ago. My brother never got any breaks."

Football Rebellion Is Uncovered.

Columbus, O., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Dissension which apparently has been simmering among members of the Ohio State football squad boiled and steamed over the week-end, but late this afternoon seemed to have been smoothed over when Max Padlow, veteran end, returned to the practice field asking that he be permitted to rejoin the team.

Padlow did not start against Indiana Saturday, although he was at end when Ohio State played Virginia, Vanderbilt and Michigan and was used during a portion of the Northwestern game. When Ohio State returned to the field at the beginning of the second half of the Hoosier contest Padlow did not emerge from the dressing room, changing instead to his civilian attire.

Two Others Missing.

Half Back Tom Keefe, Toledo, and Guard Joseph Livorno of Bellaire, who also walked out Saturday, were still among the missing and it appeared probable they would not be seen with the Ohio State forces again this season.

Various explanations were offered for the absence of Keefe, who came to Ohio State after one of the most brilliant of high school careers. Some reports had it that Keefe was dissatisfied because of failure to appear regularly in more games, while semi-official sources stated that the Toledo player withdrew from the squad because of the illness of his wife.

As for Livorno, reports from the university said his absence was due to official suggestion that he leave the squad rather than to his voluntary withdrawal.

Writes Letter to Coach.

Padlow, in an interview Saturday night, said that he had withdrawn from the squad because he had been unfairly treated. Today the press department of the university said Padlow had been "misquoted."

However, this was refuted later in the day when the following letter, which Padlow forwarded to Coach Sam Willaman, was made public:

"Dear Coach:

"After gathering myself together and realizing the great mistake that I made by leaving the squad the day of the Indiana game, I certainly would like to offer an apology to you, your coaching staff and the fine group of boys with whom I have been associated.

"Coach, if at all possible, my greatest desire is to rejoin the squad even if I must occupy a place on the bench.

"I hope the squad can forgive me as soon as possible as I am anxious to be a member of your squad again."

Three More Injured.

In the meantime three additions to the hospital list greeted Willaman as he prepared for the intersectional game Saturday with Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. Sid Gillman, co-captain and end, reported with an injured knee; Dick Heekin, half back, was under the lights with a leg injury and Dick Smith, half back, was suffering from a shoulder injury. Dick Beltz, who was unable to get in the Indiana game, still was out with a knee injury.

Secret practice for the remainder of the season was announced by Willaman today. Information handed out by the publicity office reported a scrimmage session with the second team.

CATCHER TAYLOR IS RELEASED BY CUBS OUTRIGHT

Catcher Zach Taylor, for fourteen years a National league player, received his unconditional release from the Cubs yesterday. The Cubs bought Taylor from the Braves in July, 1929, after Gabby Hartnett had been forced into inactivity by an injured arm. Taylor played regularly on the team which won the pennant that year, but has since been used only as a relief catcher. His services during the last season were confined largely to the bull pen.

Jim Thorpe Sues Movie Company for $100,000

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Jim Thorpe, Indian athlete, today filed suit for $100,000 against the Columbia Pictures corporation, claiming the corporation used his name and picture in advertising "The White Eagle," a show in which he did not appear. Nathan Burkan, attorney for the corporation, said Thorpe had consented to appear in the picture, and later refused, but at the time advance advertising already had been distributed.

Holding Ball Is N. U. Lesson for This Week

Prof. Richard E. Hanley did not hold his usual football class at Northwestern yesterday, but announced that starting today his pupils will meet daily for a thorough study of lesson No. 1 in the football primer on the topic, "Fumbles and How to Avoid Them."

The Wildcat students have apparently mastered all the phases dealing with the high education of the sport such as double and triple reverses, forward lateral passes, shovel passes and other intricate maneuvers, but persistent fumbling has nullified their efforts.

Think Defense Is O. K.

A review of fundamentals, then, will be Northwestern's principal preparation for Saturday's homecoming game with Illinois. The Wildcats are satisfied that their defense, which held Minnesota in check, will be capable of standing off the Illini attack.

It is loose ball handling and inability to catch punts that has been making a question mark of this year's Northwestern team. The Wildcats flashed a strong attack against Minnesota and had it not been for costly fumbles they might have gone off the field victorious. The Purple ball carriers dropped the ball five times at crucial moments.

Sullivan Returns to Form.

Jakie Sullivan's return to the form he showed as a sophomore and junior has bolstered the Wildcats for the Illinois game. Ollie Olson is expected to give the Wildcats a big edge in the kicking department. Against Minnesota he averaged 54.7 yards for 10 kicks. His longest kick was 78 yards and the shortest 45 yards.

In the Wake of the News

MINNESOTA'S TIES.

MINNESOTA, which battled Northwestern to a scoreless tie in the game of fumbles at Dyche stadium Saturday, has at least equaled one conference record. With two more games to play it may surpass the old mark. That record is three tie games against Big Ten opponents in one season.

The Gophers, with an open date next Saturday, have yet to meet Michigan and Wisconsin. If the Badgers should tie or win, it would be one of the major upsets of the year, although Wisconsin won last year when Minnesota was a top-heavy favorite.

The Gophers and Wolverines appear closely matched and a tie might result, although Michigan will be generally picked because it is unbeaten, untied, and in the past usually has secured the "breaks," often against what appeared superior Northmen elevens.

George Barton, veteran Minneapolis sports editor, was sitting next to us in the press eyrie Saturday, so we asked him what he thought were Minnesota's chances in what now looks to be the conference title determining affair of the year. He shrugged his shoulders and said: "I've thought we'd win many times and then seen our teams, which were better in everything except points scored, lose through breaks of the game. Four victories in twenty-two games isn't a very heartening record. Of course, there was one tie."

Friend George rather emphasized when he said, "Of course, there was one tie." That 6 to 6 tie was in 1903 and interrupted but did not break the run of the "point-a-minute" elevens which went undefeated from the start of 1901 until the final game of 1905, when Chicago accomplished the oft-discussed 2 to 0 setback to the Wolverines.

Then George finished somewhat mournfully: "We may win, I hope so, but we'll have to be just about twice as good as they are to do it. Michigan's our jinx."

Let's revert now to the tied score record equaled by Minnesota, which has a 19 to 7 win over Iowa and ties with Indiana, 6 to 6; with Purdue, 7 to 7, and Northwestern, 0 to 0, and a 7 to 3 win over the strong Pittsburgh eleven intervening. Chicago set the record back in 1924 and it gave the Maroons their last Big Ten championship.

Chicago tied Ohio State, Illinois in the still remembered 21 to 21 game in which Red Grange participated, and Wisconsin. It downed Purdue, Indiana, and Northwestern. Purdue that season defeated only Indiana and Northwestern, Indiana beat only Ohio State, and Wisconsin had two defeats and two ties.

Michigan lost to Illinois in the famous 39 to 14 Red Grange debacle; defeated Wisconsin, which later tied Chicago, by 21 to 0, and Ohio State, which had tied Chicago, by 16 to 6. Illinois met a surprise upset at Minnesota, 20 to 7, and beat Ohio State, 7 to 0.

Chicago did not meet Michigan or Minnesota. Of course, there was plain and fancy arguing over comparative strength by rival rooters, but there were the figures. Chicago with three won and three tied was the only undefeated eleven. Its percentage of 1.000 and not comparatives scores was what counted in the reckoning and the Maroons were champions.

If the Gophers should defeat Michigan it would be possible to have a similar record of three wins and three ties and a co-championship with Purdue. If the game resulted in a tie and all three elevens go clean the rest of the way, Michigan, Purdue, and Minnesota fans probably would ask that the honors be shared.

Purdue's other conference foes are Iowa and Indiana. Michigan has yet to meet Iowa, Minnesota, and Northwestern.

Around the Big Ten—Wisconsin.

On the shores of Lake Mendota,
Where the Badger hosts parade,
Football stars have marched by legions
In a gleaming cavalcade;
Pat O'Dea, the mighty kicker;
Davey, Scott, Tebell, and King,
Butler, Cuisinier, and Lusby
Have heard "On Wisconsin" ring
Full and clear across the gridiron
And, though these have come and gone,
Able hands receive the standard—
They will bear it on and on.

Maroons Hope to Improve Running Game

First among the many problems besetting Clark Shaughnessy as he prepares his Maroons for Indiana this week and for Illinois next week is what to do about the running attack. With two fine ball carriers in Zimmer and Berwanger, Chicago has been unable to gain consistently because the line has not opened holes. The coach has ordered scrimmage for today, tomorrow, and Thursday.

In the scoreless affair with Wisconsin the Maroons made only 74 yards in running plays, of which Berwanger made all but 13 yards, chiefly under his own power. Against Indiana, Chicago will still be seeking its first Big Ten touchdown, and the Hoosiers are reported to have strong defense.

Take Light Workout.

Yesterday the Maroon team enjoyed a rather light workout. The players took a fair amount of battering against Wisconsin, but escaped without injury, though Eli Patterson and Barton Smith may have to be favored a bit. Coach Shaughnessy indicated that Ed Cullen, Vin Sahlin, and Tommy Flinn will be used extensively this week.

Indiana comes to the Midway with a Big Ten record identical to that of the Maroons, with two defeats and one tie. As in the Chicago-Wisconsin game both teams will be fighting to stay out of the cellar, and this will be their best chance, since Chicago must meet Illinois in its conference final and Indiana faces Purdue, the game will be the 22d in the series between the two schools. Indiana has won only two games from the Maroons since the rivalry began in 1902 and 1910 and in 1931. Last year Indiana was the victim of an upset which Chicago won 13 to 7 for its only Big Ten triumph of the season.

Berwanger's Punting Improves.

Berwanger's punting has improved, his average for 11 kicks in the Wisconsin game being nearly 37 yards. The Maroon passing game netted 75 yards against the Badgers, which is also an improvement, though half of that total resulted from one long heave, Zimmer to Sahlin.

Indiana's offense Saturday is expected to resemble that of Chicago, the chief threat being speed and passing, with both teams using a modified single wing back.

FANS GUESTS AT PRACTICE GAME THIS MORNING

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Chuck Gardiner, Blackhawk favorite and one of the ace goal tenders of the hockey business, yesterday was named captain of the Chicago team, captaincy being an honor rarely accorded a goalie and a position held by no other net minder in the National Hockey league.

There long has been a feeling that a captain should be a fellow who does a lot of skating, but the idea was abandoned by the Hawks on the basis of Chuck's long and faithful service as the outstanding star of the team, his affability and universal popularity among his fellows and his high standing with the customers as a player of excellent skill and unfaltering sportsmanship. Outside of these considerations, Chuck scarcely rated the job.

McLaughlin Predicts Cup.

Gardiner's election was announced yesterday afternoon shortly after the Hawks had taken the ice at the Chicago Stadium for the first time this year. When the young man from Winnipeg scooted in front of his nets at the beginning of a practice session, Owner Frederic McLaughlin barged out on the ice and was the first to congratulate the new captain, who is beginning his seventh season in Hawk regalia.

After extending his compliments to Gardiner, Maj. McLaughlin talked about his hockey team. "Never have I made such a pre-season prophecy as I am about to make now," says the major. "I am confident that this team will bring Chicago its first Stanley cup."

In case the summer has made you a little rusty on your hockey, you are reminded that the Stanley cup is emblematic of the world championship. Hawk fans, of course, will be happy to learn that Maj. McLaughlin is able to announce its acquisition this early.

Railbird Game Today.

After his burst of optimism the Hawks' big boss conferred with his manager, Tom Gorman, and then made it known that a railbird practice game will be staged at the Stadium at 11 o'clock this morning. All railbirds will be admitted free to get a preview of their heroes.

In the practice game yesterday Manager Gorman gave some indications of the way he will work his combinations in the opener against the New York Americans Thursday night at the Stadium. Capt. Gardiner, of course, will be in front of the nets. Taffy Abel and Art Coulter will form one defense pair and Lionel Conacher and Roger Jenkins the other.

In addition to the aforementioned players the following participated in yesterday's practice: Joe Starke, spare goalie; Art Merrill, a forward, and two amateurs, Tom Coulter of the University of Pittsburgh and Wally Breneman. Coulter and Breneman are reported ready to turn pro if Manager Gorman says the word.

DEMPSEY PICKED TO HANDLE SHEA, ARIZMENDI BOUT

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey was selected today to referee the fight tomorrow night at the Olympic stadium between Eddie Shea, Chicago veteran, and Baby Arizmendi of Mexico, D. F.

As the fighters went through final workouts today the odds settled down to 10 to 7 in favor of Shea, who predicted a knockout victory well short of the ten rounds scheduled.

HARVARD LOSES TWO PLAYERS; 1 OUT FOR SEASON

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Harvard football hopes reached a new low today when the team physician reported that Art Choate, the Crimson's best defensive end, would be out of Saturday's game with Army because of a leg injury and that Dick Waters, first string full back replacement, had been advised to quit for the remainder of the season because of a back injury.

Tonelli, Liston Fight to Draw; Young Stops Kubicak

Bob Millsapp beat George Williams [4].
Gene Salvatore beat Al Schirato [4].
Paddy Walker beat Ace Kristoff [4].

MAROONS BUILD UP DEFENSE FOR HOCKEY BATTLES

Altered Offensive Tactics Expected to Help.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A shift in offensive tactics and a vastly improved rear guard are the means by which Coach Eddie Gerard of the Montreal Maroons hopes to make a real winner this year out of a team which has been fairly good, but not good enough in recent National Hockey league seasons.

Gerard has abandoned the idea of sending fresh waves of dark red garbed attackers onto the ice every time as front line replacements. Instead he plans to keep the offensive going with a steady stream of reinforcements for the first line of battle.

Reserves Failed to Hold Pace.

Ever since the famous "Big S" line of Nels Stewart, Hooley Smith, and Babe Siebert ceased to click a couple of years ago, the Maroons have had trouble keeping enough first class forwards on hand to rotate three complete front lines. Their stars got plenty of goals while working together but the reserves couldn't hold the pace. In practice this season, Gerard has been mixing the boys up and every forward has had to learn to work effectively with all the rest.

Outside of the method of working, the Maroons' front ranks show no changes this season but the defense, one of the team's weakest points, has been greatly altered. Lionel Conacher was sent to Chicago and Teddy Graham, a smart blocker, came to the Maroons in exchange. During the summer Montreal bought Vernon Ayres, one of the biggest defense players in the business, from the New York Americans.

Ayres Only 24 Years Old.

Ayres weighed 232 pounds when he reported and in addition to his size he has considerably ability and plenty of time to learn. He is 24 years old, a kid as defense men go. Bill McKenzie, a promising amateur sought for several years, took the jump to the pro ranks from the Montreals Royals and has been used experimentally both at defense and center.

Front Line Fast, Aggressive.

On the front line, Hooley Smith, Dave Trotter, Jimmy Ward, and Lawrence [Baldy] Northcott head the parade. They all are big, fast, and aggressive, established as first rate players. Earl Robinson, Wally Kilrea, Lorne Duguld, and Glen Brydson, all of whom have been tried in one or more campaigns with the Maroons, complete the roster.

Bolton Leads Pinch Hitters; .588 Average

The bleacher managers who censured Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington Senators, for calling on Cliff Bolton as a pinch hitter in the eleventh inning of the fourth game of the recent world series, can now consider themselves thrown for a loss, according to statistics issued yesterday by the American league. These figures prove that Joseph can hardly be blamed for sending Bolton in, since the young man's performance throughout the regular season enabled the Senators to lead the league in pinch hitting with a team average of .374, the highest mark in that department the league has seen in several years.

Bolton played the rôle of pinch hitter 21 times during the regular season, making 10 hits, including a double, drawing four passes, driving in four runs, and being personally responsible for three Washington triumphs. Along with Bolton, Cronin depended on Sam Rice and Dave Harris as pinch hitters.

Harris Makes 10 Hits.

Harris made ten hits, drove in ten runs and drew seven bases on balls as a pinch hitter, although he was a regular member of the Senator cast in the series after Heinie Manush had been ejected by Umpire Moran, so that Bolton really was Cronin's only alternate in that crucial 11th inning situation. Bolton led the league as a regular pinch hitter with an average of .588, while Harris finished with .460.

Bolton was tied in the matter of winning games by Jo-Jo White of Detroit, who was responsible for three Tiger victories. Among others who won at least one game with hits were Joe Sewell, Ruffins, Pytlak, Rice, and Goslin. Manush also won one game and tied the score with another pinch hit, while Harris twice deadlocked games with his relief wallops. Pinch hitters who delivered home runs include Jolley, 2; Goslin, Rice, Webb, Hodapp, Coleman, Hornsby, Guillic, F. Walker, and Byrd. There were six triples and 34 doubles.

908 Pinch Hitters Used.

Red Kress led the White Sox pinch hitters with five hits in 11 times at bat for an average of .455 and second place in the league.

C. C. Pyle, the Old Professor, Has Trouble

Arjan Desur Dangar has now vanished from the faculty of the astounding and amazing aggregation. Considerable mystery and some evil innuendoes have been raised. It is my privilege to present a true report, prepared by my friend Mr. Sexton, who made an investigation.

"When Prof. Pyle imported Arjan Desur Dangar and his educational mustache," Mr. Sexton writes, "he was compelled to import Chotalal Mansing Kamdar, a school teacher of Bombay, as his manager. Dangar could not read or write.

Kamdar Was Very Snobbish.

"However, the two did not get along very well, as Kamdar would not tell Dangar how much he was getting out of his share of the contract. He said Dangar should not worry himself about such matters, as this might affect his mustache. He was supposed to devote himself entirely to the mustache and leave all financial matters to Kamdar.

"But Dangar also became lonesome and wished to converse with Kamdar. So he asked Kamdar to talk to him. But Kamdar proved cold and distant. One night recently while the boys were lying on adjoining beds Dangar could not sleep. He felt very, very lonesome, but when he said, 'Kamdar, converse with me,' Kamdar said, 'Shut up and go to sleep.'

"This made Dangar very angry, so he grabbed a brick and started pounding Kamdar on the head. Attendants rushed in and made Dangar stop hitting Kamdar on the head with the brick. But two of Kamdar's fingers were broken and he had a cut in his scalp which took 18 stitches. The room was wrecked, but, worst of all, when they turned on the lights they discovered that Kamdar held clutched in his hand Dangar's famous mustache.

"Prof. Pyle states that the saddest part of it to him is that he had paid $2,500 to bring the two boys from India only a few weeks ago. They educated very few people in that time and the tuition money, naturally, did not equal the expense.

Professor Still Has the Mustache

"The professor shipped them back to India. He said he learned that Kamdar was giving Dangar only one-third of the money and forcing him to pay one-half of their expenses.

"The professor still has the mustache, but he said it would be very unethical to hire anybody else to wear it.

"Dangar said he felt very badly about pounding Kamdar on the head with the brick. The last thing he said before sailing for home was that he planned to shoot a big buffalo and send it to his manager as a token of sorrow at losing his temper. But Kamdar still refused to converse with him and Dangar may get lonesome again on the way home.

"Prof. Pyle denies that there was anything in the episode which could reflect on the dignity or educational character of the astounding and amazing aggregation."

Radcliffe Goes to Macks in Deal with St. Paul

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Rumor and report having traded most of his star performers to other clubs without his knowledge, Connie Mack today began to build up the Philadelphia Athletics for the 1934 campaign.

He announced that Raymond Radcliffe, outfielder and left hand batter of the St. Paul club of the American association, will be with his team next year. In return Mack is sending pitchers Gowell Claset and Tony Freitas and some cash to St. Paul.

Mack also announced that he has decided to give the Toledo club of the American association Joe Zapustis, formerly of Fordham university, for George Detore, infielder.

Mack said there would be no further announcement of deals for the present. Last week he denied that Lefty Grove, Mickey Cochrane, Max Bishop and other players had been sent to other clubs.

It has been reported that Cochrane is to go to the Detroit club as manager. It is believed that if Mack has any major trades in mind they will not be announced until the winter meeting of the leagues in New York next month.

About the only player that rumor has not mentioned recently is Jimmy Foxx, major league home run champion and leading batter of the American league. Foxx is to be given a dinner tomorrow night by the home folks at Sudlersville, Md.

Manager Mack said today: "I believe we have picked up a promising young outfielder in Radcliffe. He has only been playing baseball about three years. Last season he was selected on the All-Star American association team. He started in the Texas league. Ira Thomas and my son, Earl, scouted him and liked his looks."

Mack also had a good word for Detore as an all around infielder. He formerly played with Cleveland, Buffalo in the International league, and last season with Toledo.

Philadelphia Eagles Sign Steinbach, Ex-Bear Tackle

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Eagles, Philadelphia member of the National Professional Football league, today announced the signing of Larry Steinbach, former tackle in the eleven of St. Thomas' college of St. Paul, Minn. Steinbach was traded to the Eagles by the Chicago Bears.

De Paul After No. 7 Against St. Thomas

De Paul university will seek its seventh straight victory Saturday afternoon when St. Thomas college team of St. Paul is met at Wrigley field. This will be the last home game for De Paul.

The undefeated North Siders have piled up a total of 113 points on opponents and have been scored on only once, Western State Teachers getting a touchdown. Omaha, Valparaiso, South Dakota, Niagara and St. Ambrose have been the other victims.

Coaches Jim Kelly and Ben Connor declared a rest period yesterday and the boys were excused after a chalk talk on the St. Thomas attack.

The coaches were still hunting possible ends for Saturday's game. Joe Sullivan and Andy Delaney were badly crippled yesterday and just now Phil Krause is the only flankman available.

Wyoming Player Dropped for Breaking Training

Knox Freshmen Weaken; Shave for Sorority Dance

Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Social activities over the week-end brought to an abrupt end the ten-day-old plans of a group of 20 Knox freshmen who signed a pact to let their beards grow until the college wins a football game. A sorority dance and Dad's day festivities caused some of the band to weaken, and when classes started today, all had shaved. A new move was under way this afternoon to enroll all freshmen in a similar beard-growing venture.

Calder Suspends Weiland, Ottawa Senators' Center

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Cooney Weiland, center for the Ottawa Senators of the National Hockey league, was suspended by Frank Calder, league president, today for failing to come to terms. Weiland has been holding out for the same salary he received last year. The Ottawa club insisted upon a $500 cut.

Mandell Wins 8 Round Decision Over Nelson

Boxers Vie in C. Y. O. Meet Tomorrow

South side preliminary rounds of the Catholic Youth organization boxing tournament open tomorrow night in the St. Columbanus parish gymnasium. Some of the outstanding amateurs in Chicago will compete.

Among these is Bob Crowley, 147 pounder, who will box for the C. Y. O. hotel. Crowley is no novice. He won the welterweight championship in the Golden Gloves contests at Davenport, Ia., last year.

Another boy regarded as certain to advance to the quarter finals, Friday night, is Sammy Guidara. Sammy got as far as the final round in last year's C. Y. O. tournament, and this year is expecting to go all the way in the 118 pound class. Barring his way to the south side bantamweight crown will be Eddie Messmer, Golden Gloves sectional winner last year.

Other outstanding amateurs who will compete in the south sectional include Phil and Tom Kennelly, lightweight and heavyweight, respectively; Jackie Sullivan, flyweight; Sam Scullo, featherweight; Harold Lanson, novice champion in the C. Y. O. lightweight division last year; William Fitzgerald, welterweight, and Otto Fichal, middleweight.

Monmouth Resumes Play Against Bradley Eleven

ATHLETIC BOARD SANCTIONS TWO TITLE MEETINGS

Approves Ross-Fuller and Londos-McMillen Bouts.

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday sanctioned the Barney Ross-Sammy Fuller bout and the Jim Londos-Jim McMillen contest, recognizing the former as a junior welterweight boxing championship bout and the latter as a heavyweight wrestling title meeting. Both matches will be presented at the Chicago Stadium, the Ross-Fuller affair on Nov. 17 and the Londos-McMillen on Nov. 22.

The commission voted to recognize Londos' title claim because Joe Savoldi, who was awarded a disputed decision over Jim at the Stadium last spring, refused a return bout here after the commission had issued an ultimatum and allowed him 60 days to accept. Londos signed immediately after the order was drafted by the commission.

The state boxing commission has reinstated Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ill., former lightweight champion, after a suspension of two years. In his latest match here Mandell went ten rounds with Ralph Lenny Nov. 4, 1931, and on the Bat Battalino-Earl Mastro featherweight title card.

The funeral this morning, for Mrs. Margaret Duffy, mother of John Duffy, chief inspector of the Illinois athletic commission, will be from her late residence, 7249 Prairie avenue, to St. Columbanus church. Burial will be at Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

King Levinsky, west side heavyweight, left yesterday for Winnipeg, Man., where he boxes a four round exhibition bout tomorrow, two each with Seal Harris and Ed Wills. . . . Bill O'Connell, Streator, Ill., middleweight, and George Williams of Chicago will clash for six rounds Friday at the Rainbo Fronton. . . . A contest at ten rounds, three at six, and one at four are being planned for the opening show at the Lake Shore Athletic club Nov. 16.

Tony Cancela, local heavyweight, was forced to cut his boxing drill from four to three rounds yesterday while preparing for a ten round encounter against Baxter Calmes at the Coliseum Annex next Monday. After going two rounds with Roy Wallace, Cancela's scheduled two rounds against Merril Tonn had to be concluded shortly after the second, when Tonn sustained a cut over his eye.

Adolph Wiater, Green Bay, Wis., heavyweight, is training in Chicago for a match with Ernie Evatis at Milwaukee, Wis., Friday. Johnny Fitzpatrick and Jackie Sharkey, featherweights, will go to Milwaukee today to finish training for their eight round windup encounter. . . . The New York athletic commission has informed the Illinois commission that no contracts are recognized in New York unless both principals in a bout are signed by the same promoter. This is in reference to a Jim Londos-Jim Browning wrestling match, Londos having signed for the bout with the Chicago Stadium and Browning with Jack Curley of New York.

Johnny Phagan has started workouts at Northwest gymnasium, 2025 North avenue, for a six round battle with Young Joe Walker at the Stadium next week. He is to box with Young Scotty today. . . . Dick Sisk yesterday accepted a six round match against Henry Rothler at Marigold Garden next Monday. . . . Eight amateur matches will be offered tomorrow at Marigold Garden.

MICHIGAN GUARD, CARL SAVAGE, IS OUT FOR SEASON

Suffers Broken Foot in Illinois Game.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 6. — [Special.] — Carl Savage, University of Michigan guard, suffered a fractured bone in his foot in Saturday's game with Illinois and will be lost for the season, trainers announced today as the Wolverines began preparations for the Iowa encounter here Saturday.

Savage has been playing regularly in the line and also was valuable as a place kicker. X-ray photographs revealed the break and his foot was placed in a cast this afternoon. He is a senior.

Coaches sent the squad through a long scrimmage today. Players expressed disappointment because they won by only one point, 7 to 6, at Illinois Saturday. They tried to make up for it by trouncing the second team. Capt. Stan Fay, Louis Westover, and Russ Oliver led the backs on running plays and Bill Renner's forward passes were clicking consistently.

NEW PLAYS FOR IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—With the Michigan game next on the schedule, Coach Ossie Solem denied University of Iowa football players the usual Monday vacation today.

The Hawkeyes listened to a long chalk talk on Wolverine plays and were given new formations of their own for use against Michigan Saturday. Solem had the men get into uniform immediately after the skull session for hard tackling and signal drill.

Solem is likely to spend considerable time before Thursday in strengthening the flanks of the Iowa team. None of the Hawkeye opponents have gained consistently through the line, but the Iowa ends were unable to stop Minnesota.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Injuries and scholastic work gained several Indiana university football men vacations from practice this afternoon, but the rest of the squad went through a hard workout in the opening drill for the battle with Chicago at the Midway Saturday.

Coach E. C. Hayes directed special attention toward rounding Walker, Eller, and Huffman, the squad's star back field cripples, into shape. Walker and Veller weathered the Ohio State game fairly well, while Huffman, who didn't play, reported for work, greatly improved.

TWO BADGERS OUT.

Kenneth Kundert, half back, and Milton Kummer, guard, who were injured in the Chicago game, probably will not be able to play against West Virginia Saturday.

Coach Clarence W. Spears believes the Badgers played at the peak of their ability against Chicago and declared the Maroons played as well as Illinois did in its game with Wisconsin earlier in the season.

WILDCATS TOUGH—ZUPPKE.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—"We have a tough job on our hands with Northwestern, so let's all forget about the Michigan game and get into shape for the Wildcats," Bob Zuppke exhorted Illinois football players today as they resumed practice.

"I don't see where they get this idea of making Illinois a favorite over Northwestern," Zuppke said. "Northwestern has come along rapidly and has just tied the undefeated Minnesota team. Our scouts tell me that the advantage, if there was any, was with the Wildcats. The Northwestern line must have been good to hold the Gophers.

"Northwestern and Illinois look to be about the same kind of teams in experience, ability, speed and weight. The Wildcats will be inspired because of their exploit against Minnesota, while we must come out of our disappointment in losing to Michigan. My guess is that the game will be one of those close, anything-may-happen affairs."

Zuppke worked the regulars sparingly. He apparently intends to stand pat on the lineup used against the Wolverines, which means that the sophomore linemen, Antilla, Galbreath and Gryboski, will remain in the first string.

GOPHERS SHAKE UP BACKS.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—It was a day of rest for the battered University of Minnesota football squad today as Coach Bernie Bierman gave the boys a chance to review mistakes in their scoreless tie with Northwestern. Bierman announced that he would make two drastic changes tomorrow in an effort to put more punch into the Gopher back field. Minnesota has an open date Saturday.

The surprise came when Bierman revealed that he would supplant Pug Lund, leading ball carrier for the Gophers and individual star in each game, with George Roscoe, sophomore back, who has seen little work since the Indiana game. In another change Babe Levoir is to be given a thorough trial at quarter back in place of Glen Seidel.

Roscoe is considered a better passer than Lund. Seidel was charged with mistakes Saturday against Northwestern which slowed down the attack, and Bierman believes Levoir, with a little more experience, can help that situation.

Illinois Teaches Big 10 Teams That Michigan Can Be Beaten

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Illinois may have taught the conference football teams, if Saturday's game did nothing else, that Michigan can be whipped. Of course, Illinois didn't beat the Wolverines, but if a 7 to 6 defeat can be accepted as a criterion, then Iowa, Minnesota, and Northwestern, all having more weight in the line than Illinois, may take heart.

The Illinois-Michigan game was as evenly fought as any game can be with each eleven showing sufficient superiority in different departments of attack to advance the ball. Illinois was superior in forward passing; Michigan had the better of the running plays, and the punting just about balanced.

There Were 153 Plays.

Exclusive of kickoffs there were 153 plays from scrimmage in the game. Illinois made 77 plays and Michigan 76. These figures include plays which were called back for penalty. The comparison by quarters follows:

First quarter—Illinois [with wind], 25; Michigan, 9.
Second quarter—Michigan [with wind], 30; Illinois, 13.
Third quarter—Michigan [with wind], 21; Illinois, 17.
Fourth quarter—Illinois [with wind], 22; Michigan, 16.

This table shows the effect of the wind on attack in the first half. In the third quarter, when Michigan had the wind, the Wolverines preferred to play safe and protect their one point lead. Following is a table of first downs and forward passes by periods which shows relationship of attack to the score:

FIRST DOWNS.
Michigan	0	4	1	0—Total 5
Illinois	2	0	4	4—Total 6
FORWARD PASSES.
Michigan	0	4	2	0—Total 6

Change the Defense.

Still another interesting comparison in the Michigan-Illinois game is that in 75 plays Michigan punted 18 times. In 77 plays Illinois punted 16 times. Thus the value of good kicking is apparent, for more than 20 per cent of each team's plays were kicks. The average distance was about even and each team was held to short returns. Strangely enough the total yards each team gained on return of punts was 21.

Illinois completed four forward passes in nine attempts in the fourth period for a total gain of 70 yards. One pass was intercepted and four were incomplete. However, in the second half Michigan almost always played seven men in the line where in the first half it had used six men in the line with Regeczi and Bernard backing up this line and also having a more favorable position for the covering of passes.

Notwithstanding the success of the passing attack Illinois did not depend on passes in its two attempts to score from inside Michigan's 20 yard line. With the ball on Michigan's 14 yard line Illinois tried the line twice, then a lateral pass, and last a short forward pass which was incomplete at the goal line. On the second drive, also from Michigan's 14 yard line just before the game ended, Illinois hit the line four times, gaining 9 yards and losing the ball on downs on Michigan's 5 yard line.

Two Unusual Plays.

Two unusual plays occurred Saturday. The first was the penalty on Illinois in the closing seconds of the first half for a fourth time out which practically assured Michigan its touchdown. Michigan had made a first down on Illinois' five yard line. A substitute for Illinois [a fourth time out] stopped the timer's watch and, of course, time is not resumed until the ball is snapped by the center. Thus Michigan not only was given the ball on Illinois' one yard line, but time could not expire until at least one play had been completed. That play, an end run by Everhardus scored. The half ended on the kickoff following the touchdown.

The second unusual play was Beynon's fair catch on Michigan's 31 yard line in the final seconds of the game. Beynon chose to put the ball in play by a place kick, the first instance this year in conference games.

KETTLE DRUM TO INSPIRE HASKELL; TOM TOMS FAIL

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Haskell Indians have had only a moderately successful football season, but their tom tom drummers are not downhearted. In every game the rhythmic beat of the instrument has accompanied the thud of clashing linemen on the field. Its supposed inspirational qualities, however, have not been able to overcome the strength of the opposition.

Maybe it was the fault of the drum. It is almost worn out. Anyway, the Pottawatomies on the Mayetta reservation heard about the need for a new one and made a large kettle drum, an elaborately beaded affair. It will be dedicated in a brief ceremony before the Haskell-Grinnell game here Saturday.

AMERICA'S CUP RACER WILL BE READY IN APRIL

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 6.—T. O. M. Sopwith's America's cup challenger, the Endeavor, will be launched towards the end of April. She is entered in the coastwise fixtures for big yachts racing in British waters in July, after which she is sailing for America.

The Atlantic crossing will probably be made under a jury-rig with the neucleus of the crew while the remaining hands are aboard Sopwith's motor yacht, the Vita, or a liner. Sopwith himself will command the Endeavor throughout the contest of five matches starting in September.

The Endeavor's 80 ton keel shortly will be cast, then the shipwrights will proceed with the framing and planking. The Endeavor will be built of steel specially milled, with a mast steel spar of 168 feet.

Injury Ends Career of Wiltfong, Central Star

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Central's victory over Riley last Saturday cost it Don Wiltfong, star half back who suffered a broken shoulder, ending his prep career. Wiltfong, a senior, was hurt on the first play in which he carried the ball. He made a 30 yard gain before being tackled. Central scored its first touchdown two plays later. Wiltfong suffered an ankle injury midway in the 1932 season, which kept him out until this fall.

Notre Dame Is Trying Too Hard, Says Navy Coach

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 6.—(AP)—The trouble with Notre Dame's faltering football team, as Edgar E. [Rip] Miller, Navy coach, sees it, is altogether psychological.

"Instead of playing cool, collected football," Miller said today, "they are trying too hard, both for themselves and for Hunk Anderson."

He pointed to the fumbles and mistakes in the pinches Saturday when Navy, although rushed off its feet in midfield and almost pushed about at will, scored a 7 to 0 victory over the Indiana eleven.

"The Notre Dame backs hit fast and hard, and it took from four to five Navy players to pull them down time and time again. They have a beautiful blocking line and coördinate for first down after first down until they begin to smell a touchdown. Then the tension asserts itself and the mechanical mistakes begin."

Fenwick Prep Eleven Seeks Fifth in Row

The baby member of the Chicago Catholic High school league—Fenwick of Oak Park—is entertaining hopes of winning the football championship in its second year of league competition. Fenwick, coached by Tony Lawless, former Loyola university athlete, scored its fourth consecutive victory last Sunday by overwhelming St. Mel, one of its big brothers in the west division, 27 to 0.

Fenwick's surprising victories, however, are not more amazing than the manner in which St. Ignatius, perennial cellar occupant, has conducted itself this season. By defeating St. Michael last Saturday, St. Ignatius now shares the lead in the west section with Fenwick.

Fenwick and St. Ignatius will seek their fifth straight triumphs this week-end, the former against Weber at Mills stadium Sunday and St. Ignatius against St. Mel at Philip field Saturday. If Fenwick and St. Ignatius triumph, they will meet for the sectional championship on Nov. 18.

Lindblom, central section champion, and Morgan Park, winner last Saturday of its second successive south section title, will meet in the semifinal round for the Chicago Public High School league championship at White City stadium Nov. 18. The site of the contest was agreed upon at a meeting yesterday.

Harrison Tech will seek its fourth straight victory and the west section championship when its meets McKinley at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, Saturday afternoon.

The sixth annual Chicago Public High School league cross-country run will be held in Washington park Saturday morning. It will start at 10 o'clock. Austin won the team championship last year, with Lindblom second and Tilden Tech third.

Englewood's senior swimming team will be captained by Gercas this season. Goodlander has been chosen as the junior team's captain.

Sauer Will Captain Nebraska Against Kansas

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 6.—(AP)—George Henry Sauer, Nebraska full back, was named by Coach Dana X. Bible today to captain the Cornhuskers in their last Big Six conference football game here next Saturday against Kansas.

Krause Will Lead Irish in Purdue Game

Krause starred in football, basketball, baseball, and track with De La Salle High school of Chicago. He is captain of this year's basketball team and has been a star at center for the last two seasons, leading the team in scoring both years.

Plays Well Against Navy.

After getting off to a slow start, Krause has rounded into fine shape and played one of his best games against Navy last Saturday. He weighs 210 pounds and is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

Practice was canceled today for all who played against Navy Saturday, but Coach Anderson worked with the reserves and freshmen, giving them the variations of the Notre Dame system which Purdue employs. The plays will be used in scrimmage tomorrow and Wednesday.

Plans were being formulated today for the biggest pep meeting of the year Friday night. Ticket sales were reported to have reached 30,000, with another 10,000 expected to be sold this week. The stadium holds 55,000.

PURDUE CASUALTIES HEAVY

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Purdue's football forces were none too happy over the prospects of Saturday's battle with Notre Dame this afternoon as they surveyed reports concerning the offensive strength of the Irish eleven that has done everything well except score touchdowns consistently. Purdue also was faced with an injury list swelled to alarming proportions as a result of the battle with Carnegie Tech Saturday.

Hecker May Be Out.

To the Boilermaker injury worries is added the fact that Fred Hecker, full back and left half back, who was kept on the side lines against Carnegie due to the general battering he received at Wisconsin, has failed to recover as fast as expected, and may not be able to resume his post by Saturday.

Boilermaker scouts have been anything but comforting to the Purdue peace of mind with reports of the ground gaining strength of the Irish. It was pointed out that Notre Dame has gained approximately 1,200 yards from scrimmage, and that only an almost unprecedented series of breaks have kept them from scoring more than two touchdowns.

"Purdue On Spot," Says Kizer.

"If ever any team was on the spot, we will be Saturday," said Coach Noble Kizer. "You can't keep a good team down Saturday after Saturday, and the Irish, after three straight defeats, are due to collect in a touchdown way with the power they have displayed. They gained more ground against the Navy Saturday than we did against Carnegie, and yet failed to score. It's time to look out!"

The Boilermakers who played against Carnegie Saturday were given a rest from drill this afternoon as they attempted to patch up their bruises. Reserves worked on a tentative defense against the Irish attack that rolled up 20 first downs against the Navy.

Layden Ascribes Duquesne Success to a "Will to Win"

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 6.—(AP)—It's not the coaching or the system, says Elmer Layden, it's the spirit of the thing.

Victor in eight straight games, Duquesne does it through an undeniable will to win, if one is to believe Layden.

"Those boys believe in themselves," asserted Layden today, a successful coach in his seventh year at Duquesne. "We're doing pretty well here and it's all because we have an unmatchable team spirit. We have third choice in the material for the Pittsburgh district—it's inevitable with Pitt and Carnegie Tech here—but we have the benefit of an almost fanatical desire to get somewhere."

To date Duquesne has beaten West Virginia Wesleyan, Waynesburg, West Virginia university, Western Maryland, Bucknell, Detroit, Westminster, and Washington and Jefferson.

But—on the forthcoming Saturday the opponent is the University of Pittsburgh. "What's the dope on that game?" Layden was asked. "Three touchdowns," he said. "You'll beat them that badly?"

"Oh, no that's the margin they'll have over us," he replied.

KIRSCHMEYER, WASHBURN MEET ON ARCADIA MAT

Gentleman Jack Washburn, so called because he is anything but a gentleman, and proud of it, will give fans something to boo about when the new Arcadia gardens is opened to wrestling a week from tonight, with Doc Krone as promoter.

Washburn, who has been hooted at from New York to Los Angeles and New Orleans to Montreal, meets Roland Kirschmeyer, Oklahoma Aggies collegian. This is the semi-windup to the main event, which has Rudy Dusek battling Dick Stahl, newest German importation.

The Washburn-Kirschmeyer match will be one fall, with half an hour time limit. Stahl and Dusek will travel one fall to a finish, with an hour and a half time limit, in accordance with new rules set down by the Illinois Athletic commission.

Ripon Eleven Ends Season with Millikin Saturday

Giants Retain Scoring Lead in Pro League

The New York Giants continued to set the scoring pace in the National Professional Football league during Sunday's game with the Portsmouth Spartans. Their 13 to 10 victory gave them a total of 160 points in eight games against 78 for their opponents.

The Green Bay Packers have accumulated 141 points against 56 for their foes. Both the Packers and the Giants have scored in every game.

The Chicago Bears have a knack of winning consistently despite the fact that they have not been piling up big scores. Although they are in first place in the league standing, they have made only 67 points, while their opponents were scoring 43. In Sunday's game with Boston the Bears suffered their first defeat of the season. Season scores:

Grange Files Suit Against City for Beer License

Harold E. [Red] Grange, professional football player, wants to open a beer parlor at 4138 Sheridan road, but, he declares in a suit filed yesterday in the Superior court, the city will not let him.

Since he stands to lose $7,000 already invested in fixing up the place, Grange seeks to ascertain why he should not be given a license.

CARDINALS GET READY FOR DEBUT OF CINCINNATI

Ohioans Next Foe; Hansen Is Injured.

The Cardinals took stock of their injuries and mistakes yesterday after the defeat Sunday by the Green Bay Packers, preparatory to their game Sunday against the Cincinnati team of the National Professional league.

It will be Cincinnati's first appearance in Chicago and likewise will mark the debut of several players who have been leading Cincinnati's attack. In a previous meeting with Cincinnati, on their first eastern trip, the Cardinals were victorious, 3 to 0, by dint of Joe Lillard's field goal.

Hansen Hurts Knee.

Sunday's game cost the Cardinals the services of Cliff Hansen, a half back, who suffered a knee injury and will not be able to play again until a week from Sunday when Benny Friedman and the Brooklyn team appear at Wrigley field.

Aside from the injuries the Green Bay game developed a protest by Dr. David J. Jones, club president, against the officiating. This is understood to be the first action of its kind this year. Jones' protest to Joe Carr, president of the league, does not question the good intentions of the officials but objects to their rulings. Details of the complaint were not made public, but it was learned that Jones objected to the officiousness of Cal Hubbard, Packer tackle, who had something to say about every decision and harangued the officials continually.

It's Ladies' Day.

Sunday's game against Cincinnati will be Ladies' Day at Wrigley field. Tickets will be supplied upon a written request to Dr. David J. Jones, addressed to Wrigley field. All requests must contain a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

LEAD CHANGES HANDS IN WINDY CITY LEAGUE

Some of the best bowling of the season took place in the Windy City Major league last night at the Windy City alleys. One of the outstanding bombardments was the 3,267 total amassed by the Corina Cigars, who won three games and took first place, a position which the Illinois Pies had held since the start of the season. Joe Wilman contributed a 732 series toward the Corina's big team count, his games being 230, 235, and 267.

Another 700 series was registered when J. Kubec of the Rock Garden Taverns hung up games of 220, 212, and 276, for a total of 708. His performance helped the Rock Gardens take two out of three from the A. J. Cermaks, who had games of 911, 1,136, and 1,072.

The Mineraltites won two out of three from Curtiss Buy Jiminy, while getting 3,020 pins to 3,016 for the losers. The Rosedale Dairies, led by P. Clinton's 687, shot 3,081, while beating Soper Brothers two out of three.

New York, N. Y., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—With Dark Secret, Blot and Winooka among the featured racers, the United Hunts Racing association will conduct a one day meeting tomorrow at Belmont park. Dark Secret conquered the champion Equipoise in the Jockey Club Gold Cup. He is scheduled to go to the post tomorrow in the Whitney Gold trophy race at a mile and a half.

Winooka, the Australian thoroughbred which has proved himself a smart sprinter in Maryland, will make his first appearance before a metropolitan audience when he goes to the post in the international speed test, a dash in which three American horses have been named against him.

Track Is Sloppy.

Blot is Mrs. Gwladys Whitney's crack jumper, and was scratched from the Llangollen National steeplechase last Saturday in order to compete tomorrow afternoon in the Temple Gwathmey Memorial at the United Hunts, according to an announcement from Harry A. Buck, secretary. All three loom as prospective favorites in their respective races.

The weather and track conditions today were far from ideal for Winooka's New York debut. The racing strip was sloppy from a steady drizzle of the last 24 hours, while the cold blasts that swept the Long Island course were more suitable to football than racing.

Winooka Even Money.

Regardless of the track conditions, Winooka is expected to face the starter the even money choice to whip Mrs. James M. Austin's Good Advice, John Simonetti's Sergeant Byrne, and J. Simon Healy's Flying Heels. Good Advice has been defeated twice by the Australian, but Sergeant Byrne and Flying Heels, the former a 2 year old, have yet to attempt to match their speed against the fast stepping invader.

STATE NORMAL, WESLEYAN GET SET FOR BATTLE

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Illinois Wesleyan and State Normal, old rivals, located within a mile of each other, meet on the Normal field in their annual football game Saturday. Their meeting may decide the Little Nineteen conference title.

State Normal, riding at the top of the league, leads the race by a three game margin, having won five straight conference battles without defeat or tie. Wesleyan also is undefeated with two conference triumphs but smarts from a tie with Millikin. The Titans' only chance to retain their 1932 share in the conference title rests in victory over State Normal and McKendree. Wesleyan must defeat Normal to stay in the race, while Normal must have at least a tie.

Tradition favors the Titans. Not once in the last twenty-seven years has a Normal eleven been able to defeat a Wesleyan aggregation. However, the State Normal eleven this year is conceded to be the strongest team to represent the Cardinal in many years.

M'KENDREE SEEKS 3D VICTORY IN RACE FOR TITLE

Lebanon, Ill., Nov. 6.—[Special.]—McKendree college will seek its third conference victory of the year Saturday against Eastern Teachers of Charleston. McKendree is one of three undefeated and untied colleges in the league and has a chance to win or share the title by winning the remaining league games on its schedule with Eastern Teachers, State Normal, and Illinois Wesleyan. Both Normal and Wesleyan are among the league leaders this year.

Moses, Rogge Join Gunners for Game with Shamrocks

Don Moses, former Southern California back field star, and George Rogge, recently with the Chicago Cardinals, have been added to the lineup of the St. Louis Gunners for their game with the Chicago Shamrocks Wednesday night. The battle will mark the opening of the professional indoor football season on the full-size gridiron of the 124th Field artillery armory, 5200 Cottage Grove avenue.

A WOODPECKER GETS READY FOR A HARD WINTER

Stores Food Supply in Bark of Tree.

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the southern states with their mild temperature and lack of snow have lured millions of songbirds to take up their winter residence down there, there is one red headed woodpecker around our yard which apparently has decided to defy winter to do its worst. This bird which Sunday was keeping company with English sparrows and a pair of cardinals, is making preparations for a future source of food supply, an activity that indicates he is going to be with us all winter.

We watched this gay red headed woodpecker for some time. He was making raids upon a feeding station which was swarming with sparrows. Down he'd swoop, grab a bit of food, and then return to a big shag bark hickory, not to eat, but to cache the tidbit. With a lot of fussing and a very careful selection of just the right crevice in the bark, the woodpecker would then proceed to stow away his food item.

Provides for Future.

His logic is quite sound. It's easy to get plenty of food now and

DEVALUE DOLLAR 50%, NEW PLAN TO LIFT PRICES

Roosevelt Aids Ask Speedy Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—The gold value of America's dollar, the football of six government and federal reserve bank officials, dropped to a new low level today, reaching 62.94 cents at home and 64.54 abroad in terms of French francs at 6.07 cents.

Plunging downward, the dollar has forced the British pound to $4.92½, one of the highest figures on record, and proponents of the gold buying plan were watching anxiously tonight for almost certain British reprisals against the dollar depreciation.

Unable again today to point to any commodity price gains as a result of their program of dollar depreciation in terms of gold, the group which persuaded President Roosevelt to embark on the venture was blaming the failure of their panacea on the British and on "Wall street deflationists."

Demand Devaluing Dollar.

Overnight devaluation of the dollar by 50 per cent is the new cure which the gold buyers are now offering the President. The Committee for the Nation, whose economist, Prof. George F. Warren, helped President Roosevelt work out the gold plan two weeks ago, is now maintaining that only by devaluation can price increases be obtained.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt's monetary triumvirate was continuing the reduction of the dollar's gold value. Acting Secretary of the Treasury Dean G. Acheson, Farm Credit Governor Henry Morgenthau Jr., and RFC Chairman Jesse H. Jones, set a new high price of $32.84 an ounce for newly mined domestic gold today and thereby cut the dollar's gold value at home to 62.94 cents.

At the same time another triumvirate at the New York federal reserve bank consisting of Gov. George L. Harrison, Fred I. Kent, foreign exchange expert, and L. W. Knoke, gold expert, were driving the gold value of the dollar abroad down to 63.6 cents by gold purchases in foreign markets.

Jones Tells of Gold Buying.

Mr. Jones revealed today that $2,800,000 already has been spent on buying about 86,000 ounces of newly mined domestic gold. In addition, a "substantial" sum of foreign gold has been bought, Mr. Jones said, but he was unable to give the figure.

British reprisals against American dollar depreciation loomed ominously tonight after the pound had been forced above the old gold standard parity with the dollar. Experts conceded that England probably is only biding her time until she will attempt to drive up the dollar, thus regaining the advantage she has held in world trade until recently through her depreciated pound.

If Great Britain takes such action through her stabilization of the pound, the two greatest financial centers, New York and London, will be locked in a currency depreciation war. Officials still maintained today that no understanding had been reached with England to forestall such a combat.

Stock and commodity prices continued heavy today despite the high gold prices. Watching prices sag contrary to their predictions, the committee for the nation and other proponents of the gold buying scheme tried to put the blame on Wall street. They urged immediate devaluation as a remedy.

Sterling Highest Since 1914.

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A brisk rise in sterling exchange to the highest since 1914 and to a level several cents above the old gold parity of $4.86⅝ was the principal feature of the foreign exchange market today.

Its top rate of $4.92½ for cables was established in the early dealings. At this level it showed a gain of more than 6 cents over the final quotation of Saturday. Later it eased to around $4.87¾ and closed at $4.89½ for a net gain of 3¾ cents.

Advancing against the continental gold currencies, as well as the dollar, exchange dealers thought they saw in the pound's action some indications of a flight of capital from the gold standard countries to London.

French francs were slightly lower in the early trading, but recovered to 6.07 cents, or a shade above the previous day's level, at the close. Substantially larger losses in the Dutch guilder, the Swiss franc, and Belgian belga were similarly regained.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 6.—For the first time since Britain went off the gold standard and United States dollars soared in value to as much as $1.25 in Canadian money, Uncle Sam's money went to a discount in Canada today. Checks from the United States were being discounted a quarter of a cent per dollar at the banks. At New York the Canadian dollar reached par for the first time since 1931. Strengthening of the Canadian dollar reacts to the disadvantage of exporters to the United States, while it is an aid to those interests which had to meet bond interest and principal payments in New York. The latter, for November, amount to $31,204,459.

U.S. Gold Plan Puts Silver at 3 Years' Peak

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The government's new gold buying policy has stirred up a new flurry of speculation in silver.

Bar silver today reached its highest level in about three years. The quotation was 41½ cents an ounce, up ¾ cent from Saturday. Futures also advanced. Silver's low, 24¼ cents an ounce, was made in 1932. Inasmuch as there is no American speculative market in gold, raising the price of the yellow metal has turned speculators to the baser metal.

The new upturn has been accompanied by rumors that Washington might do something for silver, although the only specific news is a proposal to issue $11,001,000 in silver certificates against the metal tendered by Great Britain in connection with war debts last June. This could scarcely be a market factor.

Accepted on War Debts.

The Thomas amendment to the farm relief act authorizes the President to accept up to 200 million dollars in silver, valuing it at 50 cents an ounce, against war debt payments. Receiving the debt payments in silver, it is explained by market experts, is likely to affect the price only as it tends to remove the metal from the markets.

The Thomas amendment further permits the President to order free coinage of silver at whatever ratio to gold he may see fit. There has been no hint from Washington, however, that such action was contemplated.

The present price for silver is still considered low, on the basis of average prices over many years, and further agitation "to do something for silver" is anticipated when congress reconvenes.

Economists greatly disagree as to the importance of the price of silver to world prosperity. Silver production is a relatively minor industry, last year's total amounting to little more than 160 million ounces, of which American companies produced a little more than half. A large part of their output came from their foreign properties.

China and Mexico still use silver as currency, and natives of a few other countries, notably India, habitually hoard the metal. If silver were worth more, China and Mexico could buy more foreign goods, it is argued, and the Indian hoarder could sell his metal for more merchandise. On the other hand, some economists point out, raising the value of silver would tend to have a deflationary effect upon price levels in Mexico and China, thus disturbing their internal affairs.

STEEL OUTPUT DECREASES TO 25.2% CAPACITY

The American Iron and Steel Institute yesterday estimated national steel production at 25.2 per cent of capacity. This compared with 26.1 per cent a week ago.

The general decline is reflected in the Chicago area, where the Illinois Steel company is reported as now operating at a rate of about 30 per cent of capacity, the lowest since early in May. The South Chicago works of the company are reported operating at about 28 per cent of capacity, with seven open hearth furnaces and two blast furnaces active. The Gary plant is reported operating at a capacity slightly higher than that at South Chicago.

Inland Steel company is operating eight of its twenty-seven open hearth furnaces at its Indiana Harbor plant. The company's ingot production rate is about 30 per cent of capacity, compared with 35 per cent a year ago. Two of the company's four blast furnaces are still active.

The Republic Steel company's Chicago operations are reported as continuing at 30 per cent of capacity, with two of eight open hearth furnaces active.

BUS LINES PLAN FARE REDUCTION EFFECTIVE DEC. 1

A general reduction of bus passenger fares throughout the country, will be made Dec. 1, it was announced at a meeting of the National Bus Traffic association at the Congress hotel yesterday.

The bus lines are compelled to reduce their fares to meet railroad competition, according to L. G. Markel, of the Pacific Greyhound Lines, chairman of the association.

Mr. Markel arrived here today from Washington, where he had been in conference with government officials regarding the bus code which was signed Oct. 31 by the President and is to become effective Nov. 13.

When the code becomes effective it will result in an employment increase of 12,586 persons and an annual pay roll increase of $15,152,000, it was reported at the meeting here.

The meeting, which was attended by 100 traffic managers of the major bus lines, will continue today to discuss fares.

Panama Canal Traffic Best Since January, 1931

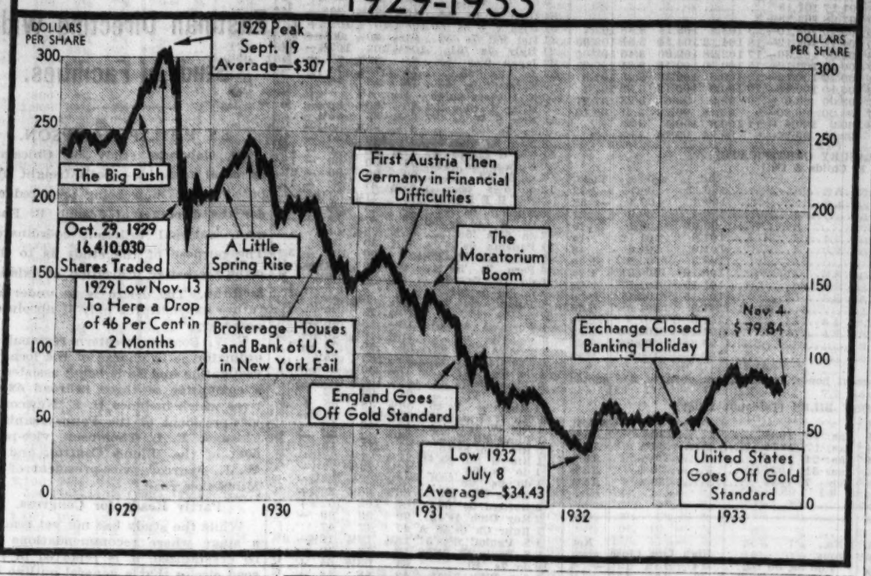
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, C. Z., Nov. 6.—Canal transits in October totaled 467, the greatest number since January, 1931, which had 476. Compared with September, last month's traffic registered a 14.5 per cent gain, and 15.8 per cent gain in tolls. Compared with October, 1932, the increases were 18.5 and 18.8 per cent respectively. October's commercial tolls were more than $2,300,000 more than September.

New York's Exchanges Close Today for Election

All stock, commodity, and produce exchanges and banks in New York City will be closed today because of the elections in that city. All Chicago exchanges and banks will be open as usual. Among exchanges elsewhere which will be closed today is the St. Louis Stock exchange.

Ups and Downs of the Stock Market 1929-1933



Liberty Bonds Slump Halts Conversion

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—The chance of further exchanges of Fourth Liberty 4¼s for new 4¼-3¼ per cent twelve year treasury bonds has been almost completely destroyed, specialists in government securities said today after the market had suffered another sharp decline.

The spread of 1½ points between the price of 101 20-32 for called Liberty 4¼s and the price of around 100 6-32 for the new bonds makes a switch in the market more attractive than an exchange under the conversion offer, it is pointed out.

There is little chance that this spread will be reduced by a decline in the price of Liberty 4¼s, as this issue is attractive on a money basis, yielding 0.51 per cent to the conversion date next April 15.

New Bonds Fall and Rally.

The new 4¼-3¼ per cent bonds fell sharply today and at one time were quoted as low as 100 2-32 bid, from which level they rallied in keeping with a recovery in the entire treasury list. The new bonds, like all other treasury issues, were depressed by various market influences, including the flight of capital from this country as a result of unsettled exchange conditions.

The principal cause of the decline in the treasury market during the last week, specialists point out, has been the thinness of the market. Traders and investors have withdrawn bids and moderate selling has depressed prices considerably.

Close observers of the treasury security market declare there is no justification for a sustained market decline comparable with the break late in 1931. Financial conditions are vastly different now from those which have prevailed during other periods of acute market weakness in the last two years.

No Gold Loss Is Feared.

There is no present possibility of a gold loss such as occurred after England left the gold standard late in 1931. During the six weeks following England's departure from the gold standard about $730,000,000 in gold was withdrawn from this country's monetary gold stocks. Nor is there any likelihood of a banking crisis such as occurred early this year, when currency withdrawals mounted to more than $1,000,000,000 in a few weeks.

In both of those emergency situations, government bonds broke severely owing to forced selling on the part of banks and other financial institutions. There is little chance of a similar selling now, unless President Roosevelt goes in for uncontrolled currency inflation.

Selling of governments as a result of the flight from the dollar is one cause which has been ascribed for the decline in the treasury market during recent sessions. Holders of government securities are believed in scattered instances to have sold their holdings and bought common stocks, commodities or bonds of foreign countries for resale abroad.

32 BANK CLEARING HOUSES APPROVE RFC STOCK PLANS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, said today clearing house associations in three Texas cities and one Oklahoma city were among 32 which had endorsed the corporation's plan of credit expansion through purchase of preferred stock and capital notes of association member banks.

The Texas associations listed were those at Fort Worth, Dallas and Houston. The Oklahoma approval came from Tulsa.

Twenty-nine other banks have the plan under consideration for early action, he said.

Approve Splitup of Stock for National Distillers

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Stockholders of National Distillers Products corporation at a special meeting today approved the three for one split-up on the common stock, as recently proposed by the directors.

Melville Shoe 4 Weeks' Sales Rise 21.5 Per Cent

Melville Shoe corporation reports sales of $1,829,453 for the four weeks ended Oct. 28, compared with $1,505,323 in the corresponding period of 1932. The increase is 21.5 per cent.

NEW SECURITIES ACT HALTS MIDDLE WEST COMMITTEE'S REPORT

An instance of how the new securities act at times proves a boomerang is revealed in an explanation of a statement of the noteholders' committee of the Middle West Utilities company, issued yesterday. Instead of aiding investors in getting information about the concerns in which they are part owners, it is actually hampering them at times, particularly in companies undergoing reorganization. This is due to the fact that reorganization committees and stockholders' protective groups are fearful lest they violate the act in distributing information to security holders.

The committee representing the noteholders sent out a review of their operations. The report was a sketchy one and this paragraph of explanation was attached:

"The committee regrets that it cannot give you, at this time, any information about the condition of the company or the prospects for reorganization. The company has been furnished by the receivers with information available with respect to the operation of the system, but will not asume responsibility for reporting the activity of others of which it cannot obtain personal knowledge, except at great expense. Receipt by you of the information which the committee believes you are entitled to have must await a clarification of the federal securities act."

NEW YORK TRADE IN COMMODITIES SETS RECORDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—The commodity exchange, which was organized May 1 as a consolidation of four exchanges, with facilities for trading in six commodities, reported today that trading in several of the commodities had been of record proportions during the first six months of its existence.

Total contracts traded in on the exchange for the period represented a dollar value of approximately $573,500,000, and deliveries of actual commodities on contract represented a total value of $40,333,300.

Trading in silver futures broke all previous records. The turnover was 837,275,000 ounces for the six months, compared with 315,000,000 ounces on the national metal exchange during 1932, and production of 77,914,000 ounces for the period.

F. W. WOOLWORTH OCTOBER SALES UNDER YEAR AGO

F. W. Woolworth Co. reports October sales of $22,034,919, a decrease of 1.9 per cent from a year ago. September sales showed an increase of 11.2 per cent compared with the same month of 1932.

G. C. Murphy Co.'s October sales aggregated $1,993,644, an increase of 23 per cent over October, 1932.

October sales of W. T. Grant & Co. totaled $7,112,547 compared with $6,961,901 a year ago, an increase of 2.1 per cent.

J. J. Newberry Co. October sales totaled $2,990,111, up 1.1 per cent from a year ago. September volume showed an increase of 12.6 per cent over 1932.

Hudson Motor Reports $19,043 Net in Quarter

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Hudson Motor Car company reports net profit of $19,043 for the September quarter against profit of $164,540 for the preceding quarter and net loss of $1,497,760 in the September quarter of 1932. For the first nine months of 1933 the company had loss of $1,307,422, against loss of $4,630,010 in the corresponding period of 1932.

Stocks Slip; Dullest Day Since April

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 6.—In the slowest trading since early April stocks were pushed about in erratic movements today by a little group of professional operators who appeared totally lacking in any ability to get anywhere in particular. The net result of the session was that the list generally bogged down to fractionally lower levels on a turnover of less than 700,000 shares.

The market firmed somewhat in the last half hour, but not enough to alter a lengthy procession of small recessions among leading issues.

A number of factors accounted for the market's drowsiness. For one thing, the session was sandwiched in between the week-end and tomorrow's election day recess, and many traders took time out for a good holiday.

Dollar Decline Confuses Traders.

The dollar continued on the downgrade against foreign currencies. But instead of kicking a spur into the supine market, this state of things only threw traders into a state of confusion, unwilling to venture anything in the way of new commitments. Also, growing unrest in agriculture and evidence of some further slight decline in trade combined to cool off the speculative temperature.

The opening, however, was steady, but shares generally became easier as trading proceeded in a listless, colorless market. Traders received without a qualm the news of a sharp rise in sterling to a point well above the old gold parity.

A better tone was imparted to the market when buying of metals developed around 11 o'clock. Silver issues especially became active and strong as the conviction grew that remonetization of the metal in some form would be announced shortly.

Silver Issues Rally.

American Smelting was worked up to around 47 for a 2 point advance. U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and other silver producers attracted moderate buying and registered moderate net gains.

Contrary to expectations, the liquor issues were as dormant as any other group outside the metals. There was a surprising lack of interest in the heretofore hard played "repeal" list in the face of the virtual certainty that repeal elections in six states tomorrow will bring the end of prohibition to all intents and purposes.

Losses running to more than a point were put down for leaders like American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, Schenley Distillers, and U. S. Industrial Aclohol.

Utilities were on the heavy side throughout the day and their weakness in the afternoon proved a drag on the general market.

Railroads were also heavy, but not especially so. Motors and oils worked lower, as did chemicals. U. S. Steel never managed to make up its early retreat. Most standard industrials were fractionally down.

RADIO CORP. LOSS IS $525,158 FOR THIRD QUARTER

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—The Radio Corporation of America today reported net loss for the quarter ended Sept. 30 amounted to $525,158. For nine months, net loss totaled $1,793,370 compared with net loss of $592,722 in the same period last year.

The corporation deducted $880,821 for depreciation in the third quarter, which, together with $150,000 set aside for amortization of patents and $57,189 deducted for interest, exceeded the net income of $562,852 by $25,158, which amount was taken from surplus.

GEN. MOTORS TO PAY 25 CENTS EXTRA DIVIDEND

Move in Support of Recovery Effort.

New York, Nov. 6.—(AP)—An extra dividend of 25 cents was declared today on the common stock of General Motors corporation, its first extra in three years.

Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of the corporation, said the directors "felt it desirable to do all possible to add to the purchasing power at this time and to support the efforts that are being made toward national recovery."

The extra dividend will represent an additional disbursement of approximately $11,000,000 and together with the regular quarterly 25 cents a share paid on the stock for the last year and a half will constitute a payment of over $22,000,000 to 350,000 stockholders. The disbursement will be made on Dec. 12, so that it will constitute what Wall street calls a "Christmas dividend." General Motors has outstanding 43,500,000 shares of common stock and 1,875,366 shares of $5 preferred.

Cites Earnings, Cash Position.

For the first nine months of this year, General Motors earned $74,525,504 or $1.73 a share on the common stock and the directors, Mr. Sloan said, felt justified in making the extra payment in view of "the unusually strong financial condition of the corporation and giving weight to the earnings for the first nine months."

These figures contrasted sharply with those of a year ago, when the corporation's third quarter report revealed earnings for the nine months were only $10,555,175, or 8 cents a share on the common stock.

On Sept. 30 this year the corporation had cash and marketable securities on hand amounting to $232,566,172, not counting money in closed banks, compared with $209,098,832 on the same day in 1932.

General Motors inaugurated the custom of declaring extra dividends of substantial amount in the summer of 1926, when $4 per share was declared on the common, which at that time had no par value. Two months later, on Sept. 11, a stock dividend of 50 per cent was declared and as a Christmas present to its stockholders the corporation distributed another $4 extra in the last quarter.

Other Extra Payments.

In 1927 the corporation declared an extra of $2 on July 5; a 100 per cent stock dividend, or a two-for-one split up, in September, which reorganized the capital structure, exchanging two new shares of $25 par stock for each of the old no par shares outstanding, and again as a Christmas present gave the stockholders another $2.50 extra in the last quarter. In 1928 an extra of $2.50 was declared on July 2.

In January, 1929, another split-up of stock was made, the corporation giving 2½ shares of new $10 par value stock for each share of the old $25 par value stock outstanding, and declared an initial dividend of 75 cents a share on the new stock. In July an extra of 30 cents a share was declared and the usual Christmas present was handed to stockholders with another 30 cent extra in the last quarter.

In 1930, 1931 and 1932 there were no extras but the corporation continued the 75 cent quarterly payment until the second quarter of 1932, when it was reduced to 25 cents, at which figure it has remained.

SMALL MUTUAL AID UNITS GIVEN LICENSE WARNING

Small mutual aid societies and small assessment insurance concerns that solicit insurance in states in which they are not licensed are running into more difficulties.

The insurance superintendent of the District of Columbia has served notice on such organizations that they are violating the law if they solicit insurance without being licensed.

Commissioners of Oregon, Oklahoma and Arkansas have issued similar warnings.

The Canadian insurance department recently issued an order prohibiting six of these assessment associations from conducting business and permitting nine others to do business only with present subscribers.

Packers Bid 17.9 to 32.72c on Relief Beef

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—(AP)—Nine packers submitted bids today for 6,500,000 of the 15,000,000 pounds of canned beef to be purchased by the Federal Surplus Relief corporation for use by the needy this winter.

The lowest bid was 17.9 cents a pound and the highest 32.72. The names of the high and low bidders were not revealed. Officials of the corporation stated the awards would be made only after a study of the offers. The right also was reserved to reject any or all of the bids which in quantity fell far below the expectations of the corporation.

Fail to State Live Meat Price.

None of the packers would state in exact figures what they intend to pay for the meat to be packed. All specified they would pay "the market price."

The price to the grower was considered one of the important points in the bids. Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, who also is chairman of the surplus relief corporation, said the low bidder would not necessarily be awarded the contract but that the price to be paid the grower for the cows would be a prime consideration. One of the ideas behind the program is to increase the price of cattle.

The following companies submitted bids: Armour & Co., Cudahy Packing company, Foeli Packing company, Illinois Meat company, Jacob Geld, Libby-McNeill and Libby, Republic Food company, United Packers and Wilson & Co.

Other Supplies Bought.

The beef purchase is in addition to 100 million pounds of light salt pork, already purchased and large quantities of wheat being bought to be milled into flour.

The agricultural adjustment administration and the corporation in mid-November are to begin buying 300 million more pounds of pork. Bids will be opened Nov. 17 at the corporation offices for 75 million pounds of pork for delivery in January. This will account for about 750,000 light hogs during November and the first half of December.

On the first of each month until June 1, 1934, bids for pork to be used for the needy will be opened. This meat will be paid through assessment which began yesterday of a processing tax on live weight of hogs.

GAIN IN PHONES BY BELL SYSTEM SLACKENS SPEED

After reversing a trend of almost continued losses with a net gain of 53,000 telephones connected during September, the Bell System showed a reduction in the gain for October to a few thousand, according to Dow, Jones & Co.

September, according to officials, is one of the best months of the year for new business, to which the installation of telephones in homes at the close of the vacation season contributes in an important degree. Conversely, the apparent recession in October is attributed in part to the closing of numerous summer hotels and camps, which exercises a recurrent annual influence.

The net gain in September, which compared with a loss of some 85,000 stations in the like month last year, was the largest of any month since November, 1929. The improvement, which was repeated in a lesser measure last month, should continue for the next six months, it is said, unless a severe recession in general business should occur.

The New York Telephone company, which is the largest operating affiliate in the system, gained during October 1,899 stations, compared with 9,912 stations in the preceding month. A gain of 996 telephones in Chicago was established last month by the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

RESERVE CAN'T TAKE PRIVATELY IMPORTED GOLD

New York, Nov. 6.—The federal reserve bank has not been empowered to receive gold imported from abroad in private account in payment for RFC debentures, it was explained in authoritative quarters today following the announcement that E. A. Pierce & Co. had received orders to purchase 40,000 ounces of gold abroad for shipment to this country.

Foreign gold can be imported in any quantity and delivered to the federal reserve, it was stated, but payment will be made only at the statutory prices of $20.67 per fine ounce unless a new ruling to change the present regulations is made.

Traffic Men May Oppose Forced Railway Mergers

The National Industrial Traffic league is expected to go on record as opposing compulsory consolidation of railroads and recommending that any consolitions be of a voluntary nature, at its annual meeting which opens here tomorrow. The executive committee of the organization is meeting at the Palmer house to draft a program to be presented to the full membership tomorrow. Joseph B. Eastman, national rail coördinator, and Kenneth Burgess, general counsel for the Illinois Bell Telephone company, are to address the general meetings.

BANK REVEALS BASIS FOR SALE OF STOCK TO RFC

Continental Illinois Vote Set for Dec. 20.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Directors of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company yesterday outlined the terms under which the bank will sell $50,000,000 of preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and called a special meeting of shareholders for Dec. 20 to ratify this and other steps approved by the directors.

Immediately after the directors' meeting, James R. Leavell, president of the bank, mailed to shareholders copies of suggested amendments to the bank's articles of incorporation which will accompany the deal with the RFC.

These amendments were drawn in Washington at conferences between officers of the bank and representatives of the RFC. They are regarded as highly important because they outline the terms which will be imposed upon other banks throughout the country when they sell preferred stock to the RFC in accordance with the administration's demands for increased capital structures for banks, large and small.

Puts RFC in Control.

By these terms the RFC becomes the controlling interest in the affairs of the Continental, the largest banking institution under one roof west of the Hudson river. The program calls for ownership of two-thirds of the bank's outstanding stock, and each preferred share to be sold to the RFC will carry voting rights equal to that of a share of common.

In the event of failure to pay dividends on the preferred the RFC's preferred stock automatically gets double voting rights.

The terms also specify that in the event either of failure to pay preferred dividends, failure to make sinking fund payments on the preferred, or shrinkage of assets to a point where capital would be impaired the RFC would automatically have the power to set maximum salary limitations for officers and employés and the power to hire and fire directors, officers and employés.

Forecast by Jones' Demands.

Weeks ago Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the RFC disclosed that in cases where the RFC bought preferred stock of banks it would demand these powers. He made his demands in a bulletin to banks entitled "Suggested Articles of Incorporation for National Banks Selling Preferred Stock."

Mr. Jones' demands, however, were somewhat softened in the course of the conversations that have been carried on between RFC authorities and bank officers in Washington during the last few weeks.

In the terms as stated in the case of the Continental, the implication is that the RFC authorities are content to hold a suspended power over banks rather than actually attempt to interfere in their management as long as the banks meet the requirements on preferred dividends and make the specified sinking fund payments into the preferred stock retirement fund.

It is reported on good authority that the RFC is satisfied with the present management in the case of the Continental and that it has indicated a policy of non-interference in operations. No important changes in personnel are contemplted, it is understood.

Cut Common Par Two-thirds.

In his letter to present shareholders Mr. Leavell states that the directors have approved a plan to reduce the par value of the outstanding common stock from $100 to $33.33 1-3 per share and to offer a share for share exchange. The outstanding common is to be scaled down from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000 and the difference of $50,000,000 is to be used to set up additional reserve against depreciated assets.

After the proposed adjustment the capital structure of the bank will consist of $50,000,000 of preferred stock, $25,000,000 of common stock and $25,000,000 of surplus, undivided profits and reserves. These latter reserves are in addition to the reserves set up against depreciated assets.

On the basis of the new net worth the common stock would have a book value in excess of $46 per share.

Liquidate Security Unit.

Another step approved by the directors yesterday was the decision to liquidate the bank's security affiliate, Continental Illinois company, in accordance with the provisions of the banking act of 1933, which calls for divorcement of bank affiliates before June 16, 1934.

New York, Nov. 6.—[Special.]—Extreme weaknesses in United States government long term issues and generally lower prices for foreign loans and domestic corporation issues characterized dealing in the listed bond market today.

United States government issues were marked down 8-32ds to 23-32ds point. Exceptions in the governments were most of the Liberty loans which were shaded slightly.

Cause of Break Not Clear.

About the best explanation offered for the sharp decline in prices of United States government bonds was that the sellers hoped to buy them back a little cheaper. Aside from the much bandied about information that a flight from the dollar to the pound sterling was on, there was little in the day's news to account for the severe losses.

In the foreign group, French government 7½s and 7s were down 2 1-3 and 1½ points, respectively, while United Kingdom obligations were up fractionally to 1¾ points. Swiss government 5½ lost ground fractionally, as did Kingdom of Italy 5½s and some of the Dutch East Indies loans. There were outcroppings of weakness in most of the Scandinavian loans.

Utilities Average Higher.

Trading in domestic corporation bonds was not particularly active. Railroad and industrial issues averaged slightly lower and utility bonds higher on the day. In the latter group, most of the New York City rapid transit issues closed higher, with the best strength being displayed by Interborough Rapid Transit.

Losses of as much as two points were shown in certain liens of the Southern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Burlington, Kansas City Southern, New York Central and Northern Pacific.

Vulcan Detinning Profit for Nine Months Higher

Union Carbide and Carbon.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me some information about Union Carbide and oblige?—Miss E. M. R.

Answer: Union Carbide and Carbon corporation is well intrenched in the chemical field. Revenues are derived not from the sources that yield a return for the two other large American chemical companies, Allied Chemical and Du Pont, but from the following fields: Oxy-acetylene gases and welding equipment; carbon and carbon products; electric furnace ferro-alloys and synthetic organic chemicals and hydrocarbon bases.

Its products are used by practically all major industries, but operations are especially sensitive to activity in the steel, automobile, and railroad lines. The company also manufactures Eveready flashlights and Eveready Prestone, an anti-freeze mixture.

Heavier demands from basic industries in the third quarter of this year boosted third quarter earnings to more than first and second quarter earnings combined, and brought the nine months' earnings to one cent short of the year's dividend requirements of $1 a share. Net income for the first 9 months equaled 99 cents per share, against 69 cents per share for the first 9 months of 1932.

Ordinarily the final quarter of the year is the most profitable, due to the holiday sales of flashlights and the seasonal sales of anti-freeze mixture.

The company has consistently operated at a profit for the last 11 years, although operations in the last three years show some effects from lessened industrial activity. Net in 1932 equaled 98 cents per share, against $2 a share for 1931, $3.12 in 1930, and $3.94 in 1929.

Current position is strong. At the close of 1932 cash assets alone of more than $11,000,000 compared with total current liabilities of $6,597,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 9,000,743 shares of no par stock. The stock pays dividends of 25 cents a quarter. In 1932 dividends totaled $1.75 a share, in 1931 and 1930, $2.60 and in 1929, $4.30.

St. Louis Gas and Coke.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me your opinion of St. Louis Gas and Coke bonds?—M. M. A.

Answer: This subsidiary of Utilities Power and Light corporation, manufacturer of pig iron, gas, tar, etc., was placed in receivership on May 31, 1933. It defaulted on its bond interest on the following day. The bonds are a speculation.

WHEAT DECLINES DESPITE EFFORT OF BULL TRADERS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets appeared to be little affected yesterday by either Washington developments or happenings abroad, and while a number of the professional speculators made determined efforts to advance prices their efforts were without avail. Many of the early buyers turned to the selling side late in the session and found support lacking. May wheat, which sold at 90⅜ cents on an early bulge, dropped to 87⅜ cents and closed at 88¼ to 88⅝ cents. December finished at 85⅝ to 85¾ cents. Net losses for the day were 1⅜ to 1⅝ cents.

Corn developed independent strength, due in part to selling of wheat against purchases of the former by spreaders, and closed ⅝ cent lower to ¼ cent higher. December showed the decline, closing at 46½ to 46⅝ cents. May closed at 52 to 52¼ cents.

Oats and Rye Lower.

Oats were ½ to ⅝ cent lower, with December at 33⅝ to 33¾ cents. Rye was 1¾ to 1½ cents lower, December closing at 55⅝ cents. Barley gained ¼ to ¾ cent for the day.

Most of the trade in all grains during the day was of a professional character. The advance in sterling to above par and the Canadian dollar to par with the American failed to increase outside interest in commodities, and there was the same undercurrent of uncertainty and lack of confidence on the part of the public which has been in evidence for a number of weeks. The markets were easily influenced throughout the day.

Cables from Liverpool indicated wheat traders in the English market were also uncertain owing to the advance in sterling to above par and scattered liquidation of futures followed, with the close at net losses of ½ to ⅝ cent.

Wheat Off at Winnipeg.

There was no export demand of consequence for Canadian cash wheat and Winnipeg closed ½ to ⅝ cent lower. December in the latter market was 23½ cents under Chicago at the last, Liverpool 19½ cents under and Buenos Aires, 27½ cents under. Despite the failure of the American markets to respond to the advancing price of gold, they remain by far the highest in the world.

Uncertainty as to the monetary situation continues to cause the trade to ignore the supply and demand situation, and there was not even a fractional upturn in wheat on the Broomhall estimate the Australian new crop had been cut down 24,000,000 bushels since the government report on that country was compiled.

The sharp advance in corn futures Saturday failed to increase country offerings of grain to arrive, which were placed at 70,000 bushels. Shipping sales aggregated 125,000 bushels.

There was no evidence of further export business in corn, and it was estimated by seaboard interests that the American market was about 10 cents out of line as far as general business was concerned.

A cargo of 240,000 bushels of Canadian rye arrived in Chicago over the week-end.

CROP ESTIMATE ON COTTON 600,000 BALES UNDER 1932

This year's cotton crop is estimated at 12,094,000 bales by the Bennett-Miller report, as compared with 12,709,647 bales last year. Ginning from Oct. 18 to Nov. 1 is 1,500,223 bales against 1,937,951 bales last year. Total ginning for the season to Nov. 1 is 10,105,803 bales compared with 9,247,045 bales last year. Reports indicate that ginning is much nearer completion than usual at this time of the year.

Ginning in Texas is 3,438,960 bales, and an indicated crop of 3,980,000 bales. Oklahoma has ginned 925,020 bales, suggesting 1,100,000 bales. HOG PRICES RISE ON FARM STRIKE, CALL FOR PORK

Sellers Win Upturn After Early Deadlock.

The farm strike situation, the determined stand for higher prices taken by Chicago commission men and the improvement in the wholesale pork demand over the week-end figured prominently in the higher hog market yesterday.

A deadlock resulted early in the session and lasted several hours when buyers refused at first to accede to the demands of the selling side. But salesmen were adamant in their stand and forced prices up to 10 to 20 cents with a threat to "lock up" the supply unless quotations were raised.

At the close the limited supplies were moving freely at the higher level of prices, buyers cleaning up everything but about 3,000 held over for today. Numerous loads reached the $4.40 top, showing 15 cents advance over the high mark on Saturday. The general average for the session was $4.20, up 15 cents.

Farm Strike Cuts Receipts.

Picketing of highways has reduced the receipts at several strategic points in the country. The Sioux City run was cut to 700 yesterday, whereas this market usually handles from 7,000 to 10,000 on a Monday. The eleven leading markets handled only 71,000 head, a decrease of 45 per cent, or 59,000 hogs. The Chicago run, the least affected by striking farmers, was only 25,000, one of the smallest totals on record for a Monday in November.

Shorter supplies and colder weather resulted in a quick clearance for fresh pork at higher prices. Fresh pork loins similar to the kinds that went begging for bids of 10 cents a pound in volume at the middle of last week were cleared at 12 to 13 cents yesterday.

Heavy Cattle Lack Demand.

While hogs and lambs advanced yesterday, cattle sank to new lows, many sales of 1,000 pound averages and heavier weights showing losses of fully 25 cents and more compared with the close of last week.

Big weights were a drug on the market, with late indications pointing to a heavy carryover of 1,200 to 1,400 pound averages for today's trade. The run was beyond expectations after the previous week's poor showing of the market, but aggregate supplies were under a week ago. The seven leading points handled 74,000 yesterday, against 91,000 a week earlier.

Fancy baby beef steers and heifers averaging only 657 pounds topped the list at $6.25, outselling the bulk of weighty steers by $1.50 or more, but it was a new low Monday top for more than 22 years. Only a few scattered sales were made above $5.85, all light weights, the bulk of the 600 to 1,400 pound cattle selling at $4.50 to $5.75.

Lambs ruled strong to 25 cents higher yesterday, all interests buying top grades of natives as high as $7.25 to $7.35 at the close. Lambs without fleeces were sold up to $6.35, while prime 95 pounds shorn lambs reached $6.00.

WEST SUBURBAN MEN—TUESDAY!

Do you live in any of our western suburbs? Then if you are sincerely looking for a solution of your own employment and income problems, Tuesday will be a very important day to you. On Tuesday we shall make certain selections, and add a few men to our west suburban force. They will be men who believe that there is prosperity in some lines, and that the only way to complete a profitable transaction these days is to get into a successful business that has not tarried or detoured because of times and conditions. In our line, this has been true throughout the world, because we transact business world-wide and in all countries we have scored progress and our men have made money.

Now, if you expect to come into this business and make the topmost income that can be made in it, you are mistaken. But if you believe tha while you can learn this work lots faster than you mastered your own trade, profession or business in the past, it still takes time to acquire skill and a thorough knowledge of this business, your opportunities for continuously increasing your income are very considerable. October was a new record sales month for us, nationally and locally. One man in the Chicago area made over $780.00 in this business last month. One man in one of our other offices made over $2,500.00 last month. Many made $400.00, $300.00, $250.00—and many beginners made $125.00, $150.00 up to $200.00. In fact, many who started with us in the past few weeks made money their first or second days. Most of these men came from lines so vastly different, one who does not understand the great, in fast supreme, merit of our product and the efficiency of our method of training, would not think it possible.

This company does not charge you for getting into this business. We have no securities for sale and do not sell you goods. You make no deposits you put up no collateral. But in selecting men on Tuesday we must be guided by certain bedrock considerations that the average west suburban man, we believe, can meet. We want character, health, the determination to work. We wish men living at home, not too young or too old—but with the will to succeed. We cannot pour success into any man. We can and happily do open wide the gates, so that those with determination can walk through and into a new realm and a new era for their families and themselves, assured of splendid and growing incomes, the comforts and the privileges which they feel they have a right to enjoy!

While possession of automobiles is not imperative, it would help greatly, and probably add more nobility to your income, but you are not asked to consider any seasonal proposition, nor can we take part-time men. This is steady, dependable and leads in its class throughout the entire world.

An official of this company will be in our office Tuesday morning, Nov. 7, from 9 to 1, to interview you. This office is located in Room 41 at 137 N. Marion-st., Oak Park. If you feel that you can qualify, and are at this time a resident of any of our western suburbs, and are in earnest, you are invited to call.

FRANKLIN—SED., 1932 SUPERCHARGED Finished a stunning two-tone gray. Practically new speedwear heavy duty all-weather tires. The interior is immaculate and has many expensive refinements. The V-12 motor performs absolutely noiselessly, but there's abundant power and pick-up when you step on the throttle. It can "cruise" at 80 M. P. H. just as easy as you can do 50 M. P. H. in your old car. If you should show this car to your neighbors no one would believe you bought it used. Originally priced at only $4,200 not long ago. We have it for sale at only $1,495. Farm Strikers Burn Railroad Bridges—Johnson Assails Critics of NRA—"Fur" Sammons, Gangster, Captured

The three principal candidates as they appeared in action during the campaign. Left to right: Mayor John P. O'Brien, the regular Democratic or Tammany candidate; Joseph V. McKee, the Recovery party entry, who was once acting mayor of the city, and Fiorello H. La Guardia, the radical Republican running on the fusion ticket. All three candidates made final pleas to the voters yesterday. (Story on page 1.)
